74 VILLAGERS KILLED BY AVALANCHE IN NORWAY

ENTIRE FAMILIES ARE WIPED OUT

Worst Disaster of Its Kind in Famous Tourist Region Since Landslide of 1905, When 60 Persons Lost Lives.

By the Associated Press.

LOEN, Norway, Sept. 14.—Seventy-four persons were killed yesterday when the villages of Bodel and Nesdal, at the foot of Rogne mountain, were destroyed by a rock slide.

The inhabitants, startled from sleep by a terrific rumble, had no chance to escape from a great wave of water which poured through the narrow valley after the massive rock—at least 1200 feet broad and 1500 feet high—slid into Lake Loen.

Relief workers, including doctors and nurses who flew here from Bergen and Oslo, established temporary hospitals in the few remaining homes. Bodies of human beings and animals floated with furniture and household articles on the lake. The bodies of many silver foxes, bred by the farmers of the region, were among them.

Steamboat High on Mountain.

An old steamboat, perched 350 feet up the mountainside since a similar disaster in 1905 in which 60 were killed, was swept another 300 feet higher by the immense wave.

The flood wave was so immense that one house standing on a high ridge two miles up Rogne mountain was demolished and its inhabitants killed.

Most of the survivors in Bodal and Nesdal—only about 20 were saved, and 13 of them were in serious condition—lost all their possessions.

Farmer Carried 1200 Feet.

The flood swept one farmer 1200 feet, but he came through alive. He had been asleep in a small fieldhouse. Several of those killed were carried hundreds of yards, and some apparently froze to death.

Ten families were completely wiped out and not one family in the two villages was without a victim. Thirty children were killed.

Beautiful Lake Loen, narrow but two miles long, is bordered by rock cliffs 1000 feet high, towering precipitously over the water. There have been frequent avalanches, but none to compare with yesterday's, with the exception of that in 1905. Rogne Mountain towers 6388 feet above the little settlement.

Tourists from every part of the world who have visited the region have marveled at the temerity of the inhabitants, living under the constant threat of death.

WIFE KILLS HUSBAND SHE SAYS TALKED IN SLEEP OF AFFAIR

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 14.—H. E. Haugaard, cabinetmaker, died of bullet wounds today and his wife was found in a gas-filled room of their home and was taken to a hospital.

Police said Mrs. Haugaard wrote two notes, one addressed "to whom it may concern" in which she said: "I shot my husband because he tried to kill me after admitting being unfaithful to me with a young girl who is a foreigner and who recently worked in his place. . . . He had always detested people of their religion and thought he could convince me he was not having anything to do with her on account of this, but as he constantly talked in his sleep and told of intimacies he was having with her I knew differently."

The second note, addressed to the son, 10 years old, was quoted by police as saying: "Am sorry that this terrible tragedy has come into your life. . . . There is some money for you in the blue tin box. Wish it were more. All my love."

LISBON, Portugal, Sept. 13.—Following Mussolini's example, the Portuguese Government has announced the mobilization of 200,000 children, starting in October. The new organization, to be called "Portugese Youth," will be under the direct command of military officers.

NO AUTOMOBILE DEATHS IN ST. LOUIS FOR WEEK

34 Drivers Arrested for Speeding, 39 for Other Offenses, in 24 Hours.

There were no deaths from automobile accidents in St. Louis during the week which ended yesterday. There have been three deaths since the traffic safety campaign opened Aug. 24.

In the 24-hour period ending at 6 a. m. today, 34 drivers were arrested for speeding and 39 for other traffic offenses. There were 175 traffic accidents last week, resulting in injuries to 96 persons. A total of 1224 drivers has been arrested for speeding since the campaign started.

ALBERTA PREMIER SUGGESTS NEWSPAPERS BE LICENSED

CALGARY, Alberta, Sept. 14.—Premier William Aberhart of Alberta, leader of the world's only social credit Government, suggested last night that newspapers in the province might be licensed.

"I feel certain," he declared in a speech, "that the citizens of Alberta will soon come to the judgment that something should be done to curb the mad-dog tactics of certain financial newspapers."

He complained of articles concerning himself and his administration published in Alberta.

FORCED LANDING ENDS ROUND TRIP ATLANTIC FLIGHT

Richman and Merrill Down in Northeastern Newfoundland After Crossing From England.

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—An unsigned telegram from Musgrave Harbor, Newfoundland, received this afternoon by Eddie Rickenbacker, general manager of the airline employing Dick Merrill, said the plane bearing Merrill and Harry Richman back to the United States from England made a forced landing there.

The message made no mention of anyone being injured. It read:

"Made forced landing account of gas. Damaged propeller."

Musgrave Harbor, in the constituency of Bonavista North, is about 150 miles north-northwest of St. John's.

Apparently the two flyers, reaching far north of Cape Race on their plotted course, got into trouble near Carmanville. Carmanville residents described the blue and silver monoplane in detail.

Telegraph agencies reported that the plane came in over Sir Charles Hamilton Sound and circled Carmanville for nearly 15 minutes, probably searching for a soft landing field, then nosed over for Musgrave Harbor and went down in a bog.

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—After it had not been heard for seven hours, the voice of Harry Richman, who is flying across the Atlantic with his pilot, Dick Merrill, came through to radio stations in America at 10:05 a. m. today.

Both the Eastern Air Lines station at Newark, N. J., directing the flight, and Press Wireless, Inc., reported hearing the radio telephone of the Merrill-Richman plane, Lady Peace, at the same moment.

Neither radio station was able to make out what was being said, although the voice was identified as Richman's. Static conditions prevented an attempt at conversation.

At that time, it was estimated, the Lady Peace should have been about 2500 miles out from England, headed for Floyd Bennett Field, Brooklyn, and a landing some time after 4 p. m.

The flyers were making the return flight on their roundtrip to London from New York. Apparently they were receiving their radio guidance without difficulty since they were attempting to answer calls made at other than the scheduled periods.

Technical experts of Eastern Air Lines, of which Merrill is senior pilot, kept an all-night watch at the radio.

One watcher said: "Dick and Harry seem to have just about perfect weather, from the looks of the map. The chart shows tail winds of 25 to 30 miles an hour for them from about 500 miles east of Cape Race, all the way to New York. At 7 a. m. they should have been entering about two hours of rain."

MAN WHO THREW PISTOL NEAR KING GETS ONE YEAR

SAYS HE PRETENDED TO CARRY OUT PLOT

Declares He Kept War Office Posted on Conspiracy—Two Charges Against Him Dropped.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—George Andrew McMahon was found guilty today of producing a revolver near King Edward VIII with intent "to alarm His Majesty." He was sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment at hard labor.

McMahon was acquitted of two charges placed against him after he "slithered" a loaded revolver at the King as he rode in a military procession on Constitution Hill July 16.

The Irish-Scot prisoner testified "a foreign power" had wanted him to shoot the King on an earlier occasion and had tried to enlist him as a spy against Great Britain.

Attorney-General Sir Donald Somervell, suggesting McMahon had "imagined" the tale of a plot, declared the defendant had tried to get a promise of £1000 ($5000) from the Government before going into "details" to secret service men.

The Judge called McMahon a "misguided person" and said he did not intend to glorify him as a "sort of fancy hero."

He did, however, assert he believed the prisoner intended no harm to the King.

McMahon's Testimony.

McMahon testified the King was to have been shot on the ceremonial birthday trooping of the colors last June 23, and that he was to receive £150 ($750) for doing the shooting.

The prisoner said he had told the British War Office of the alleged plot. Sitting in the witness box, he wrote on a piece of paper—which was handed to the judge, jury and Attorney-General—the name of the person "in the Embassy of the foreign power" who, he said, approached him.

If necessary, he declared, he could give a description of the way he entered the Embassy, the inside of he Embassy, and the room in which he discussed the so-called plot.

After 10 or 12 witnesses had taken the stand, most of them agreeing McMahon would have had time, had he so wanted, to fire his revolver at the King from the crowd on Constitution Hill, the trial judge instructed a verdict of acquittal on the two most serious charges against the defendant. None of the witnesses said McMahon tried to aim the pistol.

McMahon, taking the witness stand after the noon recess, asserted he had kept in touch with the War Office, reported negotiations connected with the "plot," and accepted money from the "foreign Power," giving the numbers of the notes to authorities.

The conspiracy, he related, called for nine persons to accompany him to the trooping of the colors, so he could escape.

With the failure of this attempt, King Edward was to have been shot on his recent visit to France—which took place while McMahon was being held for the July pistol incident, he declared.

"Certain Baron" Involved.

The first inkling of the identity of the "foreign Power" was brought out in the trial when the prisoner testified he was introduced to a "certain Baron," evidently in the diplomatic service, whom he said he visited both at an embassy and in a private home.

McMahon pleaded with the Court to send him to prison to protect him from those whom, he said, he had betrayed by failing to carry out the deed.

"I want to go to prison," he cried, fingering the rail of the dock. "I want you to give me the heaviest sentence you possibly can. It is only by remaining in prison that I can save my life from the people whom I have given away."

Admission by the defendant that all the testimony concerning the Constitution Hill incident was "substantially true" became rapidly eclipsed as McMahon, speaking in a subdued voice, continued to give details of his new story.

Questioned About Motive.

Asked by his counsel if the "foreigners" gave him any reason why

SIX TIMES AS MANY 'NO' VOTES AS WERE COUNTED IN 4 PRECINCTS OF CHAIRMAN HANNEGAN'S WARD

NEW GRAND JURY IS INSTRUCTED TO GO TO BOTTOM OF VOTING FRAUDS

Members of Panel Decide to Devote Four Full Days a Week to Their Work Instead of Usual Two Half-Days.

JUDGE KIRKWOOD DELIVERS CHARGE

"We Must Have Honest and Fair Elections at All Costs," He Says—Some of Inquisitors "Practically Drafted."

The September term grand jury, which was impaneled today, and which will investigate the election and registration frauds exposed by the Post-Dispatch, was told by Circuit Judge Robert J. Kirkwood that it should go to the bottom of the frauds. To do this, he said, four or five meetings a week, instead of the two half-day sessions, customarily held by grand juries, will be necessary.

Following these directions, the new grand jury decided to give four full days a week to its work. It will meet first at 2 p. m. tomorrow, to consider routine matters, and will take up the vote fraud inquiry Wednesday at 10 a. m., and continue it Thursday. It will meet thereafter at 10 a. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Previous grand juries have usually held afternoon sessions twice a week.

Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller said the first matter presented to the grand jury in the election fraud cases would relate to the primary of Aug. 4.

"Practically Drafted."

Judge Kirkwood said he "practically had to draft" some of the members of the body, and added, "I hope you will not hold this against me, as I must do my duty as I see it, and you must do your duty as you see it. It will mean a financial sacrifice, but as good citizens you should not complain. This is an extraordinary grand jury, and you will have more work, probably, than any other grand jury in many years.

"Most of your time will be consumed in the investigation of election irregularities which appeared in the last primary, the (riverfront memorial) bond election and the primary prior to that (1934) and you should go into these matters thoroughly and impartially.

Politics Not Considered.

"It has been my honest endeavor to select a grand jury free of politics. I do not know what your politics are and I do not care. I have tried to select men not partisan Democrats nor partisan Republicans, but men who would do their duty as they saw it.

"Ordinary grand juries sit twice a week, usually on Tuesday and Thursday, but in this case if you only sit twice a week, I am afraid you won't accomplish anything at all. You probably will sit four or five days a week, if you expect to accomplish anything. I know you will not complain of the work, because you are rendering a public service.

"We must have this thing cleaned up one way or the other. I don't know how bad the situation is, but it is for you men to determine, and let the people of our city know just how bad it is.

"We must have honest and fair elections. Dishonest and unfair elections strike at the very foundation of a free democracy and they are in my opinion the sure road to a rebellion on the part of the people.

"I feel quite sure that the majority of the people of the Democratic party and of the Republican party want fair and honest elections, and fair and honest elections must be had at any and all costs."

Judge's Instructions.

"Your duties will be important," Judge Kirkwood told the new grand

Proof of Wholesale Fraud

THE official vote in four precincts of the Twenty-first Ward and the number of those who told the Post-Dispatch they voted "no," follows:

Precinct	Yes	No	Number Who Voted No
9	317	10	67
12	401	14	38
Totals	1486	52	321

Of those who told the Post-Dispatch they had voted "no" 270 made affidavits to that effect. There were 51 who said they voted "no," but preferred not to sign affidavits. These statements were made in the presence of a notary public who, in each instance, furnished a certificate that the statement had been made in his presence.

The Twenty-first Ward was shown, in the recorded vote, to have favored the riverfront bonds by nearly 6 to 1, with 6386 voting "yes" and 1100 "no." The recorded vote on the other bond proposition submitted at the same time, to provide new railroad approaches for the Municipal Bridge was 6387 "yes" and 1090 "no."

SOVIET NEWSPAPER COMMENT ON SPEECH OF HITLER

"As Much Chance of Seeing Ukraine as He Has of Seeing His Own Ears."

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Sept. 14.—Hitler, the official Soviet press commented today, has as much chance of seeing the Ukraine, Urals and Siberia, "as he has of seeing his own ears."

"We know now the modest dreams of Mr. Hitler," the newspapers said of his Nurnberg aspirations for Soviet soil and his sarcastic references to the five-pointed red star, symbol of Communist Russia. "But they are vain. As easily could the promoters of the Nurnberg circus see their own ears as our territory.

"The Soviets are strong and prepared. When the time comes it will provide a bitter disappointment for those who suffer such hysterical dreams."

ROOSEVELT BACK IN CAPITAL

President Returns After 26-Hour Cruise on River.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—President Roosevelt returned to the White House last night after a 26-hour river cruise on the U. S. S. Potomac.

The President and his small party, including Attorney-General Cummings and Secretary of the Interior Ickes, tried fishing late Saturday south of Quantico, Va., but there was little boasting about the catch. Mr. Roosevelt will remain here until Thursday when he leaves for Cambridge, Mass., to deliver an address at the Harvard tercentenary celebration.

4-Inch Rain in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—The heaviest rainfall in almost two years drenched Chicago and surrounding towns yesterday, paralyzing highway traffic in many sections, flooding basements and causing some streams to overflow their banks. Three days of almost uninterrupted rain brought the total precipitation for the 72 hours to four inches.

SECOND OPERATION FOR TOM PENDERGAST

Doctor Says Next 48 Hours Will Be Very Important in Determining Results.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 14.—Physicians expect the next 48 hours to reveal the trend in the serious illness of Thomas J. Pendergast, Kansas City Democratic leader, who yesterday underwent his second abdominal operation in less than a month.

The other operation was performed last month in New York City.

"The whole picture is very encouraging," said Dr. A. Sophian last night but added "the next 48 hours, of course, will be very important."

SPAIN REPORTS FASCIST PLOT TO KILL PRESIDENT, PREMIER

Says Government Nipped Conspiracy to Assassinate All of Higher Officials.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Sept. 14.—Government forces reported today secret police had thwarted an alleged Fascist plot to assassinate President Manuel Azana and Premier Francisco Largo Caballero. Anti-espionage police said most of the ranking officials of the Spanish Government were to have been killed by the alleged plotters.

They named among the intended victims the Communist Deputy, Dolores Ibarruri (La Pasionara), Gen. Mulio Mangada and Indalecio Prieto, Minister of Air and Navy. The names of others were not disclosed.

Nine persons, including six alleged ringleaders, were arrested. One of them, Juan Loring, was said to be the nephew of a grandee. Another, Juan Lavia, was said to be a cousin of Juan Lavia, organizer of the "Free Syndicate" in Barcelona.

RUSSIAN WOMAN GETS DEATH FOR ABANDONING ORPHANS

Crime Discovered When Woodsman Finds Girl, 3, Starving in Forest.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Sept. 14.—Vera Yelina, an elderly woman living at Bobrovka, near Sverolovsk, was sentenced to death yesterday for doing away with infant orphans whom she and her daughter had taken to rear. The daughter was ordered imprisoned for 10 years.

The woman had been granted a State bounty for each child she took. The Government charged she abandoned them in railroad stations and forests but kept on receiving money for their upkeep and education. The crime was discovered when a woodsman found a three-year-old girl near death from starvation in a hole covered by branches in the depths of a forest.

25 JAPANESE SOLDIERS KILLED IN FIGHT WITH BANDITS

All-Night Struggle Results When Manchoukuan Band Attacks Troop Train.

TOKIO, Sept. 14.—Twenty-five Japanese soldiers, including some officers, were killed and 65 were wounded in a fight with a strong bandit force west of Mulin, near Manchoukuo's Eastern frontier, said reports received here.

The fight was said to have begun when the bandits attacked a troop train Saturday night. It lasted throughout the night until the bandits retreated, the accounts related.

CHECK SHOWS 321 AGAINST BONDS, 52 RECORDED IN 21ST WARD AREAS

SAME VOTE ON TWO PROPOSITIONS IN 16

Republican Election Judge Says Democratic Associates Refused to Permit Him to Participate in Tabulating Ballots.

(Copyright, 1936, by Pulitzer Publishing Co., the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. All property rights in news reserved under Federal Court decisions. Reproduction prohibited.)

The Post-Dispatch in its continuing inquiry into fraud in the riverfront bond issue election of a year ago, today presents the results of a house-to-house canvass made by reporters in four precincts of the Twenty-first Ward, the home ward of Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic City Committee. In these precincts the official recorded vote was 1486 "yes" and 52 "no," but reporters found 321 who had voted "no."

These precincts were the first in which an exhaustive canvass was made by the Post-Dispatch. In them 2409 persons were registered voters at the time of the bond issue election and of these, 1684 were interviewed by reporters. The others could not be reached. More than 400 were reported to have moved and 20 were reported to have died.

Fraud in 19 "Yes" Wards.

Previously the Post-Dispatch had established fraud in every one of the 19 wards in which the riverfront bonds were approved by making a test canvass in a sample precinct, but in these instances the check was carried forward only far enough to find out whether more "no" votes were cast than were certified, and nothing like a check of the entire voting list was made.

The four precincts canvassed in Hannegan's ward, which were recorded as favoring the bond issue by a vote of more than 28 to 1, were the Fourth, Ninth, Twelfth and Twenty-first. They are North St. Louis neighborhoods of varied character. A goodly number of home owners live there, and there are sections in which low rent flats and apartments predominate.

In addition to the four precincts which were canvassed exhaustively, the Post-Dispatch last week told of fraud in the Thirteenth Precinct of the ward recorded as voting 751 to 11 in favor of the bonds. There a partial test canvass resulted in discovery of 14 persons who had voted "no."

Election Judge's Story.

J. H. Jaeger, 3959 Sullivan avenue, one of the Ninth Precinct residents who signed an affidavit that he voted "no," served as a Republican election judge in that precinct, which was recorded as voting in favor of the bonds, 317 to 10. Jaeger said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that his Democratic associates refused to permit him to participate in the counting, but that he had seen at least 25 "no" ballots.

"All the ballots were properly dropped in the box, because I was watching that part of it," Jaeger said. "The crooked work was all in the counting. I was afraid to say anything.

"I tried to count all the 'noes,' but when I asked one of the Democratic judges to hand them over to

REBELS COMPLETE THEIR OCCUPATION OF SAN SEBASTIAN

MOST OF BUILDINGS ESCAPE FLAMES

Paper Factory and Two Residences Burned — Workers' Districts Are Almost Uninhabited.

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.)

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, Sept. 14.—Gen. Emilo Mola's Fascist rebel troops raised the red and gold flag of the old monarchy over this capital of Guipuzcoa province yesterday.

The last refugees quit the northern Bay of Biscay resort city at noon as insurgent Moorish troops moved through the city.

Men and materials were moved up from the former battle front of Renteria to establish a new base of operations within San Sebastian, once the center of Spanish Government resistance in the Bay of Biscay region.

The insurgents spread systematically throughout the city, detachments occupied the telephone and telegraph buildings, the Governor's palace and the railroad station.

They found the city largely deserted and went about their occupation mostly in silence, greeted only by the cheers of middle-class residents, the only element of the city's population remaining.

Colonel Enters City.

Col. Jose Beorlegui entered the city ceremoniously by automobile at 6 p. m. He was still suffering from the arm wound he suffered when he led a battalion of Foreign Legionnaires against Irun.

Later he attended a review of troops in San Sebastian and then watched the hoisting of the flag to the tower of the Church of Santa Maria.

When the Fascists discovered the city virtually deserted by Government militiame and its civil population, the first move of many of the officers was to go to their summer homes to see if they had been damaged.

Many Anarchists Killed.

The only buildings burned were the paper factory and two residences. Police and Basque Nationalists had kept blazes set by anarchists from spreading while the city was being evacuated. Basques are reported to have killed many anarchists trying to loot stores.

The workers' districts were almost uninhabited when the Fascists arrived. The fleeing residents had carried as much of their possessions as they could and had started toward Bilbao, 50 miles to the west.

Thanksgiving services were held today, the Bishop of Pamplona officiating.

Some insurgents predicted Col. Beorlegui would order an immediate attack against new Government positions. Others, however, thought he would give the troops a long rest, while artillery, munitions and other supplies were moved up from Irun and Renteria.

Panic Among Defenders.

Jose Ortega, son of the Governor of San Sebastian, declared panic broke out among defenders of Santa Barbara Fort and was directly responsible for the occupation of San Sebastian by the insurgents.

Ortega, who caught the last boat to France before the Fascists entered the city, said the forts and garrisons had plenty of ammunition, but it was unused because 29 machine gunners suddenly took to their heels about noon Saturday.

The Fascists, he said, immediately entered the fort, which dominated the city, and their possession of it made it useless for Government defenders to offer any further resistance.

It was learned that the decision by Government forces to abandon San Sebastian was reached at a stormy session of the city's War Council Saturday.

Gov. Antonio Ortega explained that the militiamen were without munitions and demoralized by the fall of Irun and demanded that the city be evacuated immediately.

The anarchists, whose shouts of objection could be heard outside the council hall, were arrested. The more conservative Basques were in the majority and supported the Governor.

Gov. Ortega announced that the Government's first line of defense now would be at Orio, six miles west of San Sebastian.

"We now are manufacturing arms and munitions at top speed at Bilboa," Ortega said, and "we hope that with 10 days of rest for the militiamen we will have manufactured enough equipment to take to the offensive."

Sniping During Retreat.

Government troops, their retreat slowed by congestion in the port and a traffic jam on the road to Bilboa, sniped at the advancing insurgents as they fled.

Gov. Ortega and his staff boarded a yacht to go to new headquarters at Zumaya, about 15 miles west of San Sebastian.

The military radio station was transported there in trucks and Government leaders planned to dynamite two tunnels just outside San Sebastian on the road to Bilboa.

Hundreds of women and children were evacuated in trucks and officials estimated that 10,000 civilians and foreigners left San Sebastian in addition to the fighting forces.

The Popular Front War Committee moved to Motrico, a fishing village near Deva, 20 miles west of San Sebastian.

HENDAYE, France, Sept. 14.—Insurgent Spanish officials at Irun said last night the Fascists, on entering San Sebastian, found the Government forces had left between 50,000,000 and 60,000,000 pesetas in bank notes in vaults of a branch of the Bank of Spain.

(At the peseta's nominal quotation of 13.6 cents, the reported find would be worth between $6,800,000 and $8,160,000.)

The vaults of several private banks were dynamited by the Government forces, Fascist officials declared, but the branch of the Bank of Spain was not disturbed.

VESSEL CARRYING REFUGEES FROM SPAIN REACHES BOSTON

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—Among refugees from Spain arriving aboard the S. S. Excalibur of the American Export Lines today was Phillip Jordain Jr., 19 years old, Paris-born American, who told of bombs raining on the Washington Irving Hotel where he stayed in Granada.

Five children were killed as they played in the hotel lobby and he and a Spanish youth risked their lives to take an expectant mother to a hospital, he said.

Jordain, whose father is Spanish head of a large oil company, escaped by plane to Seville and by automobile to Gibraltar. He has never been in the United States before.

Bullets missed Mrs. Anna Allen, British-born Spanish subject, by inches, and shells exploded within a few feet of her, but she escaped unhurt, she told reporters. Her husband was an adviser to former King Alfonso. Prominent citizens of Barcelona, where she has lived for 25 years, disguised priests and nuns as servants to aid them in escaping, she related. She said many of the women fighting for the Government were Russians.

SPANISH REBELS ACCUSED OF STONING FRENCH FLAG

Cabinet Minister in Paris Makes Charge Against Gen. Mola's Troops.

He made the assertion in answering the accusation by Gen. Emilio Mola, Fascist commander, that French favoritism was responsible for suspension of railway service entering insurgent territory at Canfranc. Soldiers under Mola's command threatened railroad workers and their families, the Minister said, and then threw stones at the flag. Bedouce declared the service was halted because it "might not be possible to control the justifiable anger of the railmen."

MOROCCO TRIBESMEN REVOLT AGAINST SPANISH FASCISTS

Army Captain Killed, Four Men Wounded, Reports Say; Moslem Uprising Expected.

TANGIER, Internationalized Morocco, Sept. 14.—Gormara tribesmen in Spanish Morocco were reported today to have attacked an army post, killing a Captain and wounding four other men in a counter-revolt against Fascist authorities who seized power at the beginning of the Spanish civil war.

The report said several native Moslem leaders were thought to be plotting an uprising.

The frontier between French and Spanish Moroccan zones was closed to automobile traffic.

EARL BROWDER FINDS LOCKED HALL IN TAMPA

Communist Presidential Candidate Wires Protest to Roosevelt on "Lawlessness."

By the Associated Press.

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 14. — Earl Browder, Communist party candidate for President, protested to President Roosevelt yesterday, when a padlocked and chained meeting hall door forced cancelation of his speech here.

Browder said in a telegram to Mr. Roosevelt he was "illegally and forcefully prevented" from speaking "by lawless elements, who seized hall from its custodians and barred doors despite a legal contract."

Salvador Llosa, secretary of a lodge which meets at the United Secret Orders Hall here, said today a "misunderstanding" led him to lock the doors of the building where Browder was scheduled to speak.

Llosa explained he had not been informed of the meeting and followed his usual custom of padlocking the gate when he completed his secretarial work at the hall shortly after noon. He said he returned to the hall about 3:30 p. m. and removed the padlock when he learned that the auditorium had been rented for a meeting.

At that time, a number of persons had gathered in front of the place, but none went in. Several people shouted, "Don't enter the building," and "Everybody go home," Llosa added.

Browder will speak tomorrow night at Norfolk, Va.

Protest to White House Referred to Attorney-General.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The White House said today it had referred to the Attorney-General, for action, the protest of Earl Browder, Communist party candidate for President, that he was forced to cancel a speech at Tampa, Fla., when he found the hall padlocked and chained.

Police Detail Meets Browder's Train in Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 14.—A police detail met the train on which Earl Browder, Communist candidate for President, arrived in Atlanta Saturday night, but it had no occasion to carry out orders to arrest him for any "Communistic utterances."

Browder, who caught another train an hour and 20 minutes later for Tampa, Fla., said no speech had been scheduled for Atlanta. He also said he did not see any police during his stopover.

Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant said he sent four plain clothes men to the station on the strength of published reports that Browder would speak here.

"We don't like that stuff in Atlanta," said Chief Sturdivant. "We don't want any Communistic activities in this town. When the next Communist comes here, we will have some police down to meet him."

Communists to Start Move to Let Browder Speak in Tampa.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The National Campaign Committee of the Communist party announced today it intended to start a nation-wide campaign to permit Earl Browder, its candidate for the presidency, to speak in Tampa, Fla. Browder was locked out of a meeting hall yesterday in Tampa.

The committee said it had received the following telegram from Browder: "I am anxious to have all progressive citizens throughout the country protest to the Florida authorities against this infringement of constitutional rights and to make it possible for me to speak in the City Auditorium of Tampa before election day."

LANDON MAKES SHORT TALKS ON WAY HOME

Tells Nashua (N. H.) Crowd at Train That People Want "Relief Without Waste."

By the Associated Press.

NASHUA, N. H., Sept. 14.—Gov. Alf M. Landon opened his second day of New England campaigning today with the assertion that "the American people want relief administered without waste, incompetence, or partisanship."

The presidential candidate, returning to Kansas from Maine, spoke to a crowd gathered about his special train here.

Robert Burroughs, national committeeman, introduced the Governor to the throng held back from his train by officers. Gov. H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, who is running in tomorrow's primary against former Senator George Moses for the Republican senatorial nomination, was at Nashua to greet Landon.

The crowd cheered the candidate's appearance. A small elephant was led forward and the Governor fed it sugar lumps as the crowd laughed.

"I'm going to visit with you a little bit from my back porch here," the Kansan began. "I don't blame this administration for trying to hide behind a non-political campaign. There are still 11,000,000 unemployed."

Landon boarded his train at Nashua at 12:40 p. m. after a 35-mile automobile drive from the home of Robert B. Choate, Boston editor, in Danvers, Mass., where he spent the night. Choate and Lacy Haines, close political advisers, made the trip with the Kansan.

REBELS CAPTURE TWO SHIPS

Government Steamers Carrying Supplies Fall in Fascist Hands.

By the Associated Press.

BURGOS, Spain, Sept. 14.—Capture of two Spanish Government steamers bound for Gijon with supplies was reported yesterday at Fascist headquarters here.

The announcement said the steamer Alfonso Senra, with 350 tons of provisions, was forced to anchor at El Ferrol, in the northwest corner of Spain, while the steamer Ugondo was taken to Ribadeo, on the Bay of Biscay.

LOYALISTS TAKE SEVEN TOWNS IN TOLEDO REGION

INSURGENT ATTACK ALSO REPULSED

Leftists to Be Aided by 4000 Militiamen Who Evacuated Island of Majorca.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Sept. 14.—Government forces in the Talavera de la Reina sector repulsed a Fascist attack, the War Ministry said today, and maintained their positions in the battlefield west of Toledo.

Nine mortars, 10 machine guns and 60 rifles were reported captured by the Government militiamen following a skirmish with Fascists near Arenas de San Pedro.

The Government announced yesterday its forces had captured seven towns in the provinces of Madrid, Toledo and Avila, to the south and west of the capital.

The villages were taken, it was said, in an effort to encircle Fascist columns moving northeast toward the capital in the sector between Talvara de la Reina and Santa Olalla. Success of the operation would put Government troops in strategic position on both flanks of the rebels advancing on Madrid. The Loyalists are awaiting reinforcements from Catalonia—4000 militiamen who evacuated the Mediterranean island of Majorca.

Reports of Other Fighting.

Official reports said Government columns had occupied new positions in the Somos Mountains on the Guadarrama front northeast of the capital.

In the far northwestern provinces of Coruna and Lugo, the Government reported, armed civilians have concentrated in the mountains and have attacked insurgent positions.

Government troops, it was reported, renewed their march in the far northern Leon Province after a two-day rest, and drove back a Fascist column attacking Siguenza, north of the Guadarrama range.

On the southern front, Government troops were reported to have fortified positions captured in the Guadix sector.

More than 200 bombs were dropped on Northern Oviedo by the Government forces, the War Ministry said.

Truce Move at Alcazar.

Diplomats accredited to the Madrid Government sought to obtain the release of women and children held in the Alcazar at Toledo by Fascists who have been besieged for eight weeks by Government forces.

The diplomatic efforts were led by Aurelio Morgado, Chilean Ambassador. His colleagues included Edgardo Perez Quesada, Argentine Charge d'Affaires; Henry Helfant, Rumanian commercial attache, and the Rumanian Charge d'Affaires, Zanesco.

Morgado, after a conference with Premier Francisco Largo Caballero, appealed to the Fascists in the Alcazar to suspend hostilities for a discussion of the projected release. Their efforts, however, brought no reply from the fort and the diplomats left the vicinity.

The attempt was approved by the Premier, who told Morgado "if your intercession fails, the Government would be compelled to take energetic measures, much to its regret."

Discussion as to Portuguese.

Some extreme factions, notably the Syndicalists and the Revolutionary Socialists, expressed the opinion that a Portuguese revolt might lead ultimately to the establishment of a proletarian Iberian union linking both countries.

"Spain is incomplete without Portugal," Largo Caballero said, "and Portugal can say the same. Both countries have identical interests and identical problems.

"Working as one, they could easily solve their problems and protect their interests. Geographically, radically and economically they are already united.

"All that remains is to take the step which will unite them nationally and make the Iberian peninsula the powerful, free and prosperous state it can be."

Premier Talks to Basque.

The Premier conferred with the Basque Nationalist, Jose Aguirre, who, although named to represent his party in the new Cabinet appointed Sept. 4, has not yet obtained his party's permission to serve in it.

Jose Hernandez, Communist Minister of Education, took action to rid all universities, colleges and schools of teachers "who might use their positions to make enemies of the republic."

Hernandez named Famed Pablo Picasso director of the Prado Gallery and Ramon Menendez Pidal president of the Supreme Council of Education. Menendez Pidal was president of the Spanish Academy.

"The best brains among our intellectuals," Hernandez said, "must realize what their new duties are and come down from their heights and make contact with our people in arms."

the King should be attacked, McMahon said: "One of the reasons was that certain parts of the Empire would be handed over to other countries."

"And some colonies?" "Yes."

The prisoner said he had not disclosed the alleged plot at his earlier police court hearing because two men involved were in the courtroom.

"Had you ever any intention at all to alarm His Majesty?" "No, sir, rather to save him."

"Was that the only way you could see whereby you could protect him?" "Yes, they might have carried out the act themselves."

Cross-examined by Attorney General Sir Donald Somervell, McMahon exclaimed: "I am not here to crave for mercy. I don't care what you do with me. I am here merely to tell the truth."

He had hoped, he said, that they would be caught because of his silence.

First Approached Last Fall.

"Did they suggest they might be going to make a sudden coup somewhere," asked Defense Barrister Hutchinson. "Yes sir," was the reply.

Without telling why the so-called plot to kill the King at the trooping of the colors went unfulfilled, McMahon said he had been shadowed by the "plotters," who, he feared, might take matters into their own hands and assassinate the monarch.

The Attorney-General, after questioning McMahon minutely, ended his cross-examination with the remark:

"I am going to suggest this story about a plot is a product of your imagination."

"I wish to God it were!" said the prisoner.

The Two Charges Dismissed.

The two charges which the Judge ordered dismissed were the most serious, presenting near his Majesty a revolver with intent to break the public peace and being in possession of a revolver with intent to endanger public life.

Earlier, McMahon had pleaded not guilty to all three charges in a firm voice after waiting quietly in the dock while the Judge, the Undersheriff and two other court officials, all carrying flowers in accordance with ancient practice to "ward off plague," took their places on the bench under the golden hilted sword of justice, hanging on the oak-paneled wall of the ancient courtroom.

McMahon, wearing a black coat and gray-striped trousers, presented a sombre figure in comparison to the under sheriff, who wore medieval knee breeches and a frilled jacket and carried a glistening sword.

The prisoner, at the start, had clutched the edge of the dock nervously, his fingers twitching. But he regained his composure as the case proceeded and, when the Judge's instructions wiped out the most serious charges against him, smiled broadly at the jury and the 350 spectators.

His Previous Story.

At a hearing in Bow Street Police Station July 31, when McMahon was committed for trial, he denied any one had knocked the revolver from his hand.

"I could have escaped easily had I wanted to because the people did not realize what had happened," he said.

Weeping in the witness box at that hearing, McMahon testified he had planned to kill himself but, decided to throw his revolver toward the King to protest against "wrongful imprisonment." He drew a clenched fist across his eyes as re related how he had suffered as a result of "unjust" imprisonment on a criminal libel charge, later quashed.

McMahon always had carried a revolver for his own safety, he explained.

"I remember about the gun, I stooped down," he said. "I waited for a few moments and when the King was approaching, I threw the gun."

McMahon said his "unjust arrest resulted from two letters he had written to Scotland Yard relating to the conduct of two detective sergeants. McMahon said he was torn to distraction by his inability to arouse the home office to act in his behalf and blamed his plight on Sir John Simon, home secretary.

Testimony at Trial.

Lily Yeoman, one of the first witnesses today, was asked by defense counsel if McMahon could not have "fired directly and easily at the King," had he wished. "That is correct," Mrs. Yeoman replied.

Mary Blencowe, middle-aged bar maid at the Two Brewers pub, at Buckingham gate, had briefly recounted a conversation she had with McMahon across the bar, in which he said: "I am going away. You'll never see me again. Something dreadful has happened. You'll see it all in the newspapers." That was a few hours before the incident on Constitution Hill.

From John William Remes, night porter who testified he punched McMahon twice after the incident, the defense drew the admission he did not see the revolver until it was in the roadway. Remes declared McMahon "had his glasses on but I hit him all the same."

Samuel Edward Green, elderly retired newspaper man, who said he saw the pistol drop between the back feet of the King's horse, insisted under cross-examination "I could have roped him around the neck" and stopped McMahon if he had pointed the revolver. "He would have had to be very sharp" to have fired the weapon, Green said.

Man Who Hit Arm Testifies.

Special Constable Andrew Gordon Dick, who in private life is a traveling salesman, said he "unfortunately had been made the hero of the occasion." He testified that when the King approached, "I saw the prisoner's hand in the air. I just managed to knock his arm, then get hold of him."

Asked whether he saw anything thrown, Dick replied: "Yes, it looked like a black object in the air."

Rail Man, Who Was Shot, to Wed.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Harry E. Byram, retired head of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad, and Mrs. Frances Evans, obtained a marriage license today and will be married this afternoon at her home. Their marriage was postponed Sept. 4 when Byram of Westport, Conn., was shot. His son-in-law, Donald Burdick, was charged with the shooting.

INVESTMENT FIRM LOST HEAVILY ON SHARES IN BANK

Central Illinois Securities Corporation Paid $1,749,123 for Central Republic Stock Now Worthless.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Heavy losses incurred through purchase of bank stock were charged today by Central Illinois Securities Corporation today at the Securities Commission investigation of investment trusts.

David Schenker, commission counsel, said the corporation paid $1,749,133 for 8142 shares of the Central Republic Bank & Trust Co. stock, which the attorney said was now worthless. The Central Republic Bank, formed through merger of the Central Trust Co. of Illinois and the National Bank of the Republic, is in receivership.

The stock was acquired, Schenker asserted, through the Central Republic Co., a subsidiary of the bank, between Oct. 5, 1921, and Jan. 1, 1932.

Under Double Liability.

In addition, Schenker said, the trust was under double liability for $800,000 of stock it bought in the National Bank of the Republic. At the time of this transaction, he asserted, the market price was $1 to $32 per share.

Henry M. Dawes, chairman of the board of the trust when the transactions took place, was called as a witness. Despite Schenker's assertion that banking conditions were "not healthy" in 1931, Dawes reiterated his belief that confidence over the banking structure then being felt was attributable to a "feeling of hysteria prevailing at the time," and that the stocks of the banks were acquired as an investment.

"I was foolish enough to believe then that the hysteria was only temporary," Dawes said.

George Woodruff Testifies.

George Woodruff, who described himself as a "retired business man" and former chairman of the National Bank of the Republic, told the commission he did not participate in his bank's merger with the Central Illinois Trust Co.

He declared he held jointly with his wife more than 20,000 shares of his bank's stock, but had pledged this security with the First National Bank of Joliet as collateral for a loan. Later, he said, a national bank examiner had insisted the loan be liquidated for the protection of note holders, and 20,000 shares were subsequently sold to the Chicago, Ill., Securities Corporation for $[illegible]000. This was just enough to satisfy creditors' claims, Woodruff said.

He declared no provision was made for him in the new institution which was to be known as the Central Republic Bank & Trust Co. First, he said, his health was bad, and, secondly, some officers felt he was "pretty hard to get along with," Woodruff said. "I didn't like it as well," he added.

Testimony brought out that F. W. Woodruff, a brother of George, was president of the First National Bank of Joliet, which disposed of the [illegible]000 shares.

SECOND HUSBAND GIVES DEPOSITION FOR MRS. SCHAUB

Tells of Being on Same Boat With Her When She Was Mrs. C. H. Howard Jr. of St. Louis.

Denies He Left Bermuda in 1935 Before She Did Because Her Husband Was Coming to Visit Her.

How Mrs. Elvira Howard Schaub, former wife of Clarence H. Howard Jr., and Harry P. Schaub of Newark, N. J., her present husband, happened to be on the same ship on a trip to Bermuda in April, 1935, before Mrs. Howard's divorce from her first husband, is told in a deposition filed today in Circuit Judge Fred E. Mueller's court in Clayton.

The deposition was that of Schaub and was taken last Friday in Newark on behalf of Howard, who is defending an action by his former wife to have their divorce decree modified so that she may take their two young daughters to live with her in New Jersey.

At the same time depositions were filed on behalf of Mrs. Howard from nine persons living in New Jersey testifying to the good character of Schaub.

Sister "Arranged It All."

Asked whether it was "by accident or by arrangement" that he and the then Mrs. Howard were on the same ship, Schaub first said it was "by pre-arrangement with Mrs. Howard," and then said that Mrs. Howard's sister, Mrs. Eugene Carbough Jr., had "arranged it all."

Asked if he expected to see Mrs. Howard on the ship, he said he hoped to see both the sister and Mrs. Howard.

"It was immaterial to you, then, whether Mrs. Howard was on the boat?" he was asked. "It did not mean anything to me," he answered. "She was a married woman and I couldn't be interested." Schaub, too, was married at the time, but said he was in the midst of divorce proceedings. His wife obtained a divorce on the grounds of desertion in December of that year, he added.

Schaub said he saw Mrs. Howard on the boat frequently and that he ate several meals with her and a Mrs. Woods who accompanied Mrs. Howard. Their deck chairs were not close to each other, he said, and their cabins were on different levels. He said he saw Mrs. Howard at her cabin only at the end of the boat trip when he went down to help her with her baggage. He said he was not inside the cabin.

Asked if he saw Howard bid his wife good-by in New York, he said he did not. In Bermuda he stayed at the Bermudiana Hotel and Mrs. Howard was at the Princess. They took walks, bicycle rides, and went swimming together, he said, and he went over to her hotel for meals and she came to his. They only met in the public rooms of the hotels, he said, and neither was ever in the other's room.

"Did you leave Bermuda before Mrs. Howard because you knew Mr. Howard was coming?" he was asked. The answer was "no."

Saw Her Next in Newark.

He saw her next in the railroad station at Newark, he said, after she had telephoned him to be there as she came through on the train. Asked what he said to her then, Schaub replied: "I simply wanted to comfort her and assure her that I would be glad to do anything possible in view of the pending trouble that had arisen over some argument that Mr. Howard had with her in Bermuda."

Schaub was repeatedly asked by Howard's attorney whether he had on any occasion discussed with Mrs. Howard the possibility of a divorce or even her relations with her husband and in each case he answered that he had not.

He said he met her at Nantucket, Mass., in the summer of 1934 and saw her again in Philadelphia in January, 1935, when he had made an arrangement for a meeting with Mrs. Howard's sister. He admitted that he wrote to her at the home of friends of hers in St. Louis.

"Did you ever write to her under names other than her own?" he was asked. "It is quite possible that I may have used other names," he answered.

"Did you ever send her a telegram addressed to 'Alice Gray' and also signed 'Alice Gray'?" "That is quite possible."

Schaub said that he was an investment broker and that in 1935 his income was "between $5500 and $6000." In the five previous years it was less, he said.

Obtained $100,000 Alimony.

Mrs. Schaub obtained $100,000 alimony from Howard when they were divorced. At the trial she made reference in her testimony to the Bermuda trip as follows: "For the past three years my health has not been good and the doctor told me to get away from Mr. Howard for about a month out of every year. So I went to Bermuda with a woman friend and he came down there and on May 2 he quarreled and flew into a rage and told me I could leave and get a divorce or he would."

BAR ASSOCIATION TO MEET TONIGHT ON INDORSEMENTS

May Consider Proposal to Withdraw One for Re-election of Circuit Attorney.

The St. Louis Bar Association will meet at 8 o'clock tonight at Hotel Chase to consider a proposal that all its indorsements of candidates in the November election be withdrawn, and, if this proposal is not adopted, to vote on an earlier proposal to withdraw the indorsement of Franklin Miller, Democratic candidate for re-election as Circuit Attorney.

The association's present list of indorsements is: Circuit Judges, Arthur H. Bader, Frank Landwehr, Robert W. Hall, Granville Hogan, Republican incumbents; William B. Flynn, Democrat, and Clyde C. Beck, Republican incumbent; Judge Court of Criminal Correction, Joseph L. Simpson, Democrat; Circuit Attorney, Franklin Miller, Democrat, incumbent.

Ten members signed the petition for reconsideration of the Miller indorsement, because of their disapproval of Miller's course in investigating registration and election frauds exposed by the Post-Dispatch. Later, 12 members petitioned that all the indorsements be withdrawn, and the association's plan for an independent judicial ballot be abandoned, as they held the plan would "involve the Bar Association in political activity to an undesirable extent." A meeting of 40 lawyers, opposed to withdrawal of the Miller indorsement, was held Thursday.

NEW LABOR PARTY SEEKS INCORPORATION IN NEW YORK

Ticket Headed by President Roosevelt and Gov. Lehman Presented by Union Leaders.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 14.—The recently formed American Labor party, presenting a ticket in the November election headed by President Roosevelt and Gov. Lehman, filed incorporation papers with the Secretary of State of New York today.

The party gave as its purpose to seek "through legislation and collective bargaining to make every job the best that the human mind can devise as to physical conditions, human relations and wages," and "to secure and maintain the institution of democracy in our industrial and mercantile life in the public interest."

Included among its objectives are old age security, elimination of child labor, protection of women in industry and extension of collective bargaining for workers.

Luigi Antonini of Yonkers, first vice-president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, was listed as chairman of the party and one of the 21 incorporators. The other incorporators are members of various labor unions.

DETECTIVES SEEK MISSING HEAD OF CLEVELAND VICTIM

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 14. — The search for the missing head and arms of the Kingsbury Run torso turned today to gulleys along the small, oily stream. Meanwhile, detectives pointed to failure to find the head as further reason to believe that the same person had committed the other five similar decapitation killings here in the last year.

In four of the other cases the heads were found away from the bodies. The head of Mrs. Florence Polillo, the third of the victims and the only woman among the six, never has been located.

Thousands lined the banks yesterday as Richard Boyce, a diver, examined for five hours the rocky floor of Kingsbury Run. Boyce was unable to discover the severed parts in the murky stream.

Of an assortment of clothing found near the pool, a blue work shirt is the only piece which probably belonged to the victim, police said. The trunk and legs of the body, recovered in six sections, are without recognizable marks.

Daughter Tells Harrison (N. Y.) Police That Former Actress Shot Herself.

By the Associated Press.

PORT CHESTER, N., Y., Sept. 14.—Adele Blood Hope, 50 years old, former Broadway stage star, died today at the United Hospital here from a bullet wound which police said was self-inflicted.

Police from the nearby town of Harrison said they were called to her home on the grounds of the Westchester Country Club by the actress' 17-year-old daughter, Dawn Hope, who told them of her mother's act.

Mrs. Hope withdrew from the theater more than a decade ago to live in California after a successful run in "Every Woman."

This summer she was one of the directors of the Westchester Summer Theater in Bronxville, where Dawn Hope made her debut in a play written by her mother.

ST. LOUIS DAIRIES INCREASE MILK PAYMENTS TO FARMERS

Price for September Is $2.40 for 100 Pounds, a Rise of 5 Cents.

An increase of 5 cents on a hundred pounds of milk has been granted to dairy farmers in the St. Louis milkshed, making the price for September $2.40.

The agreement reached last week at a meeting between the Sanitary Milk Producers and the St. Louis distributers. The farmers said the advance was necessary because the drouth had increased the cost of feed. The price was increased from $2 to $2.20 on July 1 and to $2.35 on July 15.

WPA LABORER FOUND DEAD WITH SHOT WOUND BEHIND EAR

Zigmunt Rachupka, 40-year-old WPA laborer and World War veteran, was found shot to death today in a shanty at 3936 North Wharf street, where he resided alone. Neighbors found the body in bed, a shotgun wound behind the left ear and a shotgun lying alongside.

Two notes were found, one containing $148 and instructions for burial. Neighbors said he had been despondent. Surviving is a sister, Miss Anna Rachupka, 1802 Warren street.

TWO IDENTIFIED AT BLACK LEGION TRIAL BY WITNESS

Michael Layton Tells of Meeting Which Plotted Abduction of Poole, Later 'Executed.'

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 14.—Michael Layton, former city employe, testified today at the trial of 12 men charged with "executing" Charles A. Poole that he heard plans to abduct tthe WPA worker discussed at a Black Legion meeting a few hours before the shooting, May 12.

Layton said he recognized both "Colonel" Harvey Davis, one of the defendants, and Dayton Dean, the confessed "trigger man" in the shooting, at the meeting.

"Davis made a speech about a fellow who had been beating his wife," Layton testified. "He didn't mention him by name, but kept referring to him as 'that Catholic fellow.' Davis said the wife's father was 'one of the boys,' and shouted that the husband ought to be whipped.

"Davis asked for volunteers to go find this fellow. Dean and three others went out after him. I went home a few minutes after that."

Chester P. O'Hara, assistant Attorney-General, asked Layton if he was a member of the night riders' society.

"I had been sworn into the organization, but I didn't know its name," he said. "The first I heard of the name Black Legion was when I read it in the papers."

Two women, who testified regarding the false gossip against Poole who was not a Black Legion member, preceded Layton on the stand.

Mrs. Marcia Rushing, sister of Poole's widow, Rebecca, said John Bannerman, one of the defendants asked her in a conversation in a beer garden two weeks before the killing if it was true that her sister had married a Catholic and that he abused her.

Mrs. Lulu Mae Glascow, a friend of Mrs. Rushing, said she was present and that Mrs. Rushing replied to Bannerman that Poole had been beating his wife.

The State charges the defendants agreed at the Black Legion meeting to hang Poole, but that he was shot to death instead when the car containing the rope did not arrive at the point on Gulley road to which Poole had been taken by his captors.

FHA BEGINS WINTER CAMPAIGN FOR BUILDING MODERNIZATION

Effort to Stimulate Commercial and Residential Repairs to Last Eight Weeks.

An eight-week "Modernize for Winter" campaign, conducted under the direction of the Federal Housing Administration, opened today. The effort is made to stimulate repair and modernization of buildings both residential and commercial.

Information concerning the manner in which needed equipment may be purchased with loans from the FHA will be disseminated, it was said by newspaper and radio. Officers stated that 23,654 notes in this area for a total sum of $8,316,569 have been insured by the Government agency for the purpose of modernization and repair.

MURDER BY POLICE CHARGED

Man Died When Being Questioned by Pennsylvania Troopers.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 14.—Coroner S. A. Baltz filed informations today charging two State troopers and a county detective with murder in connection with the death of Frank C. Monoghan, 64-year-old hotel proprietor. Monoghan died while being questioned Saturday about the stabbing of County Detective John Wall, who is in serious condition.

The charges were made after physicians reported Monoghan's nose had been broken and that there were bruises on his back, arms and chest. The informations named Troopers Stacy Gunnerson and Anthony Sanute, and Detective Wilbert Minerd. Wall had arrested Monoghan on a charge of driving a car while intoxicated.

WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE

Roosevelt to Meet Insurance Company Executives Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—President Roosevelt has arranged a conference with a group of insurance company executives at the White House tomorrow.

White House officials would make no statement today as to the purpose of the meeting, nor would they comment on reports it was prompted by a speech by Col. Frank Knox, Republican vice-presidential candidate, at Allentown, Pa., Sept. 5. In that speech Knox said: "The present administration has been for four years giving lip service to security and welfare and today no life insurance policy is secure; no savings account is safe."

ONE KILLED, 5 ST. LOUISANS HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHESTER, Ill., Sept. 14.—Barney S. Caldwell, 71 years old, of Denver, Colo., was killed and five other persons were injured when an automobile plunged over an embankment eight miles south of here last night. The party was returning to St. Louis from a family reunion at Metropolis, Ill.

The injured are: William Caldwell, nephew of Barney Caldwell; James, son of William Caldwell; Mrs. Eugene Sutherland, Miss Effie Caldwell and Mrs. Mabel Phillips, daughters of William Caldwell, all of St. Louis. William Caldwell and his son were sent to St. John's Hospital in St. Louis. Mrs. Sutherland lives at 3347 Belt avenue and the others at 3944 St. Ferdinand street.

Mrs. Sutherland was driving the car. The accident occurred when she lost control in passing another automobile.

WOODRING CITES PRESIDENTS WHO ATTACKED CONSTITUTION

Names Outstanding Leaders in Criticism, but Says None Would Seek To Weaken Document.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 14. — Harry F. Woodring, acting Secretary of War, told a Veterans of Foreign Wars meeting last night that "scarcely a presidential election passes without some ardent orator proclaiming that the Constitution is endangered."

George Washington, Woodring said, was charged with violation of the Constitution's letter and spirit, and—

"As Washington was attacked, so was Jefferson. And so in turn were Jackson, Lincoln, Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson.

"It is significant that the abler the President, the more virulent the attack. It is significant, too, that in every instance the attack failed.

"The truth is and ever has been that no individual worthy of the office of President would seek to weaken or destroy the Constitution."

JOBLESS MAN ENDS HIS LIFE IN FATHER'S HARDWARE STORE

Marvin Stocker Found Shot to Death; Had Suffered Nervous Breakdown.

Marvin Stocker, 28-year-old unemployed clerk, was found dying from a bullet wound of the head, apparently self-inflicted, in the hardware store of his father, Louis, at 5848 Macklind avenue, at noon today, a few minutes after he had been left in charge of the store by his uncle, George Stocker. He died at 2 p. m. at City Hospital.

George Stocker said the younger man had entered the store a few minutes earlier and agreed to watch the place while the other went out to get mill tax receipts.

On his return George Stocker found Marvin lying in the back of the store. Nearby was a .38-caliber revolver which had been in a drawer. Stocker had recently suffered a nervous breakdown, relatives said.

GOV. PARK VISITS ST. LOUIS

Not Ready to Make Announcement About Election Board.

Gov. Guy B. Park, in St. Louis today, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that the principal purpose of his visit was to discuss with President Thomas Dysart of the Chamber of Commerce arrangements for the annual conference of Governors to be held in St. Louis in November.

The Governor said he was not ready to make any announcement concerning the St. Louis Election Board. He expected to return to Jefferson City this afternoon.

Found to Be Mrs. Alice Walsh; Kept at City Hospital.

A woman who was taken to City Hospital last night suffering from amnesia after she entered a tavern at 5100 Easton avenue carrying a carving knife, was identified today as Mrs. Alice Walsh, 27 years old, 4710 Maffitt avenue.

Identification was made by a brother-in-law, Mrs. Walsh, still unable to remember anything about herself, remained at the hospital for treatment.

YOUTH HELD IN DEATH OF WOMAN EMPLOYER

Los Angeles Police Find Endearing References to Her Secretary in Diary.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 14.—Notes from the diary of Mrs. Anna Powell Crookshank, 78 years old and wealthy, were read today by the police homicide squad investigating her death. While the county chemist conducted an examination to determine whether Mrs. Crookshank died of natural causes, as originally thought, her 21-year-old secretary, Thaddeus Pickens, was held as a material witness.

Passages in a black-kid notebook in Mrs. Crookshank's effects described her thoughts and hopes that "Thad" would never be guilty of forgetfulness toward her.

Written while Pickens was visiting Chicago on an excursion with Mrs. Crookshank's personal chauffeur, one passage, detectives said, read:

"Precious, do not let me have a moment's suspicion of infidelity. Spare me! Lost confidence can never be regained. You will not take my sunshine away from me—you could not be that cruel to me. If I just knew where you were! I wonder if you are as lonesome as I am. Can I wait another week? I'll never let you go so far away again . . . hear me?"

At Pickens' apartment, where he painted, modeled in clay and wrote poetry while he received $140 a month from Mrs. Crookshank, detectives said they found two affectionate verses attributed to Pickens' pen.

Introductory lines of one were:

"All that I ask is that you will be true
"And to bear with me and laugh my sins away,
"To fancy I am here for but today
"And that tomorrow I must part from you."

Detectives said they were told by Pickens that Mrs. Crookshank had changed her will this year to give him 75 per cent of her estate, estimated at $100,000, for which her 85-year-old husband, David Crookshank, holds special letters of administration.

Under former provisions, the will had divided her wealth among 10 friends, each of whom had been left a sealed envelope, later discovered empty, with the seals broken.

Mrs. Crookshank died Sept. 7, four days after she became ill at a mountain cabin while on a trip with Pickens. An attending physician gave pneumonia as the cause.

Last Friday, following anonymous telephone calls and a request from Crookshank, the police investigation was opened. Crookshank was denied a divorce several months ago.

FOUND ROBBED AND INJURED

Grocer Unconscious in Granite City Hospital.

James L. Barr, 56 years old, a grocer of Venice, is unconscious at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Granite City, suffering from a skull injury received Saturday night. He was found lying on a sidewalk on State street, Madison.

He had left home at 10 o'clock with about $40 in his pockets to get a glass of beer at a tavern. When he was found, his pockets were turned inside out and the money was gone.

AUTO DRIVER'S NECK BROKEN

jurors in his more formal written instructions, "and you will have probably more work than the ordinary grand jury, inasmuch as it has been maintained through the public press that there have been a great many election irregularities.

"It will be your duty to go into this question seriously and thoroughly, to determine whether or not our election laws have been in any way violated; and if you should find that they have been, it will be your duty to indict such person or persons as you may find guilty of such violation, and this you will do with absolute disregard as to who those persons, or person, may be, and without fear or favor. We must have honest and fair elections, and our election laws must be upheld, regardless of consequences.

May Open Ballot Boxes.

"Under a recent Supreme Court decision, you have the right, if you so desire, to open the ballot boxes and examine the ballots to ascertain whether election frauds have been committed within the period of statutory limitation. Your minds should be impressed with the solemnity of your duties, which are of the highest importance in the enforcement of the laws and the administration of justice in this city.

"You are earnestly urged, therefore, to devote the most serious deliberation to the matters brought before you, and employ therein the most intelligent and conscientious effort of which you are capable."

The grand jury was then instructed as to the distinction between felony and misdemeanor charges, on both of which it has the power to vote indictments.

The term of the September grand jury continues until the December grand jury is impaneled, early in that month.

IRVING G. THALBERG, MOVIE PRODUCER, DIES

Husband of Norma Shearer Succumbs to Pneumonia at Age of 37.

By the Associated Press.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Sept. 14. —Irving G. Thalberg, 37 years old, motion picture producer and husband of Norma Shearer, actress, died at 10:26 a. m. today at his beach home near here.

His wife and his parents were present when the end came.

Lobar pneumonia was given as the cause of death by Dr. Phillip Newmark. He said Thalberg contracted a slight cold while on vacation at Del Monte a week ago, and that his condition became steadily worse in the last two days.

Thalberg recently had returned to Hollywood from Germany where he went for treatment for heart disease.

Born in Brooklyn, May 30, 1899, he was educated in public and private schools there.

Thalberg and Miss Shearer were married in 1928. They have two children, a boy, Irving Jr., 6, and a daughter, Katherine, 1.

Thalberg produced some of Hollywood's most lavish and artistic successes, including "Riptide," "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" and "Mutiny on the Bounty." His latest picture, which opened recently in New York, is "Romeo and Juliet," in which Miss Shearer plays Juliet.

Thalberg was credited with being the directing genius of his wife's movie career.

Among the stars he led from comparative obscurity to first rank were John Gilbert, Greta Garbo, Lon Chaney, Ramon Novarro, Robert Montgomery and Clark Gable.

In his early producing days he directed such movies as "The Big Parade" and "Ben Hur."

GROSS FRAUD IN FOUR PRECINCTS OF HANNEGAN'S HOME WARD

First Exhaustive Canvass Shows 321 "No" Votes Cast, But Only 52 Were Recorded

Some Persons Say They Were Opposed to Bonds, But Didn't Vote Because They Thought Ballots Wouldn't Be Counted.

me, he ignored me completely and passed the ballots to another man.

"During the counting there were a number of men whom I judged to be Democratic ward or precinct workers around, helping count. They said, 'This bond issue has got to go over,' and spoke of 'orders from headquarters.'

"It was my first experience as an election judge, and I wouldn't do it again."

"What's the Use of Voting?"

Not infrequently reporters who made the canvass encountered persons who opposed the bond issue, but said they had not voted because they thought their votes would not be counted, anyway.

One of these was Bessie Farley, 4238 Labadie avenue. "We didn't vote because we had been told by a person who should know that even if we did vote 'no' our ballots would not be counted," she said. "What's the use of trying to beat that set-up?"

16 Precincts Returned Same Vote on Two Propositions.

In 16 of the Twenty-first Ward's 21 precincts, including the five canvassed by the Post-Dispatch, the recorded vote on the riverfront bond issue and on the other bond item, to provide new railroad approaches for the Municipal Bridge, was identical. Hannegan's own precinct, the seventeenth, was one of these voting, 239 to 120, in favor of both propositions.

Hannegan has been a close ally of Mayor Dickmann throughout the present administration. When a vacancy occurred on the Democratic City Committee in April, 1933, because of the election of Michael J. Scott as Alderman for the Twenty-first Ward, Hannegan was appointed by Gov. Park to take Scott's place on the committee.

The following August, with the Mayor's support, Hannegan was named chairman of the committee. At the last session of the Legislature he was employed for $3000 and an expense allowance not to exceed $100 a week, to be the city's lobbyist at Jefferson City. The appointment was made by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, of which the Mayor, President William L. Mason of the Board of Aldermen and Comptroller Louis Nolte are members.

When the Democratic factional fight between the Dickmann-Kinney and Igoe-Miller groups came to a head, the Dickmann opponents centered their efforts on ouster of Hannegan as chairman of the City Committee and succeeded in accomplishing that in June, 1935.

Shooting at City Hall.

The bitterness of that contest had its reflection in a sensational shooting affray at the City Hall the following September when James O. Stubbs, then City Market Master, and Lawrence J. Fontana, then a State Representative, with two companions, both aligned, as they were, with the Dickmann faction, went to the office of Recorder of Deeds John P. English, who had succeeded Hannegan as chairman of the City Committee, to demand redress for a grievance held by Fontana. Shotes were fired by Fontana and Stubbs and by Gregory Moore, Chief Deputy Recorder of Deeds. Fontana was wounded four times in the legs, a bullet grazed Stubbs' forehead, and two policemen were wounded slightly. Recorder English was not wounded.

Following the primary election last month, at which the Dickmann forces, after a bitter fight, regained control of the City Committee, English protested to Gov. Park that the Election Board had favored the Dickmann group in appointing precinct election officials.

It is known that before the primary the Governor made it clear to the Election Board that the Dickmann faction was to be allowed to recommend precinct officials in those wards where both members of the City Committee were among its supporters; the Igoe faction was to have the same privilege in the wards where both City Committee members were on its side; and in those wards where the Committeeman and Committeewoman were on opposite sides there was to be an equal division of appointments according to their recommendations.

Again Elected Chairman.

The Dickmann group, however, got more than its share of the appointments, and in the primary won control of the committee by a secure margin. Promptly the committee again elected Hannegan its chairman.

It will be recalled that in the recanvass just before the Aug. 4 primary, special deputy election commissioners reported "not found" for 1666 registrants in Hannegan's ward. This was 12 per cent of the registration, 13,496.

Of those reported "not found," nine were registered from a two-family flat at 4143A San Francisco avenue, where Hannegan resides on the upper floor. Two of the nine later established their qualification as voters and cast ballots in the primary; the others did not vote. Among those who did not vote were Dan P. Reardon and his wife, who live in Normandy. Reardon told the Post-Dispatch Hannegan's home was the "votin address" of himself and his wife in the city, but when reminded that he and his wife had registered in the county in June, he explained that he had meant that the San Francisco address was their "voting address" until they registered in the county. He added that he had neglected to tell Hannegan about this so that their names could be scratched from the city voters' list.

Only 13 Recorded, But 112 Voted Against Bonds in Fourth Precinct

In the Fourth Precinct of the Twenty-first Ward, the polling place for which was at 3701 Kossuth avenue, the recorded vote was 468 to 13 in favor of the bonds. There, a Post-Dispatch reporter obtained affidavits from 101 voters, and statements from 11 others who preferred not to sign affidavits that their votes had been "no." In this precinct the registrations totaled 689, and the reporter was able to interview 414 voters, or 64 per cent of the registration.

The precinct, bounded by Kossuth, Prairie, Obear and Carter avenues, is a neighborhood of small homes, most of which are owned by their occupants.

Notice to Voters

AS stated elsewhere, the Post-Dispatch is investigating the river front Jefferson Memorial bond issue election which was held in September last year to determine how much fraudulent voting there was.

A detailed report of the vote by precincts, which was made by the judges of election in the 669 precincts to the Election Commissioners, was published last Tuesday for the first time.

It is believed that voters scrutinizing the many lopsided records may discover evidence of fraud, or circumstances presumptive of the same, in precincts with which they are familiar.

Anyone making such discoveries who cares to aid in the investigation is invited to communicate with the City Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

317 to 10 for Bonds in Ninth But 55 Swear They Voted No

In the Ninth precinct, the polling place for which was at 3027 North Vandeventer avenue, the recorded vote was 317 to 10 in favor of the bonds, but the Post-Dispatch obtained affidavits from 55 persons and statements from 12 others who preferred not to sign affidavits that their votes had been "no." Registration at the time of the election was 518, and the reporter was able to interview 397 of those registered, or 76 per cent.

The precinct is bounded by Labadie, Warne, Ashland and Vandeventer avenues. Nearly all of its residents own their own homes. The reporter found many among them had been angered by discovery of fraud in the election. Many said, "I voted for the bonds then, but I wouldn't if they were to be voted on again." Another comment frequently heard was: "What, only 10 votes against the bonds in this precinct? Why, I know of 25 myself."

Eight persons who signed affidavits that they voted "no" asked that their names be withheld from publication. The other 47 voters who signed affidavits were:

Henry H. von Der Ahe, 3910A Ashland avenue.
R. W. Hansmann, 3938 Ashland avenue.

Five voters who said they voted against the bond issue but preferred not to sign affidavits so stating, also asked that their names be withheld from publication. The other seven who voted "no" on the riverfront bonds and who did not sign affidavits were:

Mary C. Sullivan, 3934A Ashland avenue.
Oliver C. Allan, 3900 Sullivan avenue.
William F. Gatzke, 3938 Sullivan avenue.
Edna Dunhaupt, 3911 Greer avenue.

300 to 15 Count in Twenty-First With 84 Affidavits of 'No' Votes

In the Twenty-first precinct, the polling place for which was at 4358 Lee avenue, the recorded vote was 300 to 15 in favor of the bonds. In this precinct the Post-Dispatch obtained affidavits from 84 persons that they had voted "no" and 20 others made the same statement, but preferred not to sign affidavits.

The precinct is bounded by Farlin, Newstead and Clarence avenues and Penrose street. Most of the residents are property owners, many of whom opposed the bond issue because they feared it would increase taxes. On Kossuth avenue the reporter who made the canvass found 15 voters in succession who had voted against the bonds—their number equaling the total recorded "no" vote for the precinct.

Eighty-four voters who made affidavits that they had voted "no" were:

R. Moenster, 4425 Farlin (West).
Wiliam F. Moenster, 4425 Farlin (West).

Vote of 401 to 14 in Twelfth Although 38 Say They Voted No

In the Twelfth Precinct, the polling place for which was at 4217 St. Louis avenue, the recorded vote was 401 to 14 in favor of the bonds. From 30 persons the Post-Dispatch obtained affidavits that they had voted "no" and 8 others made that statement, but preferred not to sign affidavits. The reporter was able to reach 450 of the 677 who were registered voters at the time of the election, or 66 per cent.

The precinct is bounded by St. Louis, Newstead and Labadie avenues, and Sarah street. The population in the western half is predominantly Negro. In the eastern half there are flats and some homes owned by the occupants.

The same evidence of padded registration found in other precincts was in evidence in this one. For example, when asked if Corinne Welsch still lived at 4355 St. Louis avenue, Mrs. Bertha Hammacher of that address replied, "No, she doesn't. She has been carried on this list for several years, although I told Election Board canvassers twice that she had moved."

Of the 30 residents who signed affidavits that they voted "no," four asked that their names be withheld. The others were:

Rebecca Moore, 4230 Labadie avenue.
Mary Hoskins, 4218 West Labadie avenue.
Charles Spies, 4242A Labadie avenue.
Isabella Stephenson, 2916 North Whittier street.

George Brueggeman, 4208A Labadie avenue.

The eight persons who said they had voted "no" but preferred not to sign affidavits also asked that their names be withheld.

Precinct officials, according to Election Board records, were: William Vanuyse, 4268 Labadie avenue, and Hugh J. Foristal, 4141A Labadie, Democratic judges; Roy C. Buchbach, 3816A Ashland avenue, and Everett H. Wilkins, 4237 St. Louis avenue, Republican judges; Arthur P. Walsh, 4239A St. Louis, Democratic clerk, and Joseph M. Linhardt, 4241 Athlone avenue, Republican clerk.

2227 MADISON OCCUPIED

An erroneous statement that the building at 2227 Madison street was vacant before the riverfront bond issue election of a year ago, although seven persons were registered from that address at the time of the election, was published last Friday. Leo Kunkel, a clerk, informed the Post-Dispatch today that he and his family have resided at that address for about eight years.

Room Renting Without Delay....

No long waits to find suitable rooms or board—when they are wanted. Post-Dispatch readers look to the classified columns every day for a list of attractive vacancies offering selections in all parts of St. Louis — and they find satisfactory quarters!

CARNEGIE-ILLINOIS STEEL EXECUTIVES MEET EMPLOYES

Representatives of 26,000 Sheet and Tin Plate Workers to Present Requests to Officers.

WAGE INCREASE PLEA ALREADY REJECTED

Conference Called After Insurgents' Move to Swing Men Under New Organizing Committee.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 14.—Thirty five delegates representing 26,000 sheet and tin plate mill workers of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation began a three-day conference today during which they will meet company executives and discuss any grievances.

A spokesman for the company said superintendents of the 12 plants would confer with the men, probably Wednesday afternoon, regarding various requests.

A wage increase, one of the matters which had been slated for discussion, already has been rejected by Benjamin F. Fairless, president of Carnegie-Illinois, the largest subsidiary of United States Steel Corporation.

Three Requests by Employes.

The delegates, three from each of the sheet and tin plate plants, are expected to request:

(1) Recognition of a standing general committee to represent all the mills, augmenting the present committee at each plant.

(2) Revision of the group insurance plan to favor lower paid workers.

(3) Liberalization of the pension plan.

Ross Leffler, director of personnel, arranged the conference several weeks ago after one group of employe representatives broke away from the regular organization and formed a "Pittsburgh-Chicago Council" whose avowed purpose is to swing the company's 86,000 wage earners, the total in all of its mills, under the banner of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee. This insurgent group, at a meeting here last week failed to get an audience with company officers. At least two of the delegates at today's meeting, attended the insurgent meeting.

Statement by Company Head.

President Fairless of Carnegie-Illinois in denying the wage request, said a 10 per cent increase would mean about $25,000,000, an outlay which he said the corporation's net profits of $16,238,000 for the first six months of 1936 would not warrant. He asserted, "The management is sympathetic with the payment of highest wages which the successful operations of the business will permit. It is unable, however, to see at this time how any increase may be granted without jeopardizing the successful operation of business."

Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, declared yesterday the Fairless statement was made for the purpose of "creating the impression the force of our organization drive is not being felt by the steel companies." He added:

"It is being felt for we have made tremendous strides in two and one-half months . . . We have enrolled countless thousands of members and have brought more than 50 per cent of the company union members also over to our side."

Employes said on Sept. 1, the steel corporation cut the cost of insurance from 75 cents a thousand monthly to 60 cents, and changed the plan so that pensioned employes lost their insurance and a disability clause was removed.

The workers last week requested a minimum of $60 a month for pensioned employes and a maximum of $100. They also requested a 20 per cent wage increase.

ICKES' FOSTER SON AGAIN REPORTED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Four in Another Car Hurt in Collision in Boston; Delay in Reporting.

By the Associated Press.

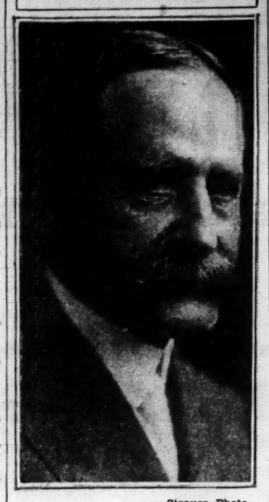

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—John F. Kerins, 21 years old, reported to police yesterday that four persons were injured Saturday when his automobile collided with one driven by Robert H. Ickes, 21, foster son of Secretary of the Interior Ickes.

Kerins said Henry Jenkins, 20; Evelyn Burns, 20, and Mildred Munsiato, 20, of Cambridge, and Gertrude Hagin, 18, of Malden suffered from shock. Police Captain James Daley ordered an investigation.

Recently Ickes was acquitted of operating a car while under the influence of liquor after his car was involved in a minor collision. He is employed on a PWA project as a clerk.

Kerins said he delayed filing the accident report because he did not learn of the injury to the occupants of his car until yesterday. Kerins said a coupe struck his machine on the right rear fender, causing his car to skid.

JAMES YEATMAN PLAYER

J. Y. PLAYER, 58 YEARS IN PUBLIC LIFE, DIES

Former School Board Employe and Election Commissioner Succumbs at 85.

James Yeatman Player, who had been in public service since 1875, when he entered employ of the Board of Education, almost continuously until 1933, when he retired from the Board of Election Commissioners, died of heart disease yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. Preston Graves of Florissant.

After 22 years withthe Board of Education, Mr. Player was City Comptroller for three terms and, later, a member of the State Tax Commission and for three terms member of the Election Board.

Born in Nashville, Tenn., 85 years ago today, Mr. Player was educated in the East and came here as a young man, getting a job in a bank. Then he went to Philadelphia, remaining for three years and returning here in 1875.

He held various positions with the Board of Education, including those of secretary to the superintendent and secretary-treasurer of the board, until 1897, when he entered the real estate business. He was elected Comptroller on the Democratic ticket in 1901 when Rolla Wells became Mayor. He was re-elected in 1905 and again in 1913. In 1917 he was appointed a member of the State Tax Commission by Gov. Frederick D. Gardner. He served for four years.

Mr. Player's first appointment to the Election Board was by Gov. Arthur M. Hyde in February, 1921. He was reappointed four years later by Gov. Sam A. Baker and again in 1929 by Gov. Henry S. Caulfield. After his retirement in 1933 he made his home with Mrs. Graves. His wife, Mrs. Susan Polk Player, died in 1931. He was a nephew of the late James E. Yeatman, for whom Yeatman High School was named.

Surviving him, in addition to Mrs. Graves, are three sons, George P. Player of Westphalia, Mo., James Y. Player Jr. of New York and T. T. Player of Houston, Tex., and another daughter, Miss Sally Player of Florissant.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. at Wagoner's Chapel, 3621 Olive street, followed by private burial in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

ENVOY TO POLAND SAYS LANDON IS WEAK ON FOREIGN POLICY

John Cudahy Declares "Only Miracle Can Prevent General Conflict in Europe."

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—John Cudahy, United States Ambassador to Poland, declared yesterday that "only a miracle can prevent a general conflict" in Europe. He addressed a large gathering, mostly Polish-Americans, in Columbus Stadium, South Boston.

The most important question here, he said, is "what will be the attitude of this country in the event of another European war which will certainly occur during the administration of the next President."

President Roosevelt, he declared, had answered "this question by enacting legislation which prevents the shipments of arms and ammunition or the granting of loans to warring nations."

"What if Gov. Landon should be the next President? Will he approve this legislation and cause it to be re-enacted when it expires in May, 1937?" Cudahy asked. "We don't know. We have no means of knowing for he has said nothing on foreign policy except generalities which mean nothing."

Expelled Reporter Leaves Italy.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 14.—Henry Gorrell, acting chief of bureau of the United Press in Rome who was ordered by the Italian Government to leave the country, departed last night for Paris by train. Two officials accompanied him to the frontier. His expulsion was ordered as the result of a news story which stated high Fascist officials had been arrested on accusation of Communist activities. The report was denied officially.

MAGNUS JOHNSON, EX-SENATOR OF MINNESOTA, DIES

IMMIGRATED FROM SWEDEN IN 1890'S

By the Associated Press.

LITCHFIELD, Minn., Sept. 14.—Magnus Johnson, a Swedish immigrant to the Northwest in the '90s, who became a United States Congressman and Senator, died early yesterday. He would have been 75 years old next Saturday.

Stricken with pneumonia Aug. 23, Mr. Johnson was taken to a hospital here from his home in Kimball. He rallied last week until Friday, when his condition took a sudden turn for the worse.

Heart stimulants were administered and he was placed under an oxygen tent, but lapsed into unconsciousness last night and died at 3:27 a. m. Members of his family, including the widow, were at the bedside.

Joined Farmer-Labor Movement.

Soon after he established a homestead in Meeker County, Minn., after working several years as a Wisconsin lumberjack, Mr. Johnson interested himself in co-operatives and the Farmer-Labor movement.

He served in both houses of the Minneosta Legislature and in 1923 was elected to the United States Senate to fill out the unexpired term of the late Knute Nelson.

When the former Senator was defeated for the governorship of Minnesota in 1926 by Theodore Christianson, the Republican senatorial candidate, he returned to his farm. The Farmer-Laborite, known throughout the State for his picturesque language and use of the exclamation, "Fy golly," returned to the political wars in 1932.

Running for Congress against 26 others in a race in which nine "at large" seats were to be filled, Johnson was first with 388,616 votes. As a Representative he supported President Roosevelt and voted for most New Deal measures.

He was defeated for re-election in 1934 by Harold Knutson, and in the primary last June lost the Farmer-Labor gubernatorial nomination to Senator Elmer Benson.

Elected to Senate in 1923.

Johnson attracted nation-wide attention, when in 1923 as a dirt farmer he was elected to the United States Senate. He engaged in milking and woodchopping contests with Washington's bigwigs, including Secretary of Agriculture Henry C. Wallace, father of the present Secretary.

Son of a boat captain, Magnus Johnson was born in Varmland, Sweden, Sept. 19, 1871. In his teens he was a sailor, then became a glass blower.

It was in his homeland that he became interested in the political labor movement.

Nineteen years old when he arrived in America, he went to Wisconsin and worked as a lumberjack.

In 1894 he became a homesteader in Meeker County, Minnesota. Years of hard work provided him one of the best farms in the county. Johnson became a citizen in 1899.

During his early years in Minnesota Mr. Johnson held many county and township offices, and i 1914 Meeker County sent him to the Legislature as a Representative.

That was the beginning of a long career in State and national politics.

LIBERTY LEAGUE CHARGES ROOSEVELT AVOIDS TEST

Says He Still Hopes to Encroach on States' Rights by Judicial Interpretation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14. — Attributing a will "to destroy local self-government" to the New Deal, the American Liberty League yesterday made public an analysis of recent laws which it said showed encroachment on states' rights.

"The Roosevelt administration," it said, "unwilling to test the issue through the normal method of amendment to the Constitution, clings to the hope that the desired end will be achieved by the process of judicial interpretation.

"At stake in the 1936 election is the appointment of new members of the Supreme Court to fill vacancies believed certain to occur during the next presidential term, or perhaps the appointment of additional members to accomplish a change of attitude."

Monolith in Utah Falls 1000 Feet.

By the Associated Press.

GREEN RIVER, Utah, Sept. 14. —A 50-foot monolith fell 1000 feet from Gunnison Butte to the valley floor near here last week. The tall rock spire crashed without warning, with a roar that was heard at several nearby ranches.

ONE ARMY PROPOSED FOR LITTLE ENTENTE

Yugoslavia Czechoslovakia and Rumania Consider Co-operative Military Plan.

By the Associated Press.

BRATISLAVA, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 14.—The Little Entente Council considered a co-operative armament plan yesterday, which would make the three-Power group of Yugoslavia, Czechslovakia and Rumania one of Europe's more powerful military forces. The suggestions attributed to Premier Milan Hodza of Czechoslovakia was that each should contribute material and workmanship so individual armies might act as units of the whole group in an emergency.

The proposal was said to be the bloc's answer to the rearmament of its neighbors, particularly Italy and Germany.

A member of the Yugoslav delegation said the plan contemplated co-operation under three headings: Exchange of raw materials for munitions; erection of munitions factories at many places in the three states; exchange of farm products suitable for canning to create a food reserve.

It was suggested Rumania might provide petroleum, while all the Yugoslav mines could produce more than enough metal. Czechslovakia, it was said, could contribute technical skill and factories.

Advocates of the plan pointed out the armies of the three countries could be equipped on a co-operative basis, with virtually no exchange of money, and the states would be virtually independent of other nations.

The delegates made a great show of the friendly spirit of the meetings, and did everything possible to discount numerous reports that private quarrels had arisen.

To create a picture of complete solidarity the conference gave tentative approval for a plan for uniform postage stamps to be used by the three nations.

'PAWNEE BILL' INJURED

Wife Also Hurt in Collision Soon After 50th Wedding Anniversary.

By the Associated Press.

PAWNEE, Ok., Sept. 14. — Maj. Gordon W. Lillie (Pawnee Bill), 76 years old, "Wild West" showman, and Mrs. Lillie were injured last night in a crash of the gold-colored automobile they received on their recent golden wedding anniversary.

With Maj. Lillie at the wheel, the car collided with one driven by Leslie Adair, a Negro, near Cleveland, Ok. Physicians said Pawnee Bill suffered a severe scalp wound, Mrs. Lillie a fractured jaw and a fractured right knee. Mrs. Leslie, a former star of her husband's shows, and Maj. Lillie observed the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage two weeks ago at Taos, N. M.

MIGRATION FROM DROUTH AREA TO IRRIGATED LANDS OF WEST

Vehicles Piled With Household Goods Enter Eastern Washington; Many Arrive by Train.

By the Associated Press.

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 14.—Along the old Oregon Trail, an emigrant tide is moving.

From all irrigated centers of Eastern Washington come reports of family vehicles piled high with household goods. At Pasco, a truck rolled into town last night with 10 persons sleeping on cots on the truck bed.

Spokane, Walla Walla, Yakima and Wenatchee noted a large influx of new families.

The emigrant surge followed the prediction of Gerald Beckman, assistant to the United States Commissioner of Indian Affairs, that "the Northwest will have a problem this fall taking care of hundreds of families leaving drouth areas for new homes."

Northern Pacific Railway executives here reported arrival of 30 "emigrant cars" in the last month, more than veteran railroaders could remember in any similar period. The emigrant cars carry cows, horses, chickens, farm machinery and provisions.

Senator Guffey Says Charge "Is Too Foolish to Consider."

By the Associated Press.

POTTSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 14.—United States Senator Joseph F. Guffey (Dem.), Pennsylvania, characterized as "too foolish to consider," a charge that he used his franking privilege to send political matter through the mails.

Postoffice officials said Saturday in Washington they were investigating the charge, made by George W. Welsh of Detroit, opponent of Frank Murphy for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Michigan.

DRIVER KILLED WHEN HIS TRUCK UPSETS IN DITCH

ANOTHER FATALITY IN FAIRMONT CITY

Joseph Terrise, 74, Knocked Down by Auto — Baby Suffers Broken Leg in East St. Louis.

Theodore Baum, 24-year-old milk truck driver of Lebanon, Ill., was killed yesterday when his truck overturned in a ditch when it went off Highway 50 about two miles east of O'Fallon. Description of the accident by occupants of car behind him, indicated that he fell asleep or became ill at the wheel.

The driver had collected milk from farmers along the route and was continuing his journey toward St. Louis when the accident occurred, about 9 a. m. W. H. White of St. Louis, in the automobile behind him saw the truck gradually veer to the shoulder at the side of the highway and then plunge into the ditch.

The trailer of the truck landed on the cab where Baum sat. His head was crushed and he was dead when White and others who came to his aid were able to take his body from the wreckage.

Fairmont City Man, 74, Is Killed When Struck by Auto.

Joseph Terrise, 74, 2822 North Forty-fourth street, Fairmont City, was killed last night, when he was struck by an automobile while crossing the newly widened United States Highway No. 40 at Forty-third street in Fairmont City.

He had just returned from the ceremonies at Monks' Mound, at which the four-lane highway, which runs between East St. Louis and Collinsville, was dedicated with a speech by Gov. Henry Horner. He had taken a bus back and was walking across the road after having alighted when he was struck. A rear wheel of the car passed over him and he died of a fractured skull.

The driver of the car said he was Neil Mayhew of Fort Wayne, Ind., who was driving with his wife to St. Louis to live. He was held pending an inquest.

Edward Dunham, 2, suffered a fractured left leg yesterday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile while crossing the street in front of his home, 748 North Fifty-ninth street, East St. Louis. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Dunham. The driver of the car said she was Mrs. Rosalyn Hauss, 34, Belleville. The child was taken to St. Mary's Hospital.

EDWIN R. THOMAS, PIONEER AUTO MANUFACTURER DIES

Made Thomas Flyer That Covered 13,341 Miles of Dirt Road and Trail in 1908 Race.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Edwin Ross Thomas, 85 years old, of Miami Beach, Fla., pioneer automobile manufacturer, died yesterday. He was making his annual visit to a brother, Fred W. Thomas.

In 1908 his Thomas Flyer covered 13,341 miles of dirt road and trail in an "around the world" endurance race starting from Times Square, New York City, and was the only car to finish. Five other entries, all foreign, quit early.

He was born in Webster, Pa., and lived as a youth in Evansville, Ind. In 1895, Mr. Thomas and A. H. Lozier of Toronto, Ontario, began the manufacture of bicycles and later a few automobiles in Canada. In 1899 he was credited with making the first practical motor bicycle for road use. He came to Buffalo in 1900 and made the "Thomas" until 1911, when he retired from active business.

REPUBLICANS AGAIN CHARGE 'LOADING OF WPA ROLLS'

Relief Beneficiaries Increased to Influence Votes, G. O. P. Statement Declares.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.— The Republican National Committee said last night that the latest WPA report bore out charges that the administration was "loading WPA relief rolls on the eve of the forthcoming national election, in an attempt to influence votes."

The committee statement said: "The New Deal has announced all along that its policy would be to reduce relief rolls with improved business conditions, but the WPA report shows that their practice has been just to the contrary.

"On Feb. 28, 1936, 3,269,000 were on the rolls. Since that time, the number has steadily increased, and on July 31 was 3,297,000."

Influenza in Philippines.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, Sept. 14.—A serious influenza epidemic has developed on Babuyan Island at the extreme northern end of the Philippine Archipelago, with deaths averaging four daily.

SEC BRIEF IN TEST OF HOLDING FIRM ACT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The first major test to determine the constitutionality of the holding company act got under way today when the Securities and Exchange Commission filed its brief against the Electric Bond & Share Co. in the Southern District Federal Court of New York.

The company, which serves 10 per cent of all the electricity buyers in the United States, declined to register under the holding company act, and challenged its constitutionality. Suit to compel it to register was instituted by the commission last November.

The company based its refusal to register on the ground it would be "irreparably injured." This the commission denied in its brief today. The commission asked the court to restrain the company from acting in interstate commerce because it has violated the law in refusing to register.

The commission's brief was prepared by John J. Burns, General Counsel; Robert H. Jackson, Assistant Attorney General; John J. Abt, Special Counsel, and Benjamin V. Cohen and Thomas G. Corcoran, special assistants to the Attorney General, together with nine other lawyers.

"Defendants have unclean hands," the brief says, "because their prayer for affirmative relief is predicated on the fact that they have refused, without legal justification, to register."

"Defendants have unclean hands because of their representations to the Congress," another section read, referring to the testimony before the House committe by S. R. Inch, president of Electric Bond & Share when, the brief alleged, he declared "We are not opposed to any proper regulation which may be necessary for the protection of either investors or rate payers."

Finally, the brief declared the defendants "have failed to prove that they have been damaged, irreparably or otherwise, either by the act or by any action or threat of action by the plaintiff or by any cross-defendant and, therefore, are not entitled to relief in equity."

The brief reminded the Court the only issue before it was the validity of sections 4 (A) and 5 of the act as applied to the defendants. These sections state that where a holding company maintains its control over subsidiaries and carries on its business through Federal channels of communication or commerce, the controlling company must register.

The commission noted that although the process of registration puts no burden upon the Electric Bond & Share, and "waives, impairs, or prejudices none of their rights to set up at any time the unconstitutionality of any provision of the act or the invalidity of any rule, regulation, or order thereunder as applied to them, the defendants have refused to file a simple notification of registration as required by the act."

In this, they have been joined by many others. Commission officials today estimated that only one-tenth of the industry had registered, holding back, they said until the constitutionality of the act shall have been determined.

RUSSIANS COMPLETE U. S.-MOSCOW FLIGHT

Levanevsky and Levchenko Were Mapping New Route Through Arctic.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Sept. 14.—The Russian flyers, Sigismund Levanevsky and Victor Levchenko, landed at the Moscow airport yesterday, completing a trail-blazing Arctic route from California.

The flyers, who started their 6000-mile flight from Los Angeles, Aug. 5, were greeted by President V. M. Molotoff of the People's Council of Commissars.

Thousands of citizens lined the streets to cheer the aviators as they drove into the city to be greeted by other Government leaders.

Their flight was hailed by Soviet officials as the first step toward early inaugural of a Russo-United States air route through the Arctic.

The flyers landed at 4:15 p. m., Moscow time.

Levanevsky was awarded 25,000 rubles (about $5000) and the labor red banner. Levchenko was given 15,000 rubles (about $3000) and the Order of Lenin.

Dictator Joseph Stalin wired, "fraternal greetings to the brave sons of the fatherland. I congratulate you on the successful fulfillment of your historic flight."

GAIN IN STEEL EMPLOYMENT

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The American Iron & Steel Institute reported today current employment in the steel industry was more than 10 per cent above the 1929 level and the average wage was nearly 2 cents an hour higher than in 1929.

Work is being provided for 467,100 wage earners, or nearly 48,000 more than in 1929, when the census of manufacturers recorded 419,500, the institute said. That year survey showed the average wage was 65.4 cents hourly. In July, this year, the hourly pay averaged 67.3 cents.

TELLS OF WARNING ABOUT JOINING GUILD

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 14.—Over objections of Hearst counsel, Mrs. Bernice O. Redington, former home economics editor of the Post-Intelligencer, told a National Labor Relations Board examiner today that, acting under orders, she canvassed her staff for its attitude toward the American Newspaper Guild after it had been warned against joining.

The testimony was part of the evidence by the prosecution in the guild's complaint that the Post-Intelligencer discharged two veteran employes for guild activity.

Mrs. Redington identified herself as the paper's former "prudence penny" and a member of the guild.

Mrs. Redington testified Marian O. Stixrood, women's editor, told a meeting of her staff: "Mr. Lindeman (C. B. Lindeman, assistant publisher) wants me to tell you why I didn't join the guild, she (Mrs. Stixwood) went on to say she had started to joinit , but found the present setup mostly office boys. Anyone who would like to join the guild would have excellent opportunity for martyrdom. It was not Mr. Lindeman's intention that no one join the guild, but anyone who did could expect no promotion and no raises."

Mrs. Redington testified that thereafter, Mrs. Stixrood had her question the girls on her staff and tell all who did not desire to join the guild to report to Lindeman.

Today's session started with cross-examination of the guild chapter treasurer, Cliffe Erickson, who was the newspaper assistant librarian. Over objections of the board's associate general counsel, Robert Watts of Washington, Erickson identified two letters he wrote the Central Press Association in July asking to continue acting for it here, stating that 'it would be impossible to service from the plant if there was t strike."

The strike was called a month ago yesterday, and forced the newspaper, owned by William Randolph Hearst, to suspend publication.

FLYER KILLED, ANOTHER HURT IN CRASH NEAR PITTSBURGH

Plane Goes Into Nose Dive Just as It Appeared About Ready to Land.

By the Associated Press.

ROCHESTER, Pa., Sept. 14.—An airplane crashed at nearby Conway Airport yesterday afternoon, killing Sidney R. Messner of Pittsburgh and seriously injuring Charles F. Kropf of Bellevue, near Pittsburgh.

Physicians at Rochester General Hospital said Kropf's condition was critical. They said' he received fractures of both legs and possible injuries of the head and chest. Both men were licensed pilots.

The crash was the second in the Pittsburgh district in eight days. The "Skyways," a sightseeing plane, crashed near the Allegheny County Airport Saturday, Sept. 5. Ten persons died in the fire-swept wreckage. Rochester is about 30 miles south of Pittsburgh and three miles from Conway. Both towns are on the bank of the Ohio River. Witnesses said the plane, a Rearwin Sportster cabin monoplane, circled the field twice and appeared ready to land, but suddenly nose dived. It clipped trees at the edge of the airport and buried its nose in the earth.

ASSERTS ROOSEVELT ADMITS ABUSE OF CONSTITUTION

Utility Executives' Head Says President Discloses Real Purpose of Power Program.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Philip H. Gadsden, chairman of the committee of utility executives, said yesterday that President Roosevelt's address to the World Power conference "is a clear cut admission of New Deal guilt in the abuse of constitutional functions for the purpose of achieving unconstitutional objectives."

"From the lips of the President of the United States," said Gadsden, "at last we have an open and official declaration that the real purpose of this hydro-electric program of the Government is not flood control, not conservation, that the real purpose is to force further reduction of electric power rates."

Gadsden said "no other interpretation can be placed upon the President's words than that the recent official emphasis upon navigation flood control, and conservation is but a constitutional smoke screen cloaking the unconstitutional Federal power program."

STRIKE ENDED, MEN BACK AT WORK ON HIGHWAY 40

Employes on Job Say They Got 5-Cent Wage Increase Per Hour.

One hundred unskilled workers employed on United States Highway No. 40, between Weldon Springs and Wentzville, who went on strike Thursday for higher pay, returned to work this morning.

They said they had received an increase of 5 cents an hour. The Regenhardt Construction Co., which has the highway contract, refused to confirm or deny the report.

The laborers, employed through the National Re-employment Office at St. Charles, protested against a minimum wage scale which ranged from 35 to 65 cents an hour. At the time of the men's employment, the re-employment office agreed to the wages offered by William Regenhardt, head of the construction company.

CONFERENCE FOR CONTINUING FLOOD CONTROL PROGRAM

Delegates From 31 States Favor Uniform Laws, Non-Interference With Army Engineers.

By the Associated Press.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Officers and regional representatives of the United States Flood Control Federation recommended yesterday the continuation of the National Flood Control policy under the general outlines of the 1936 act.

Representing organizations in 31 states, they decided in an informal conference to present to Congress and the legislatures of the various sttaes a program of state and national legislation based on the following points:

Uniform state laws insofar as compatible with constitutional limitations in the various states.

Opposition to any politically-appointed Government body supplanting the Army engineers in the carrying out of the Federal program.

POPE CALLS FOR MILITANT FIGHT ON COMMUNISM

'UTTER CHAOS UNLESS BREACH IS REPAIRED'

He Urges World to 'Oppose These Great Evils With Every Possible Remedy and Barrier.'

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.)

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, Sept. 14.—Pope Pius XI gave his blessing today to a militant defense against the "mad" forces of Communism.

Declaring these forces menaced, in Spain and elsewhere, "the very foundations of all order, all culture and all civilization," he nevertheless pardoned the Spanish killers of bishops and priests and called on the constituted authorities of all nations to "oppose these great evils with every remedy and barrier that is possible."

He foresaw "utter chaos if those who have a duty in the matter do not hasten to repair the breach—if, indeed, it is not already too late."

Five hundred Spanish refugees were in the throne room of the papal villa when the Pope entered. He tendered them his greetings and blessings, then began his 40-minute speech. The address was carried on the Vatican rado station in a world broadcast.

"Defense Difficult, Dangerous."

Although making a plea for a militant defense, the Pope acknowledged such would be "both difficult and dangerous, for it is only too easy for the very ardor and difficulty of defense to go to an excess which is not wholly warranted."

Nevertheless, he said, the crisis in Spain is a "school in which the most serious lesson is being taught to Europe and to the whole world—to a world now at last wholly steeped, ensnared and threatened by subversive propaganda, and more especially to a Europe battered and shaken to its very foundation."

These forces, he said, "once they have seduced and stirred up the masses, aim at nothing less than arming them and throwing them madly against every form of institution, human and divine.

"And how can this awful consummation fail to be inevitable—and that, in the most aggravated conditions and proportions—if, out of false calculation and self interest and because of ruinous rivalry and egoistic pursuit of particular supremacy, those who have a duty in the matter do not hasten to repair the breach—if, indeed, it is not already too late?"

Horrified by War in Spain.

With intense feeling, he expressed his deep horror at what he called the "fratricidal war" in Spain. He declared "it has been well said that the blood of a single man, shed by the hand of his brother, is more than enough for all time and for the whole earth; what is to be said when we are face to face with the stories of brothers killing brothers, which are daily being told?"

Saying the Catholic church is the bulwark against Communism, the Pope asserted "the Catholic religion is the one real obstacle in the way of those forces which have already given a sample and measure of themselves in subversive attacks of every kind and order from Russia to China, from Mexico to South America."

Apparently referring to Nazi Germany, he said: "The Catholic Press has been persistently suspected and increasingly hampered, while every freedom and favor, or at least complete toleration, has been shown to the press of those whose mission and purpose, it would seem, is to spread confusion among ideas and to mislead by falsifying facts, a press which does not hesitate to proclaim a new Christianity and a religion of new coinage."

A curious feature of the speech, which was delivered in Italian and translated in English, German, French and Spanish, was the fact that the Pope not once used the word "Communism," although Vatican sources said the major portion of it was directed against it. He spoke of "forces of subversion"—and the like.

Once, it was believed the Pope had in mind his own gradually weakening physical forces when he said: "We, ourself, are now so near our day of final reckoning."

Comment on Immorality.

Simultaneously with his attack on Communism the Pope protested against "that general wave of immorality which more and more is breaking down every restraint and law and which seems already to have quenched in so many souls every sense of modesty, dignity, conscience and responsibility, by reason of the grave scandals which are given and suffered."

The Pope expressed admiration for the Spanish refugees and for

DEFIES RACKETEERS, MURDERED IN STORE

Brooklyn Merchant Planned to Re-Enter Business After Being Driven Out.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Joseph Rosen, a Brooklyn variety store proprietor, was killed yesterday because, police said, he planned to re-enter the trucking business from which he had been driven out by racketeers.

Rosen was found dead on the floor of his shop with 15 pistol slugs in his body. Joseph Stanner, proprietor of a nearby store, said he saw four men step from a car, enter Rosen's store, fire the shots, and flee. A stolen car, believed to have been used by them was found abandoned a few blocks away.

Denying a report that Rosen had been killed because he gave information to Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey, who has been investigating rackets here, Dewey said Rosen never was a witness in his office.

"If it is true as reported that a police officer made this statement, he is guilty of making a false statement and also of violating the police regulations, both of which I shall investigate," Dewey said.

Acting Captain John J. McGowan of the Brooklyn police said he had learned Rosen had been forced by racketeers four years ago to abandon a partnership in a lucrative Garfield, N. J., trucking business. (New York and New Jersey Clothing Trucking Co.)

Rosen, McGowan said, had accumulated some money from a stationery and candy store which he established subsequently in Brooklyn and intended soon to re-enter the trucking business.

The victim's wife, Mrs. Esther Rosen, and two daughters were questioned at police headquarters, but McGowan said he had been able to elicit no valuable information from them.

BUSINESS MAN CHARGED WITH MURDERING TRANSIENT

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 14.—Charles D. Ernest, business man, was charged with first-degree murder today in the death of Harry H. (Crying Hank) Burke, a transient who was fatally beaten March 23.

The charges against Ernest grew out of inquiry by police and private investigators after discovery of tattoo marks on the arms of several homeless persons who had been insured or approached for insurance. The marks in nearly all of the cases, Assistant Prosecutor W. H. Gilwee said, included the name of the person insured, a birth date and Ernest's address. Burke was insured for $3100.

The death of another drifter, George (Cyclone) Kelly, whose arms bore the cryptic marks, also is being investigated.

"What splendid reparation is this of yours, beloved sons, which you have offered and continue to offer to that Divine Majesty which in so many parts of the world and even in Spain, by so many, is unrecognized, denied, blasphemed, rejected and in a thousand ways brutally offended."

The Spanish refugees were headed by the Bishops of Cartagena, Vich, Tortosa and Urgel. Some wore ecclesiastical garments for the first time since they escaped from Spain disguised as civilians.

Pope Pius' speech was translated from Italian into English by Father John P. Cody of St. Louis, stationed at the American College in Rome. He also broadcast the English version.

TOM DRAPER ELIMINATED; HIGH WINDS BOOST SCORE

By the Associated Press.

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Omaha's Johnny Goodman, former National Open Golf King and co-favorite with Seattle's Scotty Campbell, defeated his first round opponent, Hunter Hicks of Chicago, 4 and 3, today in starting his bid for the U. S. amateur championship here.

First of the British invaders to fall was H. G. Bentley, Walker cup player and holder of the English closed championship. He was eliminated in spectacular fashion, by Walter Blevins of Kansas City, Mo., who captured the last four holes to win, one up.

Bentley's game went to pieces in the stretch, while Blevins finished with four straight pars to gain an unexpected triumph. The Britisher drove into the rough on the fifteenth, was bunkered on the next, three-putted the seventeenth and hit his tee shot short of the home green, losing a shot as a consequence of each mistake.

Tom Draper Jr. of St. Louis was eliminated in his first match. Draper was beaten by Francis J. Allan, Pittston, Pa., 3 and 2.

Oklahoma's Walter Emery, and 1935 runner-up, staggered through his first-round match, beating Knox Young Jr. of Pittsburgh, one up. Both had medal scores of 85, a dozen strokes over par.

Four former champions, Chick Evans, Jesse Guilford, Max Marston and Jess Sweetser, came through the first round safely. A fifth, Davidson Herron, was eliminated.

The wind raised havoc with most of the early starters in the dawn-to-dusk tussle for first-round honors. There were 82 matches on today's card, with the remainder of the entry list of 210 getting byes into tomorrow's second round.

Two British Stars Win.

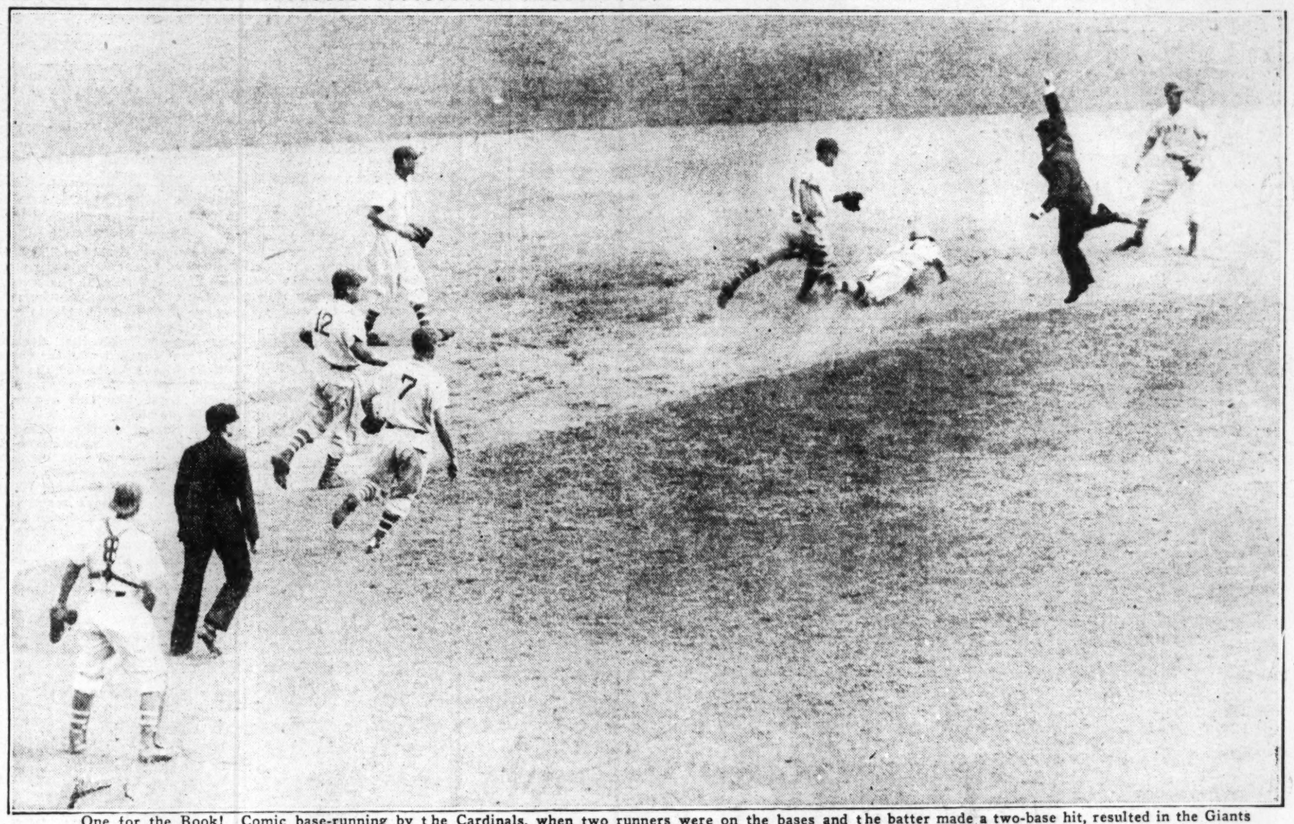

John G. Langley, British Walker Cupper and star pupil of Henry Cotton, pulled off a startling rally to overcome Eugene Pittman, Maryland player, 3 and 2, after being three down at the turn. Pittman shot the outgoing nine in par, 37, to Langley's 42, but the picture was completely reversed thereafter. The Briton won six of the next seven holes as his rival's game went to pieces. Pittman was nine over par on the incoming route.

Langley's countryman, Hector Thomson, came through with a decisive 7-and-6 triumph over his Ohio rival, John Roberts, as the British threat assumed more serious proportions at the outset of the tournament than had been anticipated.

Johnny Fischer, Cincinnati star and Walker Cupper, shot the best morning golf when he polished off

A Double Play on a Two-Base Hit — And the Batter Reached First Base!

One for the Book! Comic base-running by the Cardinals, when two runners were on the bases and the batter made a two-base hit, resulted in the Giants turning a double play and holding the batter to one base in the third inning of the opening game of yesterday's doubleheader in New York. Cotton Pippen was on second and Terry Moore on first when Art Garibaldi hit to right field for two bases. Pippen, fearing the ball might be caught, hesitated, and when he finally made third base, Terry Moore was right at his heels. Pippen then was caught between third and home and tagged by Mancuso, and Moore, who had tried to get back to second, was retired by Bartell near the middle cushion, as shown above. Meanwhile, Garibaldi had been forced to return to first base and had Bill Terry been on the bag, the Giants could have made a triple play of it. The Birds made one run out of two singles, an error and the double, in the inning.

ED HEUSSER HITS HOMER OFF HUBBELL; FIGHT ON THE BENCH

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The Cardinals dropped to four and a half games behind the league-leading New York Giants when they lost to Bill Terry's men in the third and final game of their series here this afternoon. The Giants took two out of three in the set.

The score was 7 to 5.

Bill Walker started for the Redbirds and did well for two innings, but was forced to retire in the third before getting a man out. Jim Winford also failed to get a man out and Bill McGee was in before the end of the inning, which netted the Giants six runs.

The parade of pitchers continued in the sixth when Dizzy Dean became the fifth Cardinal hurler.

Frank Gabler, for New York, was nicked for two runs in the opening frame, but stayed in until the fourth, when he ran into trouble, and Dick Coffman replaced him.

Carl Hubbell took up the pitching task in th efifth.

The game was enlivened by a fist fight between Cardinal players in the dugout at the conclusion of the sixth inning. Ed Heusser and Joe Medwick were mentioned as the combatants and the trouble was said to have arisen from criticism of a throw to the plate by Medwick when Bartell singled in the sixth.

Pinelli, Parker, Moran and Sears were the umpires.

The attendance was estimated at 20,000.

The game:

FIRST INNING—CARDINALS—T. Moore walked. Garibaldi doubled to left, T. Moore stopping at third. Pepper Martin singled to center, scoring Terry Moore and putting Garibaldi on third. Whitehead threw out Medwick, Garibaldi scoring. Mize was passed intentionally. On an attempted double steal, Pepper Martin was out, Mancuso to Jackson, Mize stopping at second. Durocher ground-out to Bartell. TWO RUNS.

GIANTS—J. Moore flied to Martin. Gutteridge threw out Bartell. Ott grounded to Garibaldi.

GIANTS—Leiber singled to center. Terry popped to Garibaldi. Jackson grounded to Durocher, who stepped on second to force Leiber and threw to Mize to double Jackson.

GIANTS — Mancuso walked. Whitehead also walked. Gabler bunted for a sacrifice, all the runners were safe when Mancuso beat Walker's throw to third. J. Moore singled to right, scoring Mancuso and Whitehead, Gabler stopping at second. Walker was taken out and relieved by Winford. Bartell bunted safely past Winford, filling the bases. Ott walked, forcing Gabler over the plate. Ripple batted for Leiber and doubled to left, scoring J. Moore and Bartell, Ott stopping at third. McGee replaced Winford on the mound for the Cardinals. Terry flied to Medwick, Ott scoring after the catch. Jackson lined to Garibaldi. Mancuso struck out. SIX RUNS.

FOURTH — CARDINALS—Ripple went to center field for the Giants. Mize popped to Terry. Durocher singled off Jackson's glove. Gutteridge singled off Gabler's leg. Durocher going to third. Davis forced Gutteridge, Whitehead to Bartell, Durocher scoring. Collins batted for McGee and walked. Coffman replaced Gabler on the mound for the Giants. Gelbert ran for Davis. Terry Moore singled to left, scoring Gelbert. The runners advanced on a wild pitch. Garibaldi grounded out to Terry. TWO RUNS.

GIANTS—Heusser and Ogrodowski formed the new Cardinal battery. Garibaldi threw out Whitehead. Mayo batted for Coffman and grounded to Garibaldi. Joe Moore bunted safely towards third. Bartell singled to right, sending Joe Moore to third. Ott walked, filling the bases. Ripple flied to Medwick.

FIFTH — CARDINALS—Hubbell went in to pitch for the Giants. Pepper Martin flied to Ott. Medwick singled to left. Mize flied to Ott. Jackson threw out Durocher.

GIANTS—Whitehead beat out a grounder to Durocher. Hubbel sacrificed, Mize to Garibaldi who covered first. Joe Moore lined to Terry Moore. Bartell singled to left, scoring Whitehead and taking second on the throw in. Ott was purposely passed. Dizzy Dean was called from the bullpen and put into the game for the fourth time in three days. Ripple flied to Terry Moore. ONE RUN.

SEVENTH—CARDINALS—Garibaldi struck out. As the Cardinals returned to their dug-out Heusser and one of the other St. Louis players began swinging fists at each other but others interfered. The identity of the other combatant was not definitely established but Medwick's name was mentioned as being in the brawl. Bartell threw out J. Martin. Medwick popped to Bartell.

GIANTS—Terry flied to Medwick. Jackson was called out on strikes. Gutteridge made a good stop and threw out Mancuso.

NINTH — CARDINALS — Terry Moore was called out on strikes. Garibaldi singled off Jackson's glove. Martin forced Garibaldi, Whitehead to Bartell. Medwick's hit was too hot for Bartell, sending Martin to third. Mize fouled to Ott.

Eight Home Runs Give Yankees Team Record; Defeat Browns Twice

By Harold Tuthill.

"Murderers' Row," otherwise known as the New York Yankees, stopped off in St. Louis long enough yesterday to administer a double defeat to the Browns, and at the same time set a new record for team home runs during the season.

When the Yanks blew into town they had 167 home runs and today they boast of 175, which is two more than the former high mark of 173 set by the Philadelphia Athletics in 1932. Small wonder then with "Murderers Row" banging out 8 home runs that the Browns lost the doubleheader, 10 to 7 and 13 to 1.

Three for DiMaggio.

Yankee home runs became so frequent that in the second game the 7500-odd fans pleaded with every New Yorker who came to bat to "hit it over the fence." Joe DiMaggio, in particular captured the fancy of the crowd, and he obliged by getting two in the first game and one in the second, putting his total at 29 for the season.

Larrupin' Lou Gehrig failed to hit for the circuit in the opening contest, but in the second he hit two consecutive homers to put his total for the campaign at 48, which makes Lou King of Swat in the major leagues at present.

With 11 more games left to play the Yankees are certain to collect more home runs and when the season closes Sept. 27, they will go into the world series as the "slug-gingest" team in years.

The Yanks, who have clinched

Vince Team Wins Title

The Vince softball team won the third contest of the three-game series for the Municipal Softball League championship yesterday, defeating the Fourth Ward Democrats, 10-8. The Vince team had to stop the Democrats in the ninth inning and did so, although the Democrats made three runs.

Mrs. Hill Scores 79 And Miss Guth 82 in State Golf Tourney

By W. J. McGoogan

ALGONQUIN GOLF CLUB, Sept. 14.—Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City began defense of her Missouri women's golf championship here this morning, shooting 79 in the qualifying round to become medalist of the second annual tournament.

Three strokes better than her playing partner, Miss Sara Louise Guth of Algonquin, St. Louis women's district champion, Mrs. Hill was assured of medal honors, as there was none out with a chance to beat her score.

Miss Guth seemed to be headed for No. 2 position, which means she will not be in the same bracket with Mrs. Hill.

Miss Guth, looked upon as Mrs. Hill's greatest title rival, started out in great style, with 37 on the first nine, but cracked coming back, got herself into all sort of trouble and took 45 strokes on the second nine for her 82.

Mrs. Hill was bothered somewhat in putting because the greens had been cut close, making them much faster than during her practice rounds the past few days.

Miss Guth was ahead of Mrs. Hill off the tees most of the way round, but Mrs. Hill's steady, short game told in the long run.

The champion had 39 on the first nine and 40 on the second, just two strokes over women's par. Her only birdie came at the fifth hole, a 410-yard hole over a creek where she got a four.

Miss Guth started with a par five on the first, then put her third within seven feet of the cup on No. 2 and got a birdie four. She parred the third, fourth and fifth, then knocked her second just to the left hand edge of the sixth green, pitched on and sank her putt for another birdie.

She scored another birdie at the seventh, when she put her first into a trap far down the fairway, made a great out to the green and barely missed her putt for a three and took a four.

She parred the eighth, then put her second near a trap to the right of the ninth green, her third was on and she took two putts for a par five.

Paul Waner Gets 200th Hit; Ties Hornsby's Mark

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 14.—Pittsburgh beat the Phillies, 11 to 4, in the first game of a doubleheader today, scoring five runs in the fourth and four more in the ninth. Al Todd of the Pirates and Dolph Camilli of the Phils hit homers with two on.

Paul Waner of Pittsburgh smashed out a double in the fourth, marking the seventh year he has made 200 or more hits and tying the modern National League record set by Rogers Hornsby.

He Has Been Around.

Al Babartsky, Fordham tackle, has seen life. He has been a coal miner and he also has played polo.

Synthetic Sport.

POWDER-BURNERS from all corners of the country will take part here tomorrow in the national skeet shooting championship at the Bridle Spur Club.

Skeet is a comparatively new development and is an improvement on the old form of straightaway trap-shooting. Because it furnishes a greater variety of angles the sport is believed to be better training for field shooting.

However, it is just another synthetic sport, like the fly-and-bait casting, in fishless ponds, for distance and accuracy.

Skeet's popularity is considerable, especially with arms and powder people. At the same time, it undoubtedly develops a high degree of skill for upland game shooting.

We sometimes wonder, however, if the tail doesn't wag the dog; if for every shell that is discharged in the field, 50 shells are not fired at blue rocks?

More About Synthetics.

SPEAKING of synthetic sports, some of them almost rise to equality with the events from which they were derived.

Indoor baseball was a synthetic sport. For years it vegetated. Then someone took it outdoors, dressed it up, and today, as "softball," we find that it is played by more boys, girls and men than play the old style baseball—believe it or not.

Then there is table tennis. As "ping-pong," years ago, it appeared an inocuous attempt to dramatize tennis on a parlor ta-

BURKE DEMOCRATS WIN 1936 SENIOR MUNY BASEBALL HONORS

Hunthausen, Pitcher for Winning Team, Retires 19 Batters in Succession —Merchants Defeat Vons, 6-5, for Junior Championship.

Norvall Hunthausen pitched the J. Burke Democrats to the Municipal Baseball Association championship yesterday in an 11-4 victory over the Schaefer-Lafayettes of the South Side League in the second game of their final series for the title. The Burkes won the opening game last Sunday, 17-11. The victory makes the Mound City League team the St. Louis representative in the National Municipal Baseball tournament to be held in Evansville this week-end, starting Friday. The Union Avenue Merchants, Leo Durocher League, won the junior title by defeating the Vons, Rogers Hornsby League, 6—5, in a six-inning contest.

The game started out as a pitching duel between Hunthausen and Vic Valendy, but Valendy weakened in the fifth inning and lost a 3-2 lead the Schaefers had held, the Burkes scoring five runs in that inning.

Retires 19 in Row.

Hunthausen, who had allowed three hits and three runs in two innings, settled down after that and retired 19 batters in a row. He was aided during that streak by fine fielding, particularly by Saguto, the shortstop. Michel doubled in the seventh inning, but Rousseau, the next batter, lined to Pastor at second and Michel was doubled to help out Hunthausen's string.

Roguski grounded out to start the ninth. But Brimmer doubled, as did Miklas, Brimmer stopping at third. Boese walked, and when Hunthausen couldn't locate the plate, Murphy also walked, forcing in Brimmer. Then Rutledge, the next batter, after Hunthausen had walked two batters, picked on the first ball pitched, a high one, and popped out to Lohaus. And then Stanton grounded out to end the game.

The Merchants had a more difficult time in winning yesterday than they did in the opening contest, which they won, 13—3, in five innings. The Merchants scored three runs in the first and added another in the fourth, after the Vons had scored two runs in their half of the fourth.

Ends With Three.

The Vons tied the score with two more runs in the fifth, and then took the lead with another run in the sixth. With the bases loaded in the last half of the sixth, Travis, a pinch hitter, grounded to Hendricks at second. Ciborowski, on third, dashed for the plate and as Catcher Steinbaum caught the ball, he slid into him, knocking the ball from his hand and enabling Evers to score the winning run.

THE BUSY MR. HEMSLEY:—Brownie Catcher Stars Against Yankees

By Jack Gould, Post-Dispatch Sports Staff Photographer.

The Yankees made eight home runs and took both games of their doubleheader with the Browns at Sportsman's Park yesterday but Catcher Rollie Hemsley was a star. At top, he is shown tagging Tony Lazzeri in a run-down in the fourth inning of the first game. Below, Rollie is spread all over the field trying to prevent Lou Gehrig from scoring but the Iron Man hooked his foot into the plate, in the seventh inning of the same game. Pitcher Jack Knott is at the right, running up to the rubber.

BUFFALO GAINS FOURTH VICTORY IN TITLE PLAY

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, Sept. 14.—The pennant winning Buffalo Bisons, another step along the road to a clean sweep of the season's honors in the International League, rested today while Rochester and Baltimore continued their playoff battle.

The Bisons advanced to the final playoff series yesterday with a 7-4 victory over the Newark Bears, who wound up third in the regular campaign after an overtime duel with Rochester, decided on a post-season game. The Bears were eliminated from further contention for the Governors' Cup and a berth in the Little World Series as they lost four out of five to Buffalo.

Meantime the Baltimore Orioles, fourth-place club of the regular season, took a 3-2 lead in their series with Rochester by beating the Red Wings, 6-3, in a game marked by a lively fist fight in the seventh inning. They are slated to continue at Rochester tonight to decide which will meet Buffalo in the final series.

The Bisons, who had been progressing because of tight pitching, suddenly broke loose at bat to win their final game from Newark. They whacked Ted Kleinhans for three hits in the fourth inning and these, plus an error and a hit batsman, gave them five runs and the ball bame. Butch Meyers added a home run to the total while Roy Schalk struck a four-bagger for the Bears.

Cliff Melton, though touched for 10 hits, came through to gain his second mound victory of the series for Baltimore. He also was the cause of the fistic outbreak when he hit Byrne James with a pitched ball. After an exchange of words they began tossing punches and their teamamtes joined in. Melton finished off the inning by whiffing Estil Crabtree with the bases loaded.

Home runs played a big part in the Orioles' attack on Bob Weiland and his three successors as Bill Hoffner, Bill Cissell and Woody Abernathy hit for the circuit.

SECOND SERIES IN TENNIS INSTRUCTIONS WILL BEGIN TODAY

The second series of tennis lectures and instructions for young players as arranged by the Park Department will begin on the Kingshighway course this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Ted Drewes will again be the instructor.

Juniors who reached the quarter-finals in the recent Municipal championship will receive the instructions today, while Wednesday has been selected for the boys and Friday for the girls. The forehand drive will be the subject of this week's lessons. Last week service was the subject, while next week Drewes will give instructions on backhand strokes.

Ohio Body Reinstates Owens; District Group Has No Power To Act, Dan Ferris Asserts

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Jesse Owens planned to return to Cleveland today for a "hearing" which he hoped would pave the way for the restoration of his unimpaired amateur status an dpermit him to run in the Caledonian Games at the Yankee Stadium next Thursday.

Indications were, however, that the Buckeye Bullet would have to remain on the sidelines unless a lot of other star performers who are scheduled to compete are willing to risk suspension. The Northeastern Ohio Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, which includes Owen's home district, already has announced it has "reinstated" him, but according to Dan Ferris, National A. A. U. secretary-treasurer, it has no power to take such action.

James A. Lee, district secretary, announced the reinstatement in a telegram to Ferris after he had received word from New York that Owens had not signed a professional contract. Ferris replied, pointing out that according to A. A. U. rules Owens was barred for at least a year unless he could prove he never even had announced his intention of turning pro.

The "Brown Bullet's" public announcement that he intended to seek a professional career under the management of Marty Forkins, New York theatrical man, and "cash in" on his reputation as a winner of four Olympic gold medals was enough to disqualify him. He can be reinstated by the Registration Committee of the association in which he is registered at the expiration of one year, provided he has not participated as a professional.

In addition Owens is under an equally automatic suspension as a result of his "run out" on a post-Olympic trip to Sweden.

To have this suspension lifted, Owens must apply to the Foreign Relations Committee of the A. A. U., headed by Avery Brundage of Chicago, the A. A. U. president. Brundage is not due back from Europe until late this month.

Even without Owens, the meet will have a stellar field. The American 1500-meter Olympic trio of Glenn Cunningham, Gene Venzke and Archie San Romani are entered for the mile along with many other Olympic stars. Latest additions to the field were Earle Meadows, the Olympic pole vault champion, and George Varoff, the world-record holder who failed to qualify for the team.

SARRON AND CAMARATA WILL FIGHT TONIGHT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Petey Sarron, newly crowned National Boxing Association featherweight titleholder, tops this week's National boxing program.

Sarron, who captured the 126-pound title from Freddie Miller several months ago, tackles Nick Camarata of Richmond in a non-title bout at Richmond tonight.

In the only other bouts which rate much consideration, Tommy Loughran, veteran Philadelphia heavyweight, encounters giant Ray Impelletiere of Cold Springs, N. Y., in a 10-rounder at Oakland, Cal., Wednesday, while Lou Salica, former bantamweight champion, meets Nicky Jerome of New York in an eight-rounder at New York Saturday.

SIX TEAMS UNBEATEN IN AMATEUR TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 14.—The six undefeated teams in the National Baseball Federation tournament were to be reduced today by half.

One of the two Ohio unbeatens, Cleveland, lined up against Waterbury, Conn., in one of the features; Detroit met Canonsburg, Pa., and Fort Wayne played Dayton.

The six with perfect records won yesterday's contests easily with one exception, Dayton shading Birmingham, Ala., 2 to 1, in 10 innings. Canonsburg's victim was New York by an 8-to-3 margin, and the other four, likewise, won by at least five runs.

Under the system of two defeats and out, six sandlot combinations, four of them from Ohio, were eliminated from the tournament. They were Grassflat, Pa., Dearborn, Mich., and Youngstown, Warren, Massillon and Lorain, O. The other 12 teams had won one and lost one.

the American League pennant, were a carefree, laughing outfit which didn't care particularly whether they won or lost to the Browns, so when they went to the plate, they were not over-anxious. The fans in the left field seats had a merry afternoon fielding the circuit drives and somebody made the suggestion that if the Cardinals should perchance play the Yanks in the world series, Manager Frank Frisch should get permission for Joe Medwick to move his left field position into the bleachers where he could, possibly, do the most good.

The Browns put up a battle before dropping the first contest and only for the ineffectiveness of Jack Knott, who relieved Elon Hogsett, might have won. Jake Powell's homer with Gehrig on in the second inning gave the Yanks a 2-0 lead, which they increased by DiMaggio's circuit clout in the third with nobody on.

The Browns then picked up a counter in their half of the third and managed to take the lead with a three-run rally on one hit and four walks in the sixth. Gomez was so wild that he had to be taken out and Kemp Wicker, also a southpaw, came in.

Jack Knott was sent in to assume the pitching burden in the seventh, for Hogsett had given way to pinch-hitter Ray Pepper. And what the Yanks did to Mr. Knott was plenty. DiMaggio's second homer was the crowning blow in a five-run rally. That wiped out the Browns' 4-3 edge and put the New Yorkers out in front, 8 to 4.

They Didn't Quit.

Even under that handiicap the Browns didn't quit plugging and they kayoed Wicker in the seventh, scoring three runs again but falling one short of a tie. Monte Pearson finished the game, but Wicker was credited with the decision. Knott was charged with the defeat.

Russ Van Atta hurled the final two innings for the Browns and he yielded three hits and a pair of runs in the ninth.

With Johnny Murphy holding the Browns to six hits and to no score until the ninth and with "Murderers' Row" backing Johnny with a home run barrage, Manager Hornsby's men didn't have much of a chance to win the nightcap.

Ivy Paul Andrews started for the Browns and pitched seven innings. He was battered for four runs in the first, one in the sixth and six in the seventh. Then the sympathy of the crowd switched to the Yanks and when it was announced that the home run record had been broken, the fans cheered lustily.

Harry Kimberlin, who went to Andrews' relief, was found for a run in each of the eighth and ninth frames.

Brownie Notes.

Today is an open date. Tomorrow the Washington Senators will be here for a doubleheader, the game Wednesday having been moved back, so that Wednesday also will be an open date. Tomorrow will be ladies' and girls' day.

Gomez has finished only one game against the Browns this season.

On Home Stand.

So far in their final home stand of the 1936 campaign, the Browns have won two, lost four and tied one.

Kemp Wicker is a southpaw that the New Yorkers acquired from their Newark farm in the International League. He also is a swimmer of note.

Hellrungs Win Fourth Title in University City

The Hellrung & Grimm team today boasts of its fourth consecutive championship in the University City Municipal Baseball League, for it defeated Mount Auburn, 8 to 6, at Heman Park in the third and deciding game of the series yesterday afternoon.

Eddie Rolfe managed to finish the game for the champions, although he was in trouble several times, due chiefly to wobbly support in the field by his mates. Six errors were charged to the Hellrungs.

Richards and Davis twirled for the Mount Auburns, Richards yielding seven hits and four runs in five innings and Davis permitting five hits in four innings.

The champions won their game in their half of the seventh, when they counted four runs to change a 6 to 4 deficit to an 8 to 6 victory.

DU QUOIN, Ill., Sept. 14. — Joe Geitz, St. Louis driver, was in a hospital here today with a broken leg and other injuries after his machine tore through a fence and smacked into a tree during auto races at the Du Quoin Fair yesterday. His condition was not serious.

BREWERS WIN, GO INTO FINAL IN ASSOCIATION PLAYOFF SERIES

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—The champion Milwaukee Brewers were in the final of the American Association playoffs today, btu the situation was far from bright for the St. Paul Saints.

The Brewers took their fourth straight game yesterday from Kansas City, defeating the Blues 3 to 0 to qualify for the final seven-game series, the winner of which will enter the little world series against the International League victor. St. Paul, meanwhile, took a third beating from Indianapolis, 5 to 4, and the Indians now need but one game to reach the title playoff against Milwaukee. The Saints have taken one game.

Milwaukee, which won the circuit title and then lost so many games that Brewer fans began to worry, again presented some fine pitching to eliminate the Blues. Clyde Hatter pitched three-hit ball, while the opposing hurler, Joe Vance, aided in his defeat by uncorking a wild pitch in the third and permitting Detore to steal home in the fifth. In the sixth, Rudy York, Brewer first sacker, hit a homer. Fewer than 4000 saw the game, played in Kansas City.

At Indianapolis, before 8000 spectators, Paul (Dizzy) Trout started for the Tribe, but was blasted from the hill as the Saints tied the score at 4 all in the sixth. Bud Tinning replaced Trout and received credit for the win.

The winning marker came in the last of the sixth. Siebert singled, went to second on an infield out and scored as Otto Bluege singled through second. Ragged fielding helped the Tribe's cause, Bob Boken committing two errors and Mowry and Steinbacher one each.

The fifth game of the Indianapolis-St. Paul series was scheduled for tonight.

SIMES, NEW JERSEY RIDER, WINS NATIONAL BIKE TITLE HERE

By Reno Hahn.

Jackie Simes, Harrington Park, N. J., won the national championship of the Amateur Bicycle League of America yesterday in Forest Park, his pre-arranged teaming plan with Charles Morton, Los Angeles Olympic rider, enabling him to break away from the field with Morton and win the 50-mile race. The heat, the new system of sprints during the long-distance race, and numerous spills combined to make it an eventful day for both spectators and riders. Only 12 of the 31 riders finished the long race.

Simes' victory gives him both the major cycling titles of the United States, and a great liking for St. Louis, for he won the sprint championship of the Century Road Club of America, the other major cycling body, here last year. He will defend the latter title this week in Chicago.

The 50-mile race started slowly enough, with Ray Jones, Paterson (N. J.) rider, who beat out Simes for the State title, and William "Buster" Logan, the Olympic rider from Newark, dividing the first two sprints.

Runs Into Truck.

But after the second sprint, William McDougall, Washington, D. C., and Charles Newton, Dallas, Tex., lost ground on the field and were a half lap behind. They were sprinting to catch up with the leaders and had just passed the judges' stand when a park department truck, bearing soda to a refreshment stand near the first tee of the nine-hole course, started across the road. Newton managed to guide his bike around the truck in time, but McDougall slid into the truck. He suffered bruises and cuts and an injured ankle, while his bicycle was ruined.

A crowd quickly gathered about the driver, and one over-officious spectator struck him. The driver was Kenneth M. Tanner, 1367 North Union. He was held temporarily by the police.

Then Ray Florman, St. Louis, and Leonard Maffie, Brooklyn, broke away from the field, but were soon caught.

The race went on with Jones and Logan taking the next two sprints. After the fourth sprint, Simes and Morton opened a short gap on the field and slowly increased it until they had a half-lap lead. They teamed together perfectly, and before the race was over they had almost lapped the field.

But the field, in its efforts to catch the leaders, had many accidents. Albin Jurca, who won Saturday's 25-mile race and scored five points toward the championship, suffered from heat exhaustion and fainted. He was revived and pluckily tried to continue, but, after finishing three-fourths of the distance, he collapsed again and withdrew.

Cecil Hursey, the defending champion, didn't score a point in any of the sprints and seemingly never made a serious effort to catch the leaders.

Logan, the early leader, also collapsed from heat exhaustion and from injuries received during a spill. He was in such a state of exhaustion that he was rushed to the City Hospital after the race.

Morton, who led the field with Simes, was in a state bordering on collapse after he finished and had to lie down and rest for 20 minutes.

Three Tie for Second.

Three riders tied for second place with five points after the two-day meet. Morton, who took second yesterday, received five points; Jurca, who won Saturday's race, received five points for that effort, and Jones, who took third in both races, got two points Saturday and three points yesterday.

There was a one-lap sprint held for the second place honors, with the riders slowly circling the course until the last 300 yards, when they started their sprint. Jurca, aided by his longer rest, took it by a few feet, with Morton second and Jones a close third.

The junior championship was won for the second straight year by David Martin, the Newark rider, who took both races yesterday at two and five miles, which, with his two second places Saturday, gave him 16 points. Gene Pottente, Kenosha, Wis., was second with 12 points; Lucien Musso, New York, was third with 11, and Anthoni, Chicago, and George Hurlburt, Buffalo, tied for fourth with two points each.

The women's title was won by Dolores Burl, Chicago, with another Chicagoan, Lou Porterfield, second, and Florence Freihaut, St. Louis, third. Only Chicago and St. Louis riders particlipated.

Simes lost 11 pounds in the two days of the meet.

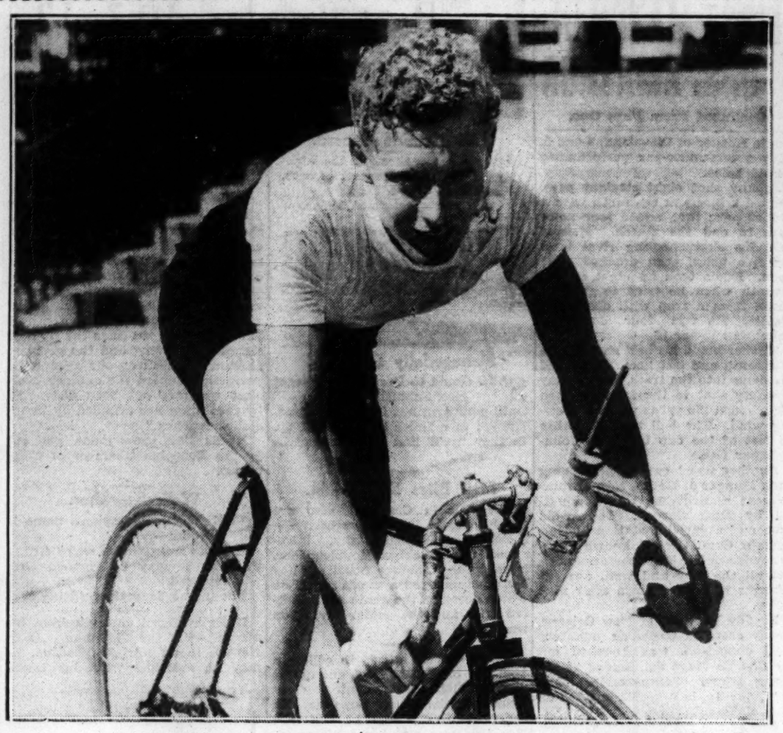

The women made faster time than the juniors in the five-mile event. The women's time was 15 minutes 55.2 seconds, and the juniors, 16 minutes 13.8 seconds.

Sprint System Tried.

This was the first time that the sprint system had been used in a long-distance race, and the officials expressed themselves as pleased with it and thought that it would be regularly used in the future. It makes the difficult 25 and 50-mile races more difficult, provides the spectators with a series of sprints, enables riders to break away from the field, something they don't do in a race without sprints, and is much harder on the riders.

They Pedaled Their Way to Bicycle Championships in Forest Park

Perfect Scores Feature In Practice Rounds for U. S. Skeet Championship Event

With many of the country's outstanding marksmen not only here, but at top form as a result of yesterday's practice sessions, the national skeet shooting championships begin to look like a real classic, with a battle royal expected for the major laurels. Competition in the 20-gauge championship at 100 targets will starr tomorrow morning at 7:30 o'clock. This will be the opening event on the five-day program.

Esther Abbie Ingalls of Hot Springs, Va., who defeated Mrs. Sidney R. Small of Detroit, for the women's title last year, was the center of yesterday's activities at the traps located on the steeplechase course of the Bridlespur Hunt Club. Miss Ingalls, arriving late in the afternoon, scored a 22 on her first trip around the eight posts. She missed both single shots at post No. 4 and then dropped her third clay pigeon at the highhouse of No. 8.

Bobby Stack, young Beverly Hills (Cal.) shooter, scored 22 with a .410 gun on his initial trip at the traps. Also using the .410 shortshell, Alex Kerr of Los Angeles had a perfect 25. Bill Davis of Santa Monica had 23, while the tourney's favorite, Harry Fleischmann of Los Angeles, and the heavyweight Grant Ilseng of Fresno, had 24 each. This same squad of California experts, all members of the All-America 1935 championship team, turned to the 12-gauge gun for further practice. In this shoot, Kerr and Ilseng both had a 25, while Fleischmann and Davis missed but one "bird" in their rounds. Stack turned in a 23.

Kansas Woman Stars.

The Kansas State women's champion, Viola Siedhoff of Wichita, scored 23 and 21. Most of the outstanding women entrants are expected to engage in practice session until today.

Frank Kelly of West Orange, N. J., ranked as one of the favorites to come through in the all-gauge individual event, scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday, is expected to put in his appearance in time to engage in several trial rounds today.

One of the outstanding features in yesterday's practice was the excellent marksmanship displayer by the 12-year-old Odus "Junior" Baldridge of Terre Haute, Ind. His shooting was quite sufficient to stamp him as a real contender for both the sub-junior and junior titles. He nosed out Dan Bill McCormack of Greensburg, Ind., for the Indiana State junior title a month afo wiht a score of 44 out of 50. Yesterday he shot rounds of 20, 23 and 22. A seventh grade student, Baldridge hopes to be a winner by next Wednesday night. He received much of his instruction from Lovell Pratt, winner of the championship last year.

Beeder Gets Perfect Score.

Everett Herrick of Springfield, Mo., holder of the Missouri State title, scored two 23s and a 24, while the Illinois State champion, Charles R. Beeder, of East St. Louis, had one perfect round of 25 and followed this with 24 and 23.

Shooters from more than 20 states engaged in the practice sessions, which, incidentally, consisted of more than 500 rounds, or 12,500 shots.

The competition, scheduled for five days, gets under way each morning at 7:30 and will probably last until 6 or 7 p. m., depending on the number of entries. Entries will be accepted until midnight the day before each event is slated.

REDS WILL GET DAVIS FROM THE CARDINALS, CINCINNATI REPORT

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 14.—The Enquirer, in a staff special dispatch from Boston, says that Virgil Davis, No. 1 catcher of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Linus Frey, shortstop of the Brooklyn Dodgers, "will wear Redleg livery next year."

Negotiations toward their acquisition by the Cincinnati club "will be completed at the coming world series," the paper says, adding that "players will figure in both transactions."

FINAL RESULTS

Quarterbacks Are Small.

Tulane probably will take the field with an old time sized quarterback this fall inasmuch as three of the five candidates stand only 5 feet 7 inches in height.

General Work of Yankees Tops Week in the Majors

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The Dodgers, Phillies and Cardinals stole heavy-hitting honors in the major leagues during the past week, but it didn't do them much good against the performances of the White Sox, Yankees and Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Dodgers led the way with 111 base hits, followed by the Phillies with 102 and the Cardinals with 101, but not one of the three was able to get above the .500 mark in games won for the seven-day span, each winning five and losing the same.

Tough White Sox.

The White Sox, who are going to be tough to dislodge from second place in the American League, dropped only one game of their six starts to head the loop, but, as usual, the Yankees supplied all the fireworks.

Not only did they clinch the pennant early in the week, but they led both leagues in run-scoring, with 77 tallies, set the slugging pace with a flock of homers which gave them a new major league record of 175 for a season, and hammered out 99 hits for the leadership in the American League in that department.

The Giants maintained their National League peace by winning five of their nine games while the second-place Cardinals were just breaking even in 10 starts, but the Pirates topped both of them with five triumphs in eight games, and 56 runs for the league lead in that division.

The Dodgers allowed 69 enemy runs to score, to become the weakest team in that category, while the Boston Bees permitted only 24 and the White Sox but 25 for the best defensive records of the week.

Browns Can Field.

Afield, the Senators and the St. Louis Browns were the best in either league. They committed only four errors apiece, compared to 15 and 16, respectively by the Phillies and Dodgers for the worst.

Standings for the week, showing games won and lost, runs, hits, errors and opponents' runs for each club:

SHAMROCK SOCCER CLUB GETS FIRST WORK OUT

Hot weather or no, preparations for the soccer season must go on, so Manager Alec McNab sent the Shamrock club through a perspiring workout yesterday on the practice field, north of Public Schools Stadium.

The club intends to develop as many youngsters as it can and some of them may work with the veterans. A squad of 35 reported to McNab and to Bill Lehman, secretary and fullback of the club.

The Shamrocks will open their season here Oct. 4, against an out-of-town club.

MIDGET AUTO DRIVER IS HURT IN CRASH

Clyde Dillon, a midget auto driver, was hurt in a crash with Lou Walker yesterday afternoon in the races at Sylvan Beach, but he was reported as feeling better today.

During the 10-lap handicap race, Dillon collided with Walker and their cars spilled. Both drivers were thrown clear and after the accident Dillon was rushed to the County Hospital, but before the ambulance got there Dillon became conscious and said that he was all right.

SCRIMMAGE AT ST. LOUIS U. BRINGS ORDER FOR MORE WORK

The St. Louis University football players went through their first scrimmage yesterday during practice, but after looking at their performance, Coach Cecil Muellerleile was quite dissatisfied. Everything was wrong, according to "Mull," the backs not blocking right, the linemen not tackling, and the whole team exhibiting a sluggishness that was disappointing.

As a remedy, Muellerleile plans to give the boys plenty of work during the coming week. Fundamentals will be the order for today and probably for some days to come.

Only one player stood out in the scrimmage. He was the veteran Ralph "Red" Hemp, halfback, who passed accurately, punted well and did some excellent blocking.

On his performance of yesterday Hemp will probably graduate to a starting position from the place on the bench he occupied during the last two years.

Lou Drone, Woodrow Herrmany Johnny Nunn and Mule Kloepper were players on the "first-string" backfield, but they failed to please their coach. A second backfield with Johnny Vieth, Bob Shea, Hemp and Les Cagle working together did little better. Cagle then joined with Cletus Roemer, Mel McGonnigle and Carl Totsch in a third combination, but it, too, was a disappointment.

LITTLE AND SMITH WIN IN GOLF MATCHES

WRAY'S COLUMN

ble. Today this sport is of international scope, with literally millions of players. You find table tennis on shipboard and dryland, all over the United States and Europe and spreading to South America.

It may be that trap-shooting, too, has outstripped field-shooting in number of persons interested, as well as in ammunition burned.

* * *

Times Have Changed.

CHARLEY GRIMM is speaking, Warren Brown listening: "The way we (the Cubs) are situated it's very hard for us to operate with the minor league clubs. We have no players that we can use in deals with them. And if we did have players, we haven't any place to develop them. We simply have to work out some kind of a plan, if only for the reason that everybody else is doing it."

In other words, the Cubs now appreciate what Branch Rickey and Sam Breadon have been doing for nearly 15 years—developing players for major league consumption by bringing them up "on farms."

"Everybody else is doing it," says Charley. And that, too, is interesting. It was only a few years ago that a terrific storm arose because everybody else was OPPOSING it.

Owners and managers once complained bitterly of the injustice of the situation whereby the Cardinals enjoyed a monopoly of several player producing clubs, whereas all others had to be content with picking up players by the catch-as-catch-can plan.

* * *

Even the Commissioner's office viewed with a meticulously watchful eye every transfer of players within the Cardinal organization ready to pounce at the slightest excuse on a system so distasteful to the less progressive club owners.

In the end, the Rickey-Breadon plan won its way and now almost every major league club hopes to build along the Redbirds' "farm" lines. It is an accepted fact that this is the only way in which a major league team can provide itself with a sure supply of capable talent.

Considering the bitterness of the opposition, it surely was a famous victory.

* * *

Are They Growing "Soft?"

EACH Olympic revival is followed by agitations to change the Olympic program. They're at it again this year. A strong objection to demonstration and side-show features of the Olympic Games of the future has arisen; another group wants the personal contact sports deleted.

The side-show sports include field handball, sailing, canoeing, fencing and other events of low popular interest and considerable expense. They are supposed to "clutter" the program without producing much return in interest or money.

Removing the personal contact sports is a more vital matter and we hope the committee will not listen too seriously to arguments against them. Boxing, wrestling, soccer football, hockey, polo and other sports, which furnish more thrills than a stadium full of weight-tossers or javelin-throwers could provide, would be barred under this plan.

It appears that the personal contact sports arouse too much national hard feeling. The purpose of the Olympic Games is to foster peace and amity between nationalist groups.

Evidently the Olympians of today "can't take it," in the opinion of the anti-personal contact theorists. For centuries wrestling, boxing and the pankration, extremely violent physical contact events, were the most popular features of the ancient Olympic program. But no nations went to war about the hard feelings they caused, as far as this writer has been able to learn.

In those days athletes were able to differentiate between a sock on the beezer and a casus belli. If they happened to get licked in an Olympic bout, that was all right.

* * *

Sure to Retain Boxing.

We don't know about the cheering in those days, but the chances are the side-line support at ancient Olympics was just as nationally partisan as it occasionally was at Berlin.

If attendances mean anything, the Olympic Games of the future will not delete boxing, soccer or polo from the calendar, for these sports proved to be of intense interest to spectators. And if Poland cheered hard for its boxers, and Germany whooped her up for her soccer team, what's wrong with that?

* * *

To this writer the support the athletes received from their own nationals was pleasing and highly commendable. It was good-natured and there was not nearly as much hard feeling shown over defeat as has been seen at local soccer and professional baseball games.

WAGNER TEAM WINS Y. M. C. A. INDUSTRIAL SOFTBALL TITLE

The Wagners today are looking for new fields to conquer. They won the softball championship of the Y. M. C. A. Industrial League by defeating the Friedmans, 5 to 3, on the Blewett High School field yesterday afternoon.

The new champions jumped into a three-run lead in the first inning, while the Friedmans counted once in the second. The Wagners then scored twice in the fourth to take a 5-1 lead. Friedmans' last two markers were pushed across in the seventh.

Previously the teams had played a 5-5 tie in their championship series.

PERRY HAS NO INTENTION OF JOINING PROS AT PRESENT

THINKS 'OPEN' TENNIS EVENTS WILL COME IN FUTURE YEARS

English Star Not Interested in When U. S. Will Regain Davis Cup, But in Helping England Hold It.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Sept. 14.—Fred Perry, British holder of the U. S. singles tennis title, here for an exhibition match, may turn professional eventually, "but not now," he declared yesterday in commenting on rumors that he was about to desert the amateur ranks.

He was asked:

"Are you going to turn professional?"

Perry replied:

"Everybody asks that question. I've got so I just ignore it. I may turn professional in time, but not now."

Perry, who won the national championship at Forest Hills, N. Y., last Saturday, by defeating Donald Budge, was asked to comment on the upset in which Alice Marble dethroned Helen Hull Jacobs, national women's champion. He said:

"Miss Jacobs' defeat was due. She's been up there a long time. It's one thing to get the championship and another to keep it. I know. And besides, Miss Marble had the forcing shots Miss Jacobs didn't have. Don't forget, Alice Marble twice before came close to beating her opponent."

An interviewer inquired:

Thinks Open Meets Will Come.

Perry retorted:

"Tired? My goodness, no. I've trained for years. Why should I be tired? Perhaps that's why I win. I believe I have a little more than the other fellow."

The subject of an open tennis tournament, much like the national open in golf, was broached. On this the world's No. 1 tennis player said:

"An open tennis tournament may come but not now. I don't think it will come while I am playing. But you never know. The present men handling tennis in this country are doing a good job. The best they know how, which is the same way it was done 20 years ago. But I believe an open tournament is bound to come. Tennis players are willing and want to play regardless of whether they play against pros or amateurs."

Austin Hard Man to Beat.

Will the United States get back the Davis Cup?

"I'm not interested in when you people will win it back. I'm only interested in helping England keep it over there."

He extolled Bunny Austin, English Davis Cup player, saying:

"I know Austin isn't regarded highly in this country, but he still can play a whole lot of tennis. He hasn't lost in the Davis Cup matches when it was important to win. He does not play very much, but he is hard to beat when he bears down."

What about Kay Stammers, the beautiful English girl, who lost in the semifinals?

"I think she's the best woman player in the world—when she is right. The trouble is her game is erratic. But she'll be back. Don't forget."

Players Split Two Sets.

Budge met the English master in an exhibition yesterday, taking the first set, 6—3, and dropping the second to Perry, 10—8.

Both players played drab tennis through the first set. The second set was more warmly contested as Perry rushed in at intervals to display his net game and Budge unleashed blistering drives to send him back.

Fulton to Honor Helen Stephens On Wednesday

Homecoming for Helen Stephens will be one reception after another. Fulton, Mo., plans a celebration for Wednesday, the same day she and Dee Boeckmann and Harriet Bland, St. Louis representatives at the Olympics, will be honored by this city.

So the men who organized the receptions have decided to put the Fulton Flyer on a plane and fly her to Jefferson City, leaving Parks Airport at 1:30 in order that she may have time to reach the Fulton reception by 3 o'clock.

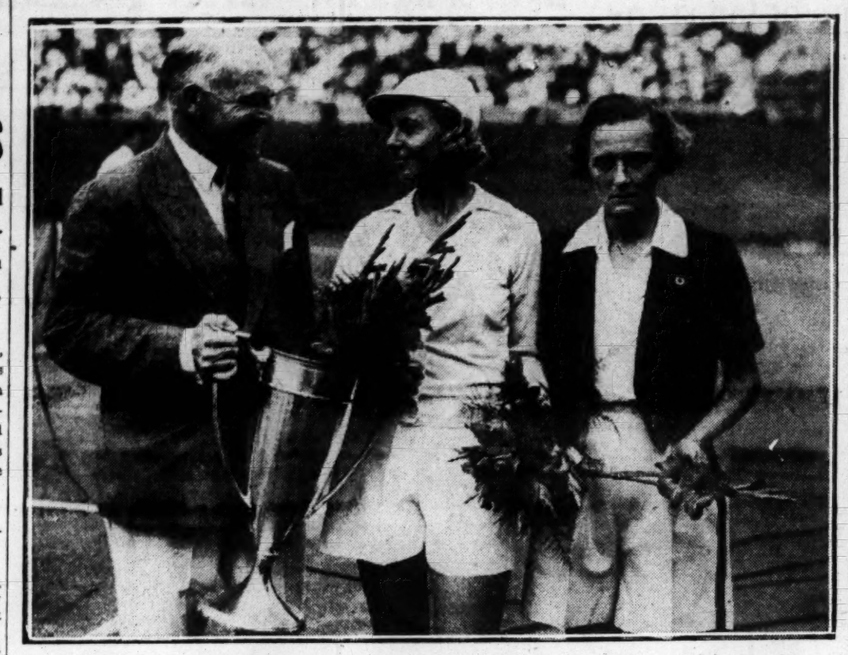

At Fulton, it is planned to have Gov. Park welcome home the fastest woman sprinter in the world, who established a new world record in the 100-meter dash at Berlin.

The St. Louis celebration will consist of a parade through the downtown district, official greetings at the City Hall and luncheon at the Hotel Jefferson about 12:30 o'clock.

Dizzy Gives 64,000 Crowd an Exhibition of Fine Relief Hurling

By J. Roy Stockton.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Dizzy Dean gave a great exhibition of relief pitching before yesterday's record-breaking crowd of 64,417, the largest gathering ever to see the two National League teams in action. The Giants had won the first game, 8 to 4, by pounding Jim Winford and Henry Pippen for seven runs in the first three innings, and they had cut a Cardinal lead in the second game from 4 to 1 to 4 to 3.

Ott was on first base by virtue of a single, with nobody out in the eighth inning and Parmelee had pitched a strike to Ripple when Frisch sent Coach Gonzales on to the field to halt the game. It was evident that Ripple was going to sacrifice and Parmelee isn't the best fielder in the world. A wild throw and the already slim chance of the Cardinals would be even more forlorn.

Dizzy, on the other hand, is one of the best fielding pitchers in the business. And then, too, Frisch had delayed too long in the second game of Saturday at Brooklyn. Dizzy gave a great show for the customer. He fielded Ripple's sacrifice bunt and threw him out, and when Leslie hit a high bounding drive to the box, Dizzy leaped and grabbed the ball with his glove and he knew what to do with it. Ott was trapped halfway to third, and Dizzy, keeping one eye on Ripple, personally took care of Ott, running towards him with a hip-shifting gait and tagging him without the necessity of a throw. Then Dizzy struck out Jackson to end the inning.

Gus Mancuso singled to start the ninth and Whitehead sacrificed, but, after walking Pinch-hitter Koenig, Dizzy put all his speed on every pitch and struck out the dangerous Joe Moore. He also gave Bartell all the speed he had, and when the New York shortstop sent an easy fly to Medwick the game was saved.

Plenty of Work.

Dizzy pitched a full game a week ago today, relieved and hurled one inning in Boston Thursday and then pitched nine and two-thirds innings Saturday. During his two innings against the Giants he had the advantage of twilight and was depending largely on his fast ball.

A home run by Johnny Mize with two men on base was the important wallop of the second game of the twin bill. Terry Moore singled with one out in the third inning, took second on Garibaldi's infield out and scored the tying run on Pepper Martin's single to left. Pepper took second on the throw to the plate, and Terry wigwagged to Pitcher Al Smith to walk Medwick. Mize picked on Smith's first pitch and hit into the right field seats for his nineteenth homer of the year.

The Giants had scored a run in the first inning on Joe Moore's infield hit, a wild throw by Durocher, Bartell's sacrifice and Ott's fly to Pepper Martin. In the sixth Ripple singled and Sam Leslie hit into the right field seats for a homer.

The first game could have been won if the pitching had been fair and if the base running had not been atrocious. Joe Moore's single and home runs by Bartell and Ott produced a three-run lead for the Giants before a man was retired, and in the second inning a hit batsman and four singles made the score 6 to 0.

Ogrodowski opened the third frame with a single to left, and when Pippen hit to Whitehead and Bartell dropped the throw at second, both runners were safe. Terry Moore singled to right, scoring Ogrodowski and, despite the still sizeable New York lead, there was much scurrying in the Giants' bull pen. But the Cardinals took Fitzsimmons out of the inning by turning a man-sized two-base hit into a double play.

One for the Book.

Garibaldi hit the two-bagger, a drive to the right center field, and reached second without difficulty. Terry Moore reached third easily and was considering trying to score, but suddenly he saw Pippen just a few feet ahead of him. Nobody knows just what happened to Pippen; whether he stopped at a hot dog stand or halted to tell Travis Jackson the story about the two traveling salesmen. Certainly he was dallying by the wayside for one reason or another, or perhaps both. A complicated explanation that was in circulation last night was that Coach Mique Gonzales shouted to Terry Moore to stop at third base, and Pippen, being only a bit ahead of Terry Moore, thought Mique was flagging him down.

At any rate, Pippen was trapped between third and home. Had he continued to the plate it would have been much better. But he retreated to third. That caused congestion, as Moore was there. Trying to help Pippen out of the mess, Moore started back to second, and Garibaldi, seeing Moore running toward him, retreated to first, thereby changing his two-base hit into a single, as a by-product of the Pippen adventure.

Pippen, of course, was retired, and after taking care of that chore, Mancuso saw Moore half-way between third and second and fired the ball to Bartell, who tagged Terry. Garibaldi was still at large, but he succeeded in returning to first base safely. Try that on your piccolo, if you can stand it. Men on first and second, nobody out. Man hits two-base hit. Two out and a man on first, no run scoring. And if you hurry, you'll be the first one to send it to Bob Ripley.

After Heusser relieved Pippen in the third inning, the Cardinal pitching was not bad. Heusser held the Giants scoreless until the eighth, and then, with Bill McGee pitching the Giants added their eighth run on Ott's thirty-second homer of the season.

One Apiece.

RED BIRD NOTES

For the first time in the history of Polo Grounds baseball, all reserved seats were sold several days before the doubleheader. Many thousands saw scraps of the game from runways and ramps, from which only the infield was visible.

Smith, Castleman, Coffman and Gumbert pitched for the Giants in the second game. Hubbell warmed up in the ninth inning of the first game, while the Cards were rallying for three runs, and he was warming up during the second game and would have pitched had the Giants tied the score.

Two Pinch-Runners.

When Mancuso singled to start the ninth inning of the second game, Terry sent in Spencer to run for him. Then, when Spencer had been sacrificed to second, Terry called on George Davis to run for Spencer.

Spectators tore up newspapers and score books and threw the pieces into the air and a breeze carried the scraps out over the playing field. Frisch stopped the second game to complain about the paper and at Umpire Sears' order, the announcer asked the public, over the public address system, to stop throwing the paper. The fans then threw more paper.

HARTMAN WINS TWO BAITCASTING EVENTS

Clem Hartman won two baitcasting events, but he was tied for all-round honors by Chester Huck in the casting tournament sponsored by the Carondelet Fly and Baitcasting Club yesterday afternoon in Carondelet Park.

Hartman won the five-eighth and three-eighth-ounce accuracy events, while Huck took the wet fly contest and finished second in the five-eighth-ounce and dry fly casts. William Lovely won the dry fly event.

The results:

⅝-OUNCE ACCURACY—Won by Hartman, 95; Huck, 90, second; Walter Franz, 86, and Henry Bloss, 86, tied for third.

Hitters Aren't to Blame.

Although the Phillies occupy the National League cellar they are second in the league in hitting and lead in home runs.

GOODMAN WINS FIRST MATCH IN U. S. AMATEUR

Johnny shot eight straight pars, bagged a birdie at the ninth with a 15-foot putt, then added four more pars to end the match. Meister held his sharpshooting rival level for five holes, then cracked wide open. Eddie took an eight on the seventh when he tried to use a spoon from a trap with disastrous results. He was four down to Johnny's sub-par 36.

Fischer made his best shot on the thirteenth and last hole. He pushed his drive into the trees, had to play a safety shot to the fairway, then hit a spoon 270 yards with a following wind. The ball toppled within 15 feet of the cup to clinch Johnny's par five.

Another upset came when young Jack Munger of Dallas, former tournament semifinalist, was eliminated by Dom Soccoli, 34-year-old owner of a gasoline station in New Britain, Conn. Soccoli, known mainly for his public links performances, led all the way and won, one up. Munger was three down after nine holes.

Freddy Haas Jr. of New Orleans, newly crowned Canadian amateur golf champion, was knocked out by Charlie Mayo Jr., holder of the Long Island championship. Mayo won, one up, in a match decided on the eighteenth green.

Mayo shot the steadiest golf in the pinches, but both played raggedly around the greens in a stretch battle in which they never were more than one hole apart. Haas, failing to control his approach shots, was level with Mayo only from the twelfth to fourteenth.

Paul Leslie of Jefferson City, Mo., and Louisiana State University, who holds the Western Amateur championship, was eliminated by Joseph Lynch of Boston, 2 and 1. Lynch, a former Georgetown captain and semifinalist last year, gained a one-hole margin at the turn and outsteadied his Mid-Western rival in a close finish.

Jack McLean, one of Scotland's principal threats, capitalized an outgoing 37, even par, to take command of his opening match and eventually beat Robert Lowe, a West Virginian, 3 and 2. McLean three-putted three greens on the incoming nine.

Matias Palacio, a 20-year-old San Francisco collegian, who recently was crowned California State amateur champion, won the day's longest over-time match from Howard Tryon of Elmira, N. Y. It went 22 holes before Palacio won, with a birdie four, on the fourth extra hole.

in some trees at No. 10, came out onto the fairway and knocked her third into the lake. Her next was in a trap to the right of the green and she came out nicely to take one putt for a seven.

She knocked her drive to the right of the eleventh green, looked up on her second and gained only a few feet. She rolled her third past the cup and took two putts.

Miss Guth parred the twelfth then missed a three-foot putt on the thirteenth for a three.

She hooked her first out of bounds at the fourteenth and took a five while at the fifteenth she got her par four by heroic efforts. She pushed her drive to the right and sliced her second to number 10 tee. But she made a nice pitch to the green and holed her putt for the four.

She was trapped with her first at the sixteenth, got out nicely and her third was off the edge of the green but her fourth overran the cup and she needed three putts to get in, missing a three footer for a 6.

After parring the seventeenth with a three, she three-putted the eighteenth green for a 6.

PURDUE'S TITLE HOPES WRECKED BY LOSS OF SIX FOOTBALL STARS

By the Associated Press.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Sept. 14.—Purdue University's hopes for a championship football team this year were buried in gloom and sorrow today with one member of the squad dead and five others suffering from severe burns received in a shower-room explosion of gasoline.

Carl E. Dahlbeck of Lyndonville, Vt., regular guard on the gridiron squad, died in a hospital here. He was burned seriously in the blast, but at the hospital his death was said to have been due to shock and toxemia.

Tom McGannon of Evansville, Ind., brilliant halfback, was reported to be in a serious condition, but physicians expressed belief he will recover. Lowell Decker of Reading, Mich., another regular on the squad, also was in a serious condition. Pat Malaska of Crawfordsville, Ind., and John Drake and James Maloney, both of Chicago, were less seriously burned.

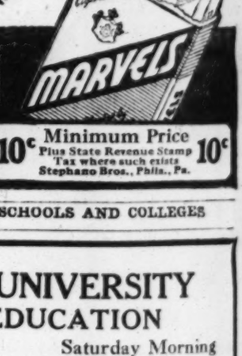

Dahlbeck, Drake, Decker and McGannon had been counted on as regulars for the 1936 team. Maloney is a promising sophomore and Malaska, better known for his work on the basketball team last year, was trying out for a halfback position.

Although the Boilermakers' first game of the season—with Ohio University—is only two weeks away, sorrow over the tragedy allowed for only slight concern over the prospects for the season.

Coach Noble Kizer said, "Carl was a star football player, which counts for little—but he was a high-class young man, which means everything. I can't say what our plans will be just yet. Our squad feels the tragic happening more than any outsider can realize."

The explosion recalled another tragedy in which a Purdue football team was involved. On Oct. 31, 1903, the team, en route to Indianapolis for the annual game with Indiana University, was in a train wreck and a score of the members of the squad were killed and several others injured.

PURDUE'S TITLE HOPES WRECKED BY LOSS OF SIX FOOTBALL STARS

By the Associated Press.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Sept. 14.—Purdue University's hopes for a championship football team this year were buried in gloom and sorrow today with one member of the squad dead and five others suffering from severe burns received in a shower-room explosion of gasoline.

Carl E. Dahlbeck of Lyndonville, Vt., regular guard on the gridiron squad, died in a hospital here. He was burned seriously in the blast, but at the hospital his death was said to have been due to shock and toxemia.

Tom McGannon of Evansville, Ind., brilliant halfback, was reported to be in a serious condition, but physicians expressed belief he will recover. Lowell Decker of Reading, Mich., another regular on the squad, also was in a serious condition. Pat Malaska of Crawfordsville, Ind., and John Drake and James Maloney, both of Chicago, were less seriously burned.

Dahlbeck, Drake, Decker and McGannon had been counted on as regulars for the 1936 team. Maloney is a promising sophomore and Malaska, better known for his work on the basketball team last year, was trying out for a halfback position.

INACTIVE NEVER IN MONEY IN 7 EARLIER STARTS AT THE TRACK

Whaley, Making His First Appearance as Jockey Rides "Long Shot" to Triumph Over Compliment.

By the Associated Press.

AQUEDUCT RACETRACK, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Inactive, a 50-to-1 shot that had failed to finish close to the money in her seven previous starts, sprang a major upset by scoring in the photo finish of the first race on today's card. The filly was ridden by a jockey named A. Whaley, unknown in these parts.

It was Whaley's first mount. He is said to weigh 115 pounds and to be employed by Fred Hopkins. The boy is a New Yorker.

Inactive ran over the leaders in the field of 11 maiden two-year-old fillies and got up to score over Compliment, one that was backed from 15 down to 6 to 1. Tory Rose was third in the blanket finish. The latter was favorite. She faltered after setting the pace.

Amagansett Wins Again.

Amagansett, which won a race Saturday at a Rockaway Hunts meeting, came right back under 165 pounds to give Trainer Hirsch Jacobs his 130th victory of the year in the hurdles event second on the card. The six-year-old gelding now has won three straight at this track. He led throughout and, as usual, weaved and swerved in front, but the result was allowed to stand after the stewards had interviewed C. R. White, rider of St. Francis, the second horse. The later, slight favorite over the winner at even money, made a game finish behind the heavily burdened victor but lost by a length. Amagansett took a piece of the fence with him at the fourth hurdle. Third money went to Quick Verdict, 15 lengths behind.

Amagansett's time of 2:39 1-5 beat Jungle Dawn's track record by one-fifth of a second.

Father and Son Golf Event Won By Roger Lords

Roger Lord Sr. and Roger Lord Jr. won the annual Father and Son golf tournament held yesterday at the Bellerive Country Club with a gross score of 73. The play was made up of alternate strokes by father and son over the 18-hole course. There were 98 players in the field. The Lords had a 67 net score.

The Hal Macoys of Woodlawn were second with 75 gross and 69 net. They also tied for the fewest number of putts with 30. The J. M. Glaneys, Bellerive, tied the Macoys for fewest putts. John A. Shontz and son, Lyle, were third in low gross with 76.

The low net honors went to the Les Slatterys, Meadow Brook, with 63 after their handicap of 18 had been subtracted from their gross. Les Jr. was one of the smallest players in the event.

BOB GUNNIS, BOXING PROMOTER, IS DEAD

By the Associated Press.

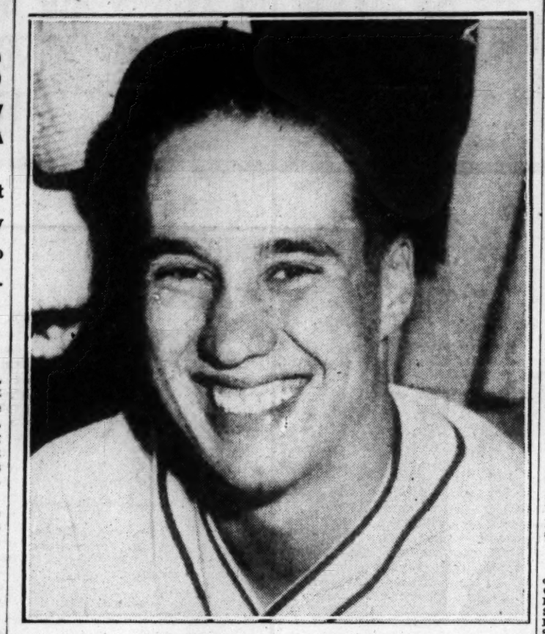

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 14.—Robert H. (Bobby) Gunnis of the boxing promotion firm of (Herman) Taylor and Gunnis, died yesterday after an illness of a year. He was 50.

Taylor said the death would not affect the heavyweight match between Joe Louis and Al Ettore, scheduled for the Municipal Stadium in Philadelphia, Sept. 22, under the firm's promotion.

Gunnis, native of Philadelphia, entered the promotion field with Taylor in 1918, after a short career as a boxing manager. Their most successful venture was the bout between George Godfrey, Negro, and Primo Carnera, later heavyweight champion, in 1930. It grossed $180,000.

Young Feller Makes Good

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Pitcher Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians, who yesterday set a new American League record of 17 strikeouts, against the Athletics. The mark tied the National League record, held by Dizzy Dean of the Cardinals. Feller is only 17 years old.

Feller, Indian Rookie, Fans 17 for a New Record in A. L.

By the Associated Press.

Records were smashed on all sides in both leagues through yesterday's program. One of the outstanding feats came when young Bob Feller, the Cleveland Indian's schoolboy sensation, fanned 17 Philadelphia Athletics batters to better Rube Waddell's American League mark and equal Dizzy Dean's major league record for strikeouts in a game.

In his spectacular strikeout performance, Feller allowed the A's but two hits as he won the first game of the twin bill 5—2. He walked nine men and struck out everybody in the lineup except one pinch-hitter. The tribe also took the nightcap 5—4 to pull up to a fourth-place tie with the Detroit Tigers.

The come-backing Red Sox walloped the Tigers 7—4, with Jimmy Foxx getting homer number 38, in the only other American League meeting. The White Sox and Senators were rained out.

Gene Schott pitched a three-hitter to give the Reds a 2—1 victory over the Boston Bees in the first game of a doubleheader. The Bees took the nightcap 6—1 with a 17-hit barrage.

The Pirates and Phillies divided their twin bill, the Bucs getting a 5—3 opener decision, and the Phils coming from behind to take the nightcap 4—3.

The Cubs blew their chance to gain on the National League leaders by getting only a split with the Dodgers, Ed Brandt pitching an eight-hitter in the opener for a 6—3 Brooklyn win, and Frank Demaree's big bat setting the pace for a 14-hit attack which gave the Cubs a 9—7 decision in the nightcap.

Stags Retain Trolley League Baseball Title

The Belleville Stags today own their second straight Missouri-Illinois Trolley League baseball title. They won the championship by defeating the Edgemont team, 4 to 1, at State Street Park, East St. Louis, yesterday afternoon.

Glen Barthleme pitched well for the Stags and limited Edgemont to seven hits. Clarence Smith of Edgemont was not far behind Barthleme, for the Stags only made eight hits off him.

Belleville took the lead, with a run in the third inning, but Edgemont tied it up at 1-all in the fourth. The teams battled on even terms until the first of the seventh, when the Stags scored three runs to clinch the game.

WEINSTOCK AND JOYCE PORTNOY WIN 1936 MUNY DOUBLES TITLE

By Davison Obear.

Herbert Weinstock and Joyce Portnoy are the new St. Louis district men's doubles tennis champions as the result of their victory over McNeil Smith and Karl Kammann in the final round of this year's tournament at Lewis Park yesterday They succeed Smith and Ray Wiese, who did not defend their honors.

The doubles final was started on Saturday afternoon but rain stopped the match at the end of four sets, each team having won two sets. Weinstock and Portnoy took the final set yesterday, winning the match, 4—6, 6—4, 4—6, 6—1, 7—5.

Losers Score First.

In the first set of the match Weinstok and Portnoy ran up a lead of 4 to 2 in games. Smith and Kammann, however, captured four straight to win the set, 6—4. Weinstock and Portnoy opened strong in the second set and led all the way.

The new champions forged ahead 3 to 2 in the third set but Smith and Kammann overcame the one-game advantage and won the set, 6—4. Weinstock and Portnoy were all over the court in the fourth set which they won, 6—1. The players took a short rest at the end of this set instead of at the end of the third set because of threatening clouds. All four had just taken their positions to begin the final set when the rain came.

Weinstock's forehand shots, coupled with Portnoy's volleying figured in the fourth set victory. Portnoy's high boundings service was very effective up to this stage of the contest as Smith and Kammann were only able to break it once.

The champions led, 2 to 0 and 5 to 3, in the fifth and final set but Smith's overhead and Kammann's volleying brought the set to deuce. Portnoy's service was broken three times in this set whereas Weinstock won his several times. Smith and Kammann slumped, however, in the next two games, which Weinstock and Portnoy won, taking the set, 7—5 and the championship.

Mixed Doubles Winners.

The district invitational mixed doubles tournament was won by Merceina Weiss and Ward Parker who defeated Lois Keene and Portnoy, 6—4, 7—5, in the final round. Miss Weiss and Parker are former holders of the Wisconsin University mixed doubles title.

Yesterday's Results.

MEN'S DOUBLES.

Final round—Herbert Weinstock and Joyce Portnoy defeated McNeil Smith and Karl Kammann, 4—6, 6—4, 4—6, 6—1, 7—5.

MIXED DOUBLES.

Shows why Momma was in a DITHER FOR DAYS, doing her Shopping

1. "Hey—Aintcha Goin' to Stop, Mister?"—

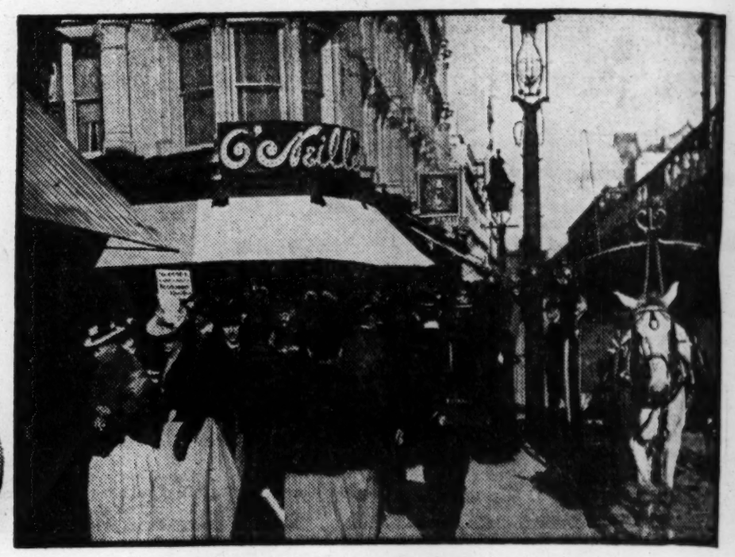

Back in '86, Momma had to start her "shopping day" early—oh, about 7 A. M.—because getting outfitted in those days took an all-day fitting. See, don't you remember the old car stop down by the vinegar works?

2. "How Much For the Rest O' The Way, Cabby?"—

Being a bit thrifty, Momma always rode part way on the street car, and then took a Hansom cab for the last 3 blocks. "Nothing like a lady keepin' her principles," she used to tell us.

3. "Gosh, Now Isn't It Cr-rowded?"—

Downtown at last. You see, the fair ladies all came downtown on fair days then too, well—because the very best people did it.

4. At The Ladies Bustle Shoppe—

5. "Oh Deah, Getting Fitted Is So Dreadfully Tiring"—

So while we're waiting, let's come back next Sunday-a-Week and see what was being fitted.

6. The Result—"Regina Model"—

Cut on the bias—now isn't it dashing? Well, it ought to be, what with 14 seamstresses, 1,326,000 beads, 2 gross pleats, and Momma being in a dither for two solid weeks about it. Goodness Gracious, wasn't shopping simply awful back in the old days, "B. F."—(Before the Forum.) Now we're coming to the ad part, but it's a suggestion worth reading.

Now In 1936...Here's HOW WE MAKE SHOPPING EASY

Come downtown in the morning! The comfortable street cars and buses are less crowded. If you drive, there's less traffic. Less parking troubles. Less dashing about from store to store. Much more time to shop, because the stores won't be crowded.

So, the salespeople will have more time to show you. See how much more time you have to find the cutest clothes and the best bargains...and how much more you accomplish.

Then, why rush home, tired out and ill tempered? Why not STOP by for a refreshing lunch at the Forum? Let us check your packages in our downstairs Check Room, (1¢ each.) How it will "pick you up" and how you'll enjoy it.

And here's the best part of it. Your Forum lunch will cost so little you'll save enough to go to the afternoon show. And that makes it a pleasant "shopping day", don't you think? Yes, our "Shopping Plan" has been approved by experts... the hundreds of women you'll see any day, at the Forum.

MAINE VOTE TODAY OPENING TEST OF G. O. P. STRENGTH

DEMOCRATS RELY ON BRANN'S POPULARITY

Kansas Governor Starts Home—Portland Address Expected to Change Results But Little

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 14. — Voters in Maine went to the polls today to cast what is expected to be a record vote and one which may indicate the direction of the political wind not only here but in the nation at large.

Republicans were confident of large majorities and a clean sweep of all state and national offices. The demonstration of Republican strength will be so formidable, party leaders believe, that it will serve as a stimulus to Republicans in other states.

That, according to party strategists, was why Gov. Landon came here—to speak against the national sounding board of a victory that is expected to be, if not overwhelming, decisive beyond any doubt. In his address Saturday night he was speaking not so much to the voters of Maine as to the coast-to-coast radio audience from the vantage point of what is presumed to be a Republican stronghold.

Landon on Return Trip.

Gov. Landon started on the first stage of his return pourney to Topeka with a schedule which calls for at least seven brief talks from the rear platform of his special train in as many cities in New Hampshire, Massachusettes and New York.

He boarded his train after a week-end devoted, for the most part, to a much needed rest as the guest of Senator Frederick Hale. He attended church with Hale and later the two men went for a walk along the quiet streets of Portland. With the groups that gathered outside the Hale house, not far from the center of the town, Landon was at his homely, informal best, posing for photographs with a small boy in the neighborhood, shaking hands, exchanging friendly greetings.

Later in the day he motored with Robert B. Choate, wealthy young publisher of the Boston Herald, to the latter's country estate, Topsfield, at Danvers, Mass., planning to go aboard his train at Nashua, N. H., the first stop, rather than return here.

Effect of Landon Visit.

While Maine Republican leaders express great gratification over the Landon visit, they have no illusions that Landon's speech changed any appreciable number of votes one way or the other. Voting sentiment is ordinarily crystallized pretty firmly several days or a week before an election, and it takes an event of the first magnitude to alter it in the closing days. Landon's speech, although it was the most aggressive effort of his campaign so far, could hardly be called that.

While he has overcome his first timidity, a major address is still for Landon an ordeal. He approaches the gaudily decorated rostrum with its battery of microphones with the air of a man who is about to have two wisdom teeth pulled. And as he talks he is aware—it is written plainly on his face—that he dosn't have the crowd with him. That vibrant relationship which an effective orator establishes between himself and his audience simply does not exist.

Annoyed by Photographers.

To add to the Governor's difficulties Saturday night were the news photographers who insisted on taking pictures, from a raised platform only a few feet away, after he had begun to speak. Radio listeners could hear him muttering in an undertone, "No! Not another one, no!" And finally he had to pause and order them down. Later, as though in reprisal, the boom of old-fashioned, apparently oversized flashlights sounded a half-dozen times from various points about the big field. The momentary flash, the boom of sound served to disturb the speaker and distract the crowd.

Directly in front of Landon, as always on the occasion of an important speech, were the news reel men, on a raised scaffolding. He had to speak into the camera-eye and the blazing klieg lights, hardly able to see the bleachers in which sat the greater part of his audience. To the Kansan it is a nightmare experience and in his half-hearted gesture of farewell toward the crowd on concluding Saturday night—an unfinished salute—there was a kind of despair.

Hitler's Conscript Army Shows Its Power in Great Military Demonstration at Nurnberg

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.)

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 14. —Nazi Germany's new compulsory service army gave its first display of strength with steel and motorized equipment for the benefit of its Fuehrer, Adolf Hitler, and hundreds of thousands of Nazis, assembled in fourth annual convention here today.

Zeppelin Meadow echoed to rifle, machine gun and artillery fire, 400 war planes thundered overhead, 100 tanks crashed through barbed wire entanglements, the eyes and noses of spectators were assailed by the smoke of innumerable explosions.

The display opened with an air parade of hundreds of observation planes, trimotored bombers, two-motored heavy fighters and single-engined pursuit planes, samples of fighting craft selected from Germany's 153rd, 155th and 156th Hindenburg battle squadrons and the Horst Wessel, Richthofen and Immelmann escadrilles.

The total strength of Hitler's new air force has not been disclosed, but this morning's parade was a broad hint that thousands of other war planes were quietly waiting at air bases in other parts of Germany.

Aerial Attack Repulsed.

After the air parade came an aerial attack realistically repulsed by anti-aircraft guns. The whole battle lasted only 16 minutes.

Then a regiment of cavalry galloped on the field led by mounted, massed bands, simultaneously shooting and galloping.

Horse-drawn light artillery demonstrated how a battery of field guns can be rushed into position, unlimbered, aimed and fired, and then galloped into a new position.

Similar demonstrations were carried out by both light and heavy motorized artillery.

The most spectacular display was a sham attack by 100 tanks on a column of infantry equipped with anti-tank guns. Eventually the tanks won.

When it was all over the 25,000 participating soldiers, sailors and air force men paused briefly for lunch; then began a repetition of the morning show for an afternoon audience of 150,000 persons.

The climax to this was a parade of 20,000 soldiers, 400 warplanes and the Zeppelin Hindenburg past Hitler.

Address by Hitler.

Hitler in a 10-minute address, said: "The future belongs solely to the brave.

"For the two years I demand of you I will return 10 years of better health. What you give the fatherland in your youth will be repaid to you in old age."

Hitler repeated his profession of peaceful intentions and said, "you, my soldiers, have been called by the nation not to serve a fanatical attempt by exaggerated chauvinism but to keep watch over our labor, our people and our Deutschland.

"I know you will keep this watch. You, in turn, have the conviction the entire nation today stands as erect as you are standing before me. The people, the party and the defense force must constitute an indissoluble, sworn unit."

Hitler's Speech Yesterday.

Germany is well armed and ready to defend a miracle—"the miracle of its own resurrection"—Hitler told 120,000 uniformed Nazis and 50,000 spectators in a ceremonial tribute to World War dead yesterday.

"Let no one be deceived!" he shouted.

"We are ready at any hour."

The distant tolling of church bells emphasized the Fuehrer's words as, speaking in the huge Luitpold grove, he dismissed with a phrase the material achievements of Nazi rule—expensive road building and claimed reduction in unemployment.

Resurrection of Humiliated People.

"Our miracle, however, was resurrection of a humiliated people," Hitler said.

"That miracle consisted not in the fact that one man arose (Hitler) who believed in the resurrection but that millions followed him and went the same way.

"That I found you, that you bore with me all these years—that was Germany's great good fortune."

Emphasizing that the 120,000 uniformed men before him were only an extremely small percentage of his 2,500,000 Storm Troopers, his 25,000 black uniformed "SS" men, not to mention the nation's armament equipment, Hitler asked:

"Who can oppose this bloc of national determination?"

"Ready at Any Hour."

"But let no one be deceived. We are ready at any hour. We all have one wish—to maintain peace—but with it goes one firm decision: Never to surrender Germany to that enemy we have come to know so well."

Referring to Spain, he said:

"Everywhere agitators are calling masses together in demonstrations against Fascism and against National Socialism — demonstrations for supplying arms and ammunition and volunteers.

"But if I should call a demonstration it would amaze the world. Millions upon millions would respond with flaming hearts."

In the early morning Hitler stood for a moment's silence before Nurnburg's statue in memory of the nation's war dead.

Such a deep silence fell on the vast audience of 170,000 Germans that only the twittering of birds in the grove behind the monument could be heard.

Wreath Laid Beside Tomb.

As the crowd watched intently, the bareheaded, coatless leader, wearing on his khaki shirt the iron cross he won as a Corporal in the World War, bowed his head before the monument and set a wreath at its base.

Later the crowd split the Sabbath quiet with its repeated cheers for its leader, Adolf Hitler, ruler and spokesman of the Third Reich.

After he honored those who died for Germany in the war, Hitler consecrated about 150 new standards of the Nazi movement by touching them with the "blood flag" of 1923, the most treasured relic of the National Socialist movement.

Later he stood in an open automobile on Adolf Hitler Plaza in the center of the medieval city to take the salute for three hours from marching Nazi columns and formations.

The Luitpold Grove, a huge field encircled by ancient trees, was the setting for the day's rites. It is closed at one end by the monumental grand stand and at the other by the war memorial.

Starting from early dawn, the brown and black shirted Hitlerites marched from their tent bivouacs to the grove, where, by 8 a. m., there were 86,000 storm troopers, 18,000 special guards and 15,000 active representatives of the Nazi motor corps.

They were stationed in their places with an exactitude and precision as though a space had been marked off for each "soldier of the Nazi movement."

Lengthy Demonstration.

Hitler's appearance was the signay for a demonstration lasting several minutes. Finally, above the din of about 170,000 voices in the audience, Der Fuehrer succeeded in shouting:

"Heil, men."

"Heil, leader," they chorused back.

The next part of the pageantry was the solemn march of the Nazi flag bearers, estimated at about 20,000, who appeared from the back of the grove, paraded slowly across to the accompaniment of band music and then ranged themselves in three massed tiers to the right and left of the huge grandstand.

Then followed the almost religious rite of honoring the war heroes.

The band played the deep-throated music of Wagner's "Goetterdaemmerung" as Hitler descended from the high rostrum and walked about 400 steps through the center of his black and brown-shirted troopers to the opposite end of the grove, where he deposited the wreath.

FRENCH ROYALIST PAPER ASSAILS BULLITT, NEW ENVOY

Says American Is Pro-Russian; Paris Government Expresses Its Regrets.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 14.—Edwin C. Wilson, the United States Charge d'Affaires, today made representations to the Quai D'Orsay against the attitude of the royalist newspaper, Action Francaise, on William C. Bullitt, American Ambassador-designate to France.

He received the Government's regrets from Pierre Vienot at the Foreign Office. Both at the Embassy and at the Foreign Office, officials said they considered the incident closed.

The newspaper accused Bullitt of pro-Russian sympathies and charged he was acting as a "Soviet agent" to promote a French-German war "which Dictator Joseph Stalin of Russia desires."

"It is a perfect shame and absolutely ridiculous when one knows the career of the new Ambassador," a foreign office spokesman said.

It was pointed out there is no French law controlling the press in such matters.

Hoover Urges Moses' Nomination.

ROCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 14.—Former Gov. Huntley N. Spaulding today made public a letter from former President Hoover asserting it would be a "great thing for the country" if New Hampshire returned George H. Moses to the Senate. Moses and Gov. H. Styles Bridges are opponents for the Republican senatorial nomination in tomorrow's primary. "In addition to the Senator's very great natural abilities," Hoover wrote, "he has had years of experience in national affairs in these most difficult times."

BLUM ACCUSED OF CONSPIRACY IN FRENCH-MOROCCO

Rightists Say He Is Trying to Provoke Uprising to Cause Trouble to Spanish Fascists.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 14. — Rightists charged the Blum Government today with attempting to provoke a native uprising in French Morocco in the hope the rebellious movement would spread to Spanish Morocco and cause trouble for Spanish Fascist rebels.

Communists, on the other hand, declared a Rightist military coup was planned for Morocco "with the complicity of Resident-General Marcel Peyrouton."

The Rightist newspaper Echo de Paris reported all chieftains of Abd-El-Krim, former war lord of the Rif, had been freed from exile and permitted to return.

"Several quarters affirm the Government is trying to provoke trouble in North Morocco to harass both Peyrouton and Franco (Gen. Francisco Franco, leader of the Spanish insurgents)," the newspaper declared.

"Some insist revolt in the neighboring zone would serve as an occasion for France to make war on the insurgents on the pretext of re-establishing order."

The Communist newspaper Humanite demanded the removal from office of the Resident-General, while informed sources predicted the Government probably would transfer Peyrouton, long attacked by the Leftists for his Rightist sentiments, to another post.

Abd-El-Krim, meanwhile, appealed to the Government to be freed from his 10-year exile and promised to "be useful to France" if permitted to return to his native country or to settle on the French Mediterranean coast. Decision on his appeal was withheld pending study of "the delicate situation created in Moroco and Algeria by the Spanish civil war."

Blum Can't Settle Strike.

Premier Blum, balked in his efforts to settle the sit-down strike of 35,000 Lille textile workers, returned to Paris last night.

The Premier indicated failure to end the strike, despite his intervention, was due to the employers.

The employers told Blum, informed sources said, their businesses would not stand the strain of a 10 per cent rise in workers' salaries—one of the demands of the strikers—without Government aid.

The Premier gave the employers 24 hours in which to select a member of his Government to decide the difficulties between them and the striking workers. He told them the collective labor contract, provided in legislation recently enacted by Parliament, should be signed and the strikers should return to their jobs without unnecessary delay.

Leaders of the striking textile workers accused the mill owners of trying to force the downfall of the Blum Government by refusing to accept arbitration. Charles Bourneton, secretary of the Lille Union, said strike leaders told Blum, "If you are attacked we will defend you. In two hours we are capable of rallying 100,000 workers."

Blum summoned all signatories to the Matignon accord, which settled the first series of occupation strikes last June, to a meeting in Paris. The purpose, informed sources said, was to reinforce the application of the 40-hour week and provisions of collective contracts.

Henri Barbusse Memorial.

Thousands of Communists marched to Pere la Chaise Cemetery yesterday for the unveiling of a memorial to Henri Barbusse, radical French writer. The monument was erected with funds subscribed by Russian workers.

The Communsts sang the "Internationale" and raised their clenched fists in salute, as they passed the marble memorial over which three Spanish Communist militiamen stood guard. The Spaniards had escaped to France from the fall of Irun.

Socialists thronged to Pershing Stadium, where they heard Leon Jouhaux, Socialist leader, and others at a mass meeting for "solidarity with the Spanish Government."

ONLY FAITH BACKING DOLLAR, SENATOR HASTINGS DECLARES

Says There May B. Collapse That Will Surpass Crash of 1929.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, returned to the United States today on the French liner Normandie with a word to say on the banking structure of the country.

"The total capital in banks in this country is less than six billion dollars," he said. "Yet these banks have been obliged to purchase 50 per cent of the total outstanding obligations of the Government or approximately $18,000,000,000.

"There is nothing to redeem the dollar today except what the Government is willing to pay. We are going along on faith. Faith should give way, in this situation, or otherwise there will be a collapse in this country of such portent that nothing like it was ever dreamed of before. The financial collapse of 1929 will be a Roman holiday in comparison."

FATHER COUGHLIN'S UNION LISTS RECEIPTS OF $489,000

$473,000 Paid Out Since Jan. 1; $687 to Priest for Traveling Expenses.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14. — Receipt of $489,293—mostly in small contributions—from Jan. 1 to Aug. 31, was reported today by the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin's National Union for Social Justice.

The Union listed expenditures of $473,380 between Jan. 1 and Aug. 31 in its report to the Clerk of the House of Representatives. The report said that the only money paid to Father Coughlin during the last three months was $687.50 for traveling expenses.

Largest expenditures in the last three months were $27,277 for salaries and $5788 to J. P. Bramer of New York City, for organization expenses.

In other reports filed with the clerk, it was shown that four members of the Rockefeller family had donated $20,000 to the Westchester (N. Y.) Republican County Committee. John D. Rockefeller Sr., John D. Rockefeller Jr., John D. Rockefeller III and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr. gave $5000 each.

LEAGUE SAYS FEAR OF WARS IS MAIN CAUSE OF BIG DEBTS

Report of Economic Committee Points to Rapid Increases in Armaments.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 14.—A principal source of financial difficulties among nations, a report of the League of Nations Economic Committee said today, is the fear of international conflicts which is causing a rapid increase in armaments.

The committee recommended dropping restrictions against foreign exchange and importations. It doubted stabilization of currencies could be of any value unless this were done.

Employes Strike, Occupy Casino.

HITLER FOR INDUSTRY ON COMPETITIVE BASIS

Says If He Nationalized Business He Would Have Nothing But Bureaucracy.

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.)

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 14. —Germany will guard jealously the principle of private enterprise in business, Chancellor Hitler asserted today. He denied his plans for the future included placing all industrial establishments under Governmental control.

"I will never permit bureaucratization of German industry," he declared.

Hitler's views on business were given in an informal conversation at Nurnberg Castle after a source close to the Chancellor had said a decree to make effective his four-year plan for economic independence might be made public this week.

"I am convinced there must be competition in business to bring the best to the top," Hitler declared. "I could take over all business but what would I have then—nothing but a bureaucracy.

Nationalization of German industry, Hitler said, would result in "workers and executives losing interest" in their jobs and "it would not be long before they would become mere jobholders expecting automatic advancement by seniority instead of initiative.

"Great improvement in manufacturing processes springs from keen rivalry between competitors," he said.

"But does not Socialist economy pre-suppose restriction of private enterprise?" one of his listeners asked.

"Of course," Hitler replied, wherever private interests clash with the interests of the nation the good of the community must come before profits to the individual. But that still leaves abundant room for private enterprise."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Traffic on the Municipal Bridge.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE coming of fall has brought an annual major problem to the thousands of people who must commute daily by automobile between St. Louis and East St. Louis via the Municipal Bridge. Each day are to be seen heavily overloaded and broken-down coal trucks obstructing traffic while the three lanes of traffic must creep at a foot-pace around them. The trouble is at its peak from 7 to 8 o'clock in the morning and from 4:30 to 5:30 in the evening.

This letter is not written with the idea of keeping off the roads or harassing the men who make their living by trucking in coal from Illinois. It is to suggest that some means be considered by which the rush hours on the bridge could be relieved of so many obstructions. Two possible means are the following:

Since U. S. Highways 40 and 50 pass over this bridge, the City might co-operate with the State Highway Department in weighing trucks starting up the east approach. A few small fines would discourage gross overloading of the trucks, and the lightened machines would have more chance of making the long crawl up the east approach.

A second suggestion, perhaps impracticable, would be for the City of East St. Louis, in co-operation with St. Louis, to work out a parking field in the vacant areas of the switching yards under the east approach where heavy trucks could be detained for one hour during the morning and evening rush hours. By allowing only passenger cars and light delivery traffic during these periods, not only would the pace of traffic be speeded up, but a step would be taken toward eliminating some of the many bad accidents which occurred on the bridge last winter.

She Saw a Blue Moon.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

"ONCE in a blue moon!" I have used the expression before, but never had the thrill of really seeing a blue moon until this summer. One Sunday recently (I think it was Sunday, Aug. 23), my husband and I were sitting in front of our home, looking south, and we really and truly beheld that very unusual sight—a blue moon! There were fluffy clouds to the southeast, and patches of vivid blue sky, and the moon was just as vividly blue as the sky to the southeast. It later faded to a blue-green, then to its natural pale color. It was between 7 and 8 o'clock, and it lasted about 20 or 30 minutes. The moon was about one-third full at the time.

BOSSVOTE.

A Confused Voter.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ALTHOUGH there is no lack of parties or of candidates in the presidential field, the independent thinker finds he is up against a problem.

A vote for Roosevelt means continuation of present conditions; a vote for Thomas would have the same effect as voting for Washington or Lincoln; a vote for Browder is a vote for rebellion; a vote for Lemke is a vote for a $200-a-month pension, for which, by present indications, millionaires only will be eligible. And Landon's only recommendation is balancing the Kansas budget with Government funds made possible by the present administration.

The independent thinker might as well stay at home and watch the old ship of state sink or float, as time may decide.

DISGUSTED.

A Boyhood Tragedy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WILL you please convey to the fair Adelaide my tragic sorrow at the prominence into which she has flung the lowly rain crow, bringing it forth, as she did, from its retiring nooks to the pitiless glare and the clashing cymbals of this column? The many times I recently have read of rain crows brought back in all its vividness the memory of a tragic happening which, alack, befell both me and a hapless member of this species, during my not-so-long-ago boyhood.

Armed with what boys of Yankee proclivities term a "beanie," I roamed the pasture near my home one day, fancifully on the make for Indians on the warpath, train robbers and others of the like.

Sitting coyly in a shady maple, my sharp eyes espied a rain crow and, what with no more desirable target being in view, almost before I knew it I had flipped a pellet at the bird. The poor creature tumbled dead and, aghast at my crime, I knew not what to do. So, taking the lifeless thing home, I laid it on the back porch, where my father saw it. Not knowing what else to do to punish me for such a misdeed, I suspect, he made me fry and eat the rain crow.

And I know full well, fair Adelaide, that rain crow, even as a once-in-a-lifetime diet, is something which even now makes me shudder. And so, fair Adelaide, I hope your education anent the rain crow has been wholly and fully completed and that never more shall the dulcet cooing of the bird impinge upon my ear as I read letters from Porgie et al.

ONE WHO HAS EATEN CROW.

THE CAMPAIGN REALLY BEGINS.

At Portland, Me., Gov. Landon made his first fighting speech of the campaign. By comparison, his addresses at West Middlesex, at Chautauqua and even the relatively more spirited one at Buffalo were so mild and couched in such unquestionable generalities as to arouse perturbation among many of his followers. It was a pretty generally expressed view that, on his first trip to the East, the Republican candidate had failed to make a powerful impression on his audience.

The speech at Portland was different. In it, Gov. Landon directed his attack at the most vulnerable parts of the President's record—namely, his continued devotion to the philosophy embodied in the dead NRA and his apparent unwillingness to accept as final the unanimous opinion of the United States Supreme Court on the NRA. The Governor charged the President with deliberately keeping alive and cherishing the NRA, despite the court's decision, and he asked the President to state his position "in plain language."

Here the Governor has his teeth in something truly vital. It is vital in two aspects. First, as the Governor shows, the NRA philosophy is antipathetic to American tradition. It fosters monopoly at the expense of small business. It involves—necessarily—a vast accretion of presidential powers, repugnant to the balance that should be preserved between Congress and executive. It means the creation of a vast bureaucracy and a vast body of bureaucratic decrees having the force of law. It means the abandonment of free enterprise. It means the opening wedge to Socialism.

Thus, at length, does the Republican candidate state the case against the NRA. The case, it is true, has already been made. It was made in the minds of the people, as a thousand indications showed, before the Supreme Court handed down its celebrated decision in the Schechter case. In that decision, every Justice concurring—the so-called liberal wing agreeing fully with the so-called conservatives—the case was completed with definite finality.

Second, Gov. Landon's criticism is vital because not only has the President shown a stubborn adherence to the philosophy of the NRA and, therefore, a desire to change the whole course of the American system, but because the President has guardedly and by indirection challenged the authority of the Supreme Court. From the time of his famous "horse-and-buggy" interview to the present, he has repeatedly voiced his dissatisfaction with the disposition of New Deal legislation at the court's hands.

One of his most daring and significant statements was made in July, 1935, following the death of the NRA in May of that year, in a letter to the chairman of a subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee, as follows: "I hope your committee will not permit doubts as to the constitutionality, however reasonable, to block the suggested legislation." The suggested legislation was the Guffey-Snyder coal bill, later passed by Congress and still later knocked out by the Supreme Court.

The Guffey-Snyder coal bill was popularly known as the "little NRA." It attempted to apply the principles of the big, dead NRA to a single industry. If it could be applied to a single industry, inferentially, it could be applied by separate legislation to other single industries. It offered a possible national substitute for the big NRA—a possible way of circumventing the court's decision, just as the Soil Conservation Act circumvented, to use the word of one of the President's apologists, the Supreme Court's AAA decision.

Gov. Landon did not mention the incident of the President's famous letter, but he must have had it in mind. He did not mention the President's Baltimore speech, which, though in vague terms, was widely interpreted as a veiled tribute to NRA philosophy. He did not mention numerous passages in which the President has clearly indicated his desire for a new interpretation of the interstate commerce clause of the Constitution, to permit the Federal Government to do certain things which it is now forbidden to do. The NRA, for example, went beyond the Supreme Court's interpretation of the commerce clause. But Gov. Landon did, mention the Democratic platform, whose whole spirit is a dedication of the Democratic party under Mr. Roosevelt to a collectivist solution of our national problems.

Gov. Landon wants the President to come out into the open and make himself clear. He wants the issue sharply defined. The challenge needed to be made.

Only now, as the echoes of the Portland speech resound through the nation, has the campaign entered into a meaningful, significant phase. The Republican candidate at Portland showed for the first time a capacity for high controversy, for getting down to the fundamentals of the contest.

NEWS REEL.

Farmers in U. S. suffer heavy losses from lack of rainfall, and farmers in England suffer heavy losses from excessive rainfall; Republican National Committee spends $2,500,000 to get votes for its candidates, and candidate for precinct committeeman at Miami, Fla., pays for advertising space to ask citizens not to vote for him; Maharajah of Mysore tours England on special train to avoid breach of caste restrictions, and King of England, incognito, mingles with other patrons at public Turkish baths in Vienna; American Federation of Labor estimates number of unemployed in country at 11,170,000, and New York Sun survey estimates number of unemployed in country at 6,000,000; Worcester (Mass.) women offers to sell her husband for $20,000, and Hot Springs (Ark.) girl sues man for $100,000 for breaking promise to wed; Otto Dietrich, Nazi press chief, says Germany is "the most modern democracy in history," and Adolf Hitler, Nazi leader, says, "All states have experienced the destructive effects of democracy"; Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, who wanted to go to United States Senate, is defeated in primary, and George Norris of Nebraska, who wanted to retire from United States Senate, is nominated by petition.

PERFECTION—ALMOST.

How many brave voters in Germany voted "nein" at Adolf's "ja" election? Anyhow, the number was microscopic, but it had nothing on the "no" vote on the riverfront bonds at the September, 1935, election. Glancing down the tables of the 57 finest examples of vote delivery, one sees figures like 737 to 12, 2831 to 44, 2407 to 59, 5127 to 150, 1219 to 12.

But the eye finally settles on the marvelous showing of precinct 4, Ward 22. There, my hearties, is the ne plus ultra. The score in that precinct reads: 505 to 0. Not a single soul in Precinct 4, on the face of the returns, was against the bond issue—with the possible exception of the one voter registered in the precinct whose name was not recorded as voting. He perhaps might have stridden into the polls that day like a village Hampden, scorning the mass opinion of his neighbors, and broken the perfect record.

He did not appear, however, and what a shirker he must feel himself to be as he discovers that but for him the precinct would not only have registered a 100 per cent vote in favor, but it would have voted 100 per cent of its entire registration. Nothing, alas, is perfect, but Precinct 4's showing is as near perfection as anything we have observed on this cooling sphere.

MR. WAECHTER AND THE FRAUDS.

Missing: An important and possibly highly significant sheaf of records of the September, 1935, riverfront bond issue election, showing the time at which the various ballot boxes were delivered to the Board of Election Commissioners.

In at least one St. Louis election, held a generation ago, the time element was a vital one. In that election, the results in the old Fourth Ward were delayed and, in one precinct in particular, were not reported until 3 a. m., although returns from nearly all other precincts were in before midnight. It happened that the margin needed to elect the boss' candidate was provided by the Fourth Ward. The precinct reporting at 3 a. m. was overwhelmingly for him.

What a study of the time element would prove in connection with the bond issue election, now under investigation, is, of course, unknown. But it is one of the aspects of the election that certainly should be handed to the present grand jury for examination.

Failure of the board to find the time records brings to mind the words of the last grand jury:

> We were astounded at the apparently careless and negligent manner in which official records called for by the statutes of the State to be made and kept in the conduct of the Election Commissioners' office were either kept or preserved.
>
> We found to our dismay that many such records were missing, many incomplete and many incorrect, and much necessary information not available; with the result that records which should have been of benefit to us in our inquiry were in many cases missing.

What became of the time cards? What became of other records sought by the grand jury?

The condition of the board's records, which dismayed the grand jury, is a sinister addition to the charges that have been made against the board, requests for whose removal are lying on Gov. Park's desk as unfinished business.

Not the least of the disquieting disclosures of the past weeks regarding the board is the attitude of its chairman, James A. Waechter, as revealed in a newspaper interview last week. Confronted with indisputable evidence of widespread fraud in the riverfront bond issue election, this public official, charged by law with maintaining the sanctity of the ballot, made this remarkable statement:

> I think when the new grand jury makes an investigation of the bond issue election, it will find there is not much to the allegations of fraud. I do not look on this as something as serious as some people do.

Here the chairman presumes to forecast what a grand jury which, at that time, had not even convened, would find, and, for himself, minimizes the seriousness of a showing that ballot boxes were stuffed, votes miscounted and various other crimes against the election laws committed.

In face of such a showing, the chairman should be in the forefront of the demand to discover and punish the culprits. He should be the first to decry the rape of the election laws which are in his keeping. Instead, he does "not look on this as something as serious as some people do."

We submit that Mr. Waechter has himself driven the last nail into his own official coffin.

NATURALIZE THE ALIEN.

The announcement of the Americanization Department of the St. Louis Board of Religious Organizations of its plans for citizenship work among aliens directs attention to the need for greater activity of this sort in the St. Louis area. For, after allowance has been made for the unselfish efforts of a comparatively few volunteer teachers, the fact remains that metropolitan St. Louis is laggard in this respect.

What can be done is being demonstrated in Chicago, where a marked increase, each year over the preceding year, has been shown by the report on naturalizations for the fiscal years 1934, 1935 and 1936. Figures for the last year show that 17,911 American citizens were taken off the alien rolls, so to speak, and that among these were representatives of 36 foreign countries.

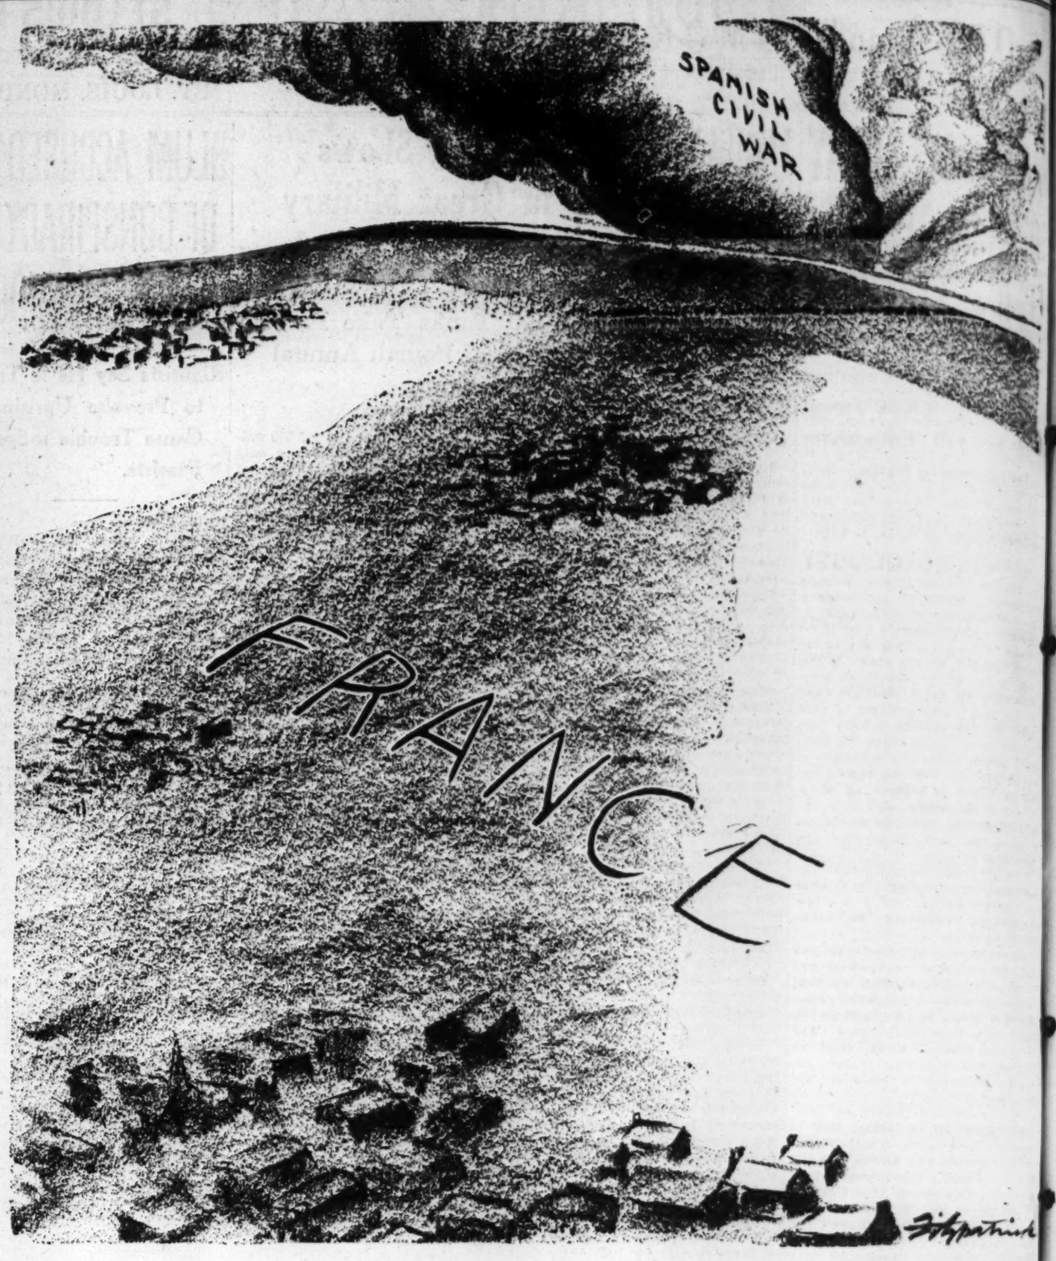

As it happens, in Chicago there are other factors besides citizenship schools contributing to the Americanizing process. Many large employers of labor are declining to hire aliens when citizens are available. In certain businesses, the applicant must be a citizen to obtain a city license. There as elsewhere many aliens are displeased with changes in government in their home lands, and say so in effect by declaring a new allegiance.

Every alien who has lived in this country any length of time is an American investment. Naturalizing him is cheaper than deporting him. It is better for the individual, who feels a sense of obligation on becoming a citizen, and for the country, which benefits accordingly. The St. Louis area should get behind this movement and push it.

COMMUNISM IN THE SCHOOLS.

John P. Phillips, California State Assemblyman, has an idea at which all the professional Red-hunters may be expected to stand aghast. These vigilant gentry have been seeking with all their power to "keep Communism out of the schools," even to the extent (in Washington, D. C.) of forbidding teachers to mention that political philosophy in any connection. Mr. Phillips, on the other hand, wants to put Communism into the schools. Not that he seeks to win the coming generation over to its tenets, for he is doubtless just as strongly opposed to them as is the most ardent Red-chaser. His view is that the best way to defend the country against Communism is to spread knowledge of its principles, and to permit students "to see its weaknesses."

The story of the forbidden fruit in the Garden of Eden is familiar to all, and has stood through the centuries as symbolizing the fact that knowledge when suppressed becomes the more alluring. If Communism does indeed menace democracy, then it behooves all supporters of democracy to learn what their opponent stands for. It would be a poor physician who faced an epidemic without knowing something about the disease he seeks to overcome. The citizens of tomorrow would profit by an objective presentation of various political philosophies.

CASTING A LONG SHADOW.

Laws That Die in 1937, Unless—

Nearly a score of important Federal measures will expire by limitation next year if Congress does not re-enact them; one is devaluation authority, which Roosevelt probably would continue, but which Landon opposes; Neutrality Act likely to be revised; others on list are trade pact law, 3-cent postage, CCC and excise taxes.

From the United States News.

THE year 1937 is to be one of second thoughts in Congress. On nearly a score of important questions affecting the Government and its citizens individually, present laws will expire by limitation. So legislators will be faced with the problem of permitting them to die or giving them a new lease of life, with or without alterations.

The scope of these laws extends from the 3-cent postage rate for first-class mail to Federal gasoline taxes, from neutrality regulations to power of the President to change the gold content of the dollar.

Coming as these limitation dates do in the first year after the country has an opportunity of changing administration, they open the way for some sharp reversals in the policy should the electorate decide to change its leadership.

* * *

The first of the emergency powers to expire (Jan. 30) are those granted to the President to alter the gold content of the dollar to any point between 50 and 60 per cent of its former value, to fix the weight of the silver dollar at a ratio in relation to the gold dollar and to permit unlimited coinage of gold and silver at this ratio.

Only one part of this grant of authority has been used—alteration of the gold content of the dollar. The devaluation was close to the least possible under the law. The dollar's value was cut to 59 cents, although it might have been reduced to 50 cents.

As for extension of this power, President Roosevelt has not definitely committed himself, although reasons exist for believing he would favor it. There are definite indications against any intention of further lowering the dollar's value. In the event of stabilization of currencies by international agreement, the President's hand would be strengthened in negotiation by the possession of authority to alter the dollar's value.

Gov. Landon, on the other hand, has committed himself to seeking a dollar of fixed statutory value. The rigidity of his position, however, is tempered by the proviso that the fixing of its value must not work hardship to the domestic economy. Gov. Landon would also seek to restore the convertibility of paper money into gold.

* * *

Another power of more immediate importance is that given the President to use the "profits" from dollar devaluation as a stabilization fund. This fund is currently reported by the Treasury at $1,800,000,000. Its status as a definite fund ceases on Jan. 30, unless extended.

The President intends to continue the use of this fund—Congress and the electorate willing. Otherwise, the budget estimates released recently might have taken advantage of this large fund to show a budget substantially in balance.

On Feb. 1, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation loses its power to make new loans. Signs point to letting this power die for the time being, with the agency continuing to collect loans already made. There is a move on foot, however, to keep it as a permanent agency for meeting future emergencies such as that it was created to handle.

March 3 brings to an end the power of the Federal Reserve Board to permit the issuance of Federal Reserve notes on the security of Government bonds. This was a power voted in the feverish days of the bank panic in 1933. It has been renewed from year to year. Actual need of the law on the basis of present conditions would appear to be negligible, in view of the huge gold reserve. The Reserve Board, however, has given no hint of its attitude.

The Civilian Conservation Corps will be out of money at the end of March. The President has indicated that he wishes it continued indefinitely in the future.

The next day, April 1, marks the end of the period within which modernization loans may be made by the Federal Housing Administration. Loans on electric appliances advanced by the Electric Farm and Home Authority will cease two months earlier unless Congress acts before Feb. 1.

May 1 brings the end of the Neutrality Act. Since it was passed, all the signs have pointed to its revision and strengthening rather than its lapse. Seeing that its provisions are enforceable only in case of a war between nations, the Spanish civil war and the complications it has threatened to bring about have lain entirely outside the scope of possible action under the law.

* * *

June will tell whether or not the authority of the State Department to negotiate trade agreements is to be extended. Fourteen agreements have been arranged, and the State Department is anxious that the power shall be continued.

The law giving the Federal Government power to prevent interstate shipment of oil produced in excess of quotas set by states is due for reconsideration before the end of June. Three months later, the permission for oil states to make compacts for limiting oil production will expire, barring congressional action.

On June 30, a number of excise taxes are due to expire which brought in more than $300,000,000 in revenue last year. These include the gasoline tax and imposts on automobiles, radios, refrigerators and amusements. Their continuance will probably depend on how determined the administration is to balance the budget in 1938.

On July 1, the 3-cent postal rate returns to 2 cents, barring further action. The increase dates from 1932.

July 4 will mean more than Independence day to farmers who have been paying 3½ per cent on mortgages held by the Federal land banks, provided Congress does not extend the period in which this rate prevails. Barring such action, the rate returns to the rate payable before the reduction to 3½ per cent. For some farmers, this will be 5 per cent. After July 1, new loans from the Federal land banks will cost 4 per cent.

On Dec. 31, 1937, benefit payments to individual farmers are scheduled to cease. As the law now stands, the Federal Government may make payments to states which adopt soil conservation regulations acceptable to the Government, but it may not pay benefits to individuals after the beginning of 1938. There have been no such state laws enacted.

These are the chief measures on which action must be taken or else the situation in the fields affected will automatically revert to that prevailing before the present laws were passed.

New Use for an Old Law

From the Kansas City Star.

ACTION against alleged members of the Black Legion is being taken under the terms of Michigan's criminal syndicalism law. The fact is noteworthy; for, as the Detroit News has pointed out, the persons and organizations that secured the enactment of this statute almost certainly did not have in mind its possible application in such circumstances.

The Michigan law follows the lines of similar legislation adopted in certain other states, notably on the West coast, primarily to control labor unrest. That is to say, it is very broadly drawn, to embrace "criminal sabotage, violence or other forms of terrorism as a means of accomplishing industrial or political reform." Liberal-minded persons have opposed such laws, not because of their professed purpose, but because the looseness of their wording generally offers such evident opportunity for abuse.

It is not strange, therefore, that, on the whole, criminal syndicalism laws have come to be associated with attempts to back up reactionary labor policies and over-zealous patriotism. And since what is known of the program of the Black Legion displays the same kind of fanaticism as must be attributed to the "Red" hunters who find criminal syndicalism statutes such an aid, this use of Michigan's law against alleged members of that organization presents an obvious element of paradox.

The unexpected convenience of such legislation in meeting the legal problems produced by the activities of a Black Legion, of course, does not affect the fundamental objection to criminal syndicalism laws. But if they are to remain on the statute books it is reassuring to see one of them employed on behalf of tolerance and the basic American traditions of human liberty.

MUSIC IN ST. LOUIS.

From the Chicago Daily News.

EUGENE STINSON'S notable series of articles in the Daily News on municipal opera in St. Louis was a first-rate lesson in civics as well as a treat for music lovers. St. Louis has proved that an American city can produce popular entertainment of high cultural values without waste, ostentation or political smudge.

St. Louis is smaller and more compact than Chicago, but there is no other important difference between the cities. Neither has ever ranked as highbrow, and neither ever aspired to such a reputation. Like Chicago, St. Louis is a great railway crossroads around which has been built up a vast industrial system with a great commercial organization to distribute its products and to assemble raw materials for manufacture. And that, by the way, is the general pattern of most American cities.

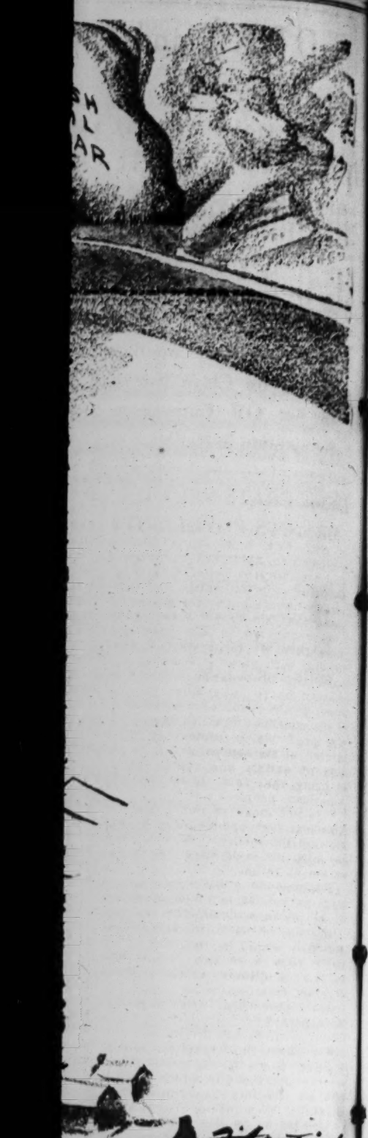

Yet, in the field of public entertainment St. Louis is unique. No other city in the country has ventured to emulate its enterprise of purveying summer entertainment to upward of 700,000 people. To do that every year at a profit, all of which is reinvested in the plant, would tax the highest talent engaged in commercial amusements. How the achievement ever been equaled?

Summer opera in St. Louis is a challenge to Chicago—not to imitation, but to emulation in some manner suited to our metropolitan area.

From the Kansas City Star.

ACTION against alleged members of the Black Legion is being taken under the terms of Michigan's criminal syndicalism law. The fact is noteworthy; for, as the Detroit News has pointed out, the persons and organizations that secured the enactment of this statute almost certainly did not have in mind its possible application in such circumstances.

The Michigan law follows the lines of similar legislation adopted in certain other states, notably on the West coast, primarily to control labor unrest. That is to say, it is very broadly drawn, to embrace "crime, sabotage, violence or other forms of terrorism as a means of accomplishing industrial or political reform." Liberal-minded persons have opposed such laws, not because of their professed purpose, but because the looseness of their wording generally offers such evident opportunity for abuse.

It is not strange, therefore, that, on the whole, criminal syndicalism laws have come to be associated with attempts to back up reactionary labor policies and over-zealous patriotism. And since what is known of the program of the Black Legion displays the same kind of fanaticism as must be attributed to the "Red" hunters who find criminal syndicalism statutes such an aid, this use of Michigan's law against alleged members of that organization presents an obvious element of paradox.

The unexpected convenience of such legislation in meeting the legal problems produced by the activities of a Black Legion, of course, does not affect the fundamental objection to criminal syndicalism laws. But they are to remain on the statute books, it is reassuring to see one of them employed in behalf of tolerance and the basic American traditions of human liberty.

MUSIC IN ST. LOUIS.

From the Chicago Daily News.

EUGENE STINSON'S notable series of articles in the Daily News on municipal opera in St. Louis was a first-rate lesson in civics as well as a treat for music lovers. St. Louis has proved that an American city can produce popular entertainment of high cultural values without waste, ostentation or political smudge.

St. Louis is smaller and more compact than Chicago, but there is no other important difference between the cities. Neither has ever ranked as highbrow, and neither ever aspired to such a reputation. Like Chicago, St. Louis is a great railway crossroads town which has been built up a vast industrial system with a great commercial organization to distribute its products and to assemble raw materials for manufacture, and that, by the way, is the general pattern of most American cities.

Yet, in the field of public entertainment, St. Louis is unique. No other city in this country has ventured to emulate its enterprise of purveying summer entertainment to upward of 700,000 people. To do that every year at a profit, all of which is reinvested in the plant, would tax the highest talent engaged in commercial amusements. Has the achievement ever been equaled?

Summer opera in St. Louis is a challenge to Chicago—not to imitation, but to emulation in some manner suited to our metropolitan area.

NEW THEME SONG.

From the New Yorker.

The way everybody talks now, the United States will positively not attend the next European war, George M. Cohan might start working on a song called "Over Here."

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN

The News From Europe

THE other night, in the village where I live, there was a fire. The wind was blowing strongly from the West, and the sparks and burning shingles were blown far and wide. We had some luck, for it was raining. But there was not enough rain to have saved the buildings nearest to the fire. They were saved, however, by playing a hose on them; a steady stream of cold water kept the walls and roofs wet and cool.

That, I thought to myself after the danger had passed, is what we must do, particularly those of us who write and make speeches, during the high wind which is scattering over all the world sparks and burning embers from the fiery places of Europe. We must soak the walls of our own houses with the cold water of criticism and common sense.

* * *

The best place to begin, I think, is with the news from Europe published in American newspapers. The best way to begin, I think, is by fixing it in our minds that if we mean what we have been saying for years, that we do not mean to become entangled in European conflicts, then we must start at once dousing with great streams of cold water the propaganda which, by causing us to take sides passionately, would eventually entangle us in the conflict. For the news from Europe today is almost all of it tainted at its source, and it is the duty of writers and commentators to bring that fact home to the American people.

I do not mean to imply that the American correspondents in Europe are untrustworthy. With a few conspicuous exceptions, the corps of American correspondents abroad representing the news associations and the reputable newspapers are honorable men, devoted to the best traditions of the American press. But they would be the first to tell us, if they were back home, that in the conditions which exist in Europe, from Spain to Russia, reliable reporting of news must not be expected.

* * *

For, with the exception only of France, there is no great Power on the Continent in which there is not an absolute Government censorship. This means that nothing is printed or spoken over the radio which the Government does not wish to have said. And this means that an American newspaper man in Madrid with the Spanish loyalists or in Burgos with the rebels, in Rome, in Berlin, in Moscow, must make his own guess as to what he will believe and report to the American newspaper reader.

For all practicable purposes, he is unable to do what every good reporter does in the United States, to make an independent check on what the Government propaganda publishes. Now and then he may be able to talk privately to some critic of the Government. But he cannot depend much on the critics of the Government, principally because the critics are not able to find out the truth—being excluded from power—and then because the critics do not dare to speak freely.

Take, for example, the crucial question of armaments. In this country, in England, in any free nation, a foreign correspondent can obtain reasonably reliable information about the strength of the army and the navy from the congressional hearings and debates on the appropriations for the military services. He cannot, of course, get at all the military secrets. But he can get the main facts.

He cannot do that in the censored countries of Europe. He knows about the German, the Italian and the Russian armies only what the governments choose to have known, and he has no way of finding out whether they are exaggerating or are concealing their real strength.

He does not even know what they are spending on armaments. For they do not have budgets; or, if they have them, the budgets are Chinese puzzles, and what they mean is never clarified by parliamentary debate or newspaper criticism. But if you do not know the state of a country's armaments and of its finances, there is no way of checking on the official promises, protestations and threats. There is no way of knowing whether they are a bluff or whether they mean business. The correspondents cannot go to see Stalin, Mussolini or Hitler and ask them.

It is for this reason that all the news from Continental Europe should be read with the utmost skepticism. If I were the managing editor of a newspaper, I should try to find some way of distinguishing it as plainly from ordinary news dispatches as advertisements are from reading matter.

The news from the Continental capitals is not the same kind of news as we get from Washington, the State capital, or the City Hall. It is censored at the source, it is propaganda from the start, and it has not been and could not have been independently checked. Therefore, it ought not to be read with the same confidence that real news is read.

If the American public does not wish to be taken for a ride in Europe, it had better make up its mind to be from Missouri when it reads the European news. And that applies not only to the news, but to the large, glib, melodramatic interpretations of that news. I mean the announcements that war is inevitable, that the great showdown is at hand, the final Armageddon of Communism versus Fascism, or of liberal democracy versus autocracy. Those interpretations are nothing but th battle cries of the European propaganda machines, and there is no reason in the world why the American people should submit to being bamboozled by them.

* * *

The recent incident in Spanish waters, when an American destroyer was bombed by an airplane, is a sharp reminder of how vitally important it is to throw cold water on all news from Europe and all the excited interpretations of it. In order to have an effective policy of non-entanglement by such incidents, there must be a cool and collected public opinion in America.

The incident could not have been dealt with more honorably and reasonably than the President and Secretary Hull dealt with it. But suppose the affair had happened on land, and that Americans had been killed, and that the news of it had come to America through the censorship and propaganda offices of a prejudiced government, had come in sensational form, had been written provocatively, it would not have been easy for the President and the Secretary of State to act so dispassionately.

There will be other incidents, probably more tragic ones, if Europe does not quiet down, and so it is not one minute too early to start preparing the American people for the difficult and necessary business of keeping their heads on their shoulders, their shirts on their backs and their feet on the ground.

OSSIP GABRILOWITSCH, NOTED MUSICIAN, DIES

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 14.—Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra since 1918, died today, after a long illness. He was 58 years old.

Gabrilowitsch had been ill since the spring of 1935, when he collapsed after giving a piano recital in New York City. He underwent two operations at Henry Ford Hospital in 1935 in an attempt to relieve the stomach disorder. He had been on a leave of absence from the Detroit Symphony since the start of his illness.

Gabrilowitsch is survived by his wife, Clara Clemens Gabrilowitsch, daughter of Mark Twain (Samuel Clemens), whom he married in 1909, and a daughter, Nina.

A famous pianist and orchestra director for 40 years, Gabrilowitsch made his debut at the age of 18 in the European musical centers. He was born in St. Petersburg (now Leningrad), Feb. 7, 1878.

Gabrilowitsch, one of three sons of a lawyer, was reared in an environment of culture. His first instruction at the piano was received from his mother and two older brothers. Gregor and Arthur, when he was only 5 years old. Drawing and painting held equal interest with music in the affections of the boy until he was 9. At that time his parents took him to Anton Rubinstein, the famous musician, who declared he possessed exceptional talent and it was decided to devote his career to music.

He was sent to the St. Petersburg conservatory from which he was graduated at 16 after he had won the Rubenstein prize, the highest honor open to him. After his graduation Gabrilowitsch went to Vienna to study with Leschetizky for two years. He became thoroughly grounded in all phases of musical art, studying in addition under Liadow, Glazounow and Rimsky-Korsakoff, all leading Russian composers.

He gave his first public recital in 1896. He then was 18. In 1900 he came to the United States, establishing himself so quickly and firmly that he was engaged for tours every other year until in 1914 he decided to reside here permanently and became a citizen. In 1909 he married Clara Clemens, herself a singer of distinction, a contralto who appeared frequently in joint recital with him. Their only child was born in 1913.

DR. COLVIN EXPECTS RETURN OF PROHIBITION

Dr. D. Leigh Colvin, presidential candidate of the Prohibition party, predicted return of prohibition in three talks made here yesterday.

"Several factors account for the reaction against repeal," Dr. Colvin said. "One is the increase in drinking among women and the rising automobile accident toll. The high pressure selli nd advertising of liquor, calculated to make addicts of women and youth, to enrich distillers and brewers, are additional factors.

"The trouble with prohibition before was that enforcement was left in the hands of parties with both wet and dry constituencies so they were organically incapable of effective enforcement.

"I do not believe repeal was carried by a real majority of the intelligent and socially responsible people of the country. It was put across by less than one-fourth of the qualified voters with both party machines behind the repeal movement and their henchmen counting the ballots."

Gov. Landon was unsatisfactory to the drys, Dr. Colvin said, because he did not oppose a bill to prohibit the sale of 3.2 per cent beer in Kansas. Roosevelt, he added, was even more unsatisfactory because of his outspoken opposition to prohibition.

"We seek," Dr. Colvin continued, "to consolidate in one party all those opposed to the liquor traffic and interested in good government."

Dr. Colvin, who resides in New York, has been a lifelong professional prohibition worker. He spoke on the Community Forum radio program and at the First Christian and Tower Grove Baptist Churches. He left last night to campaign in Southern Illinois and Indiana.

ADMINISTRATION OF PRISON PAROLE SYSTEM CONDEMNED

Association Report Blames Politics and Lax Management for Conditions.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—The prison parole system in the United tSates was condemned as parol: "in name only" in a report distributed at the opening session of the American Prison Association Congress yesterday.

Defending "the theory of the indeterminate sentence and parole," the report—compiled by the Prison Association of New York as a result of a nationally distributed questionnaire—blamed politics and lax administration for giving paroles a bad public reputation.

"The people are led to believe that there is a parole system in operation," the report asserted, "but not more than six or seven states and the Federal Government have what can be termed suitable and scientific parole methods." Support of the findings came from Mrs. Blanche La Du of St. Paul, president of the American Prison Association. She said in her presidential address:

"There seems to be an attitude of mind on the part of the public that refuses to recognize the fact that 90 per cent of those committed to our reformatories and prisons will come out again. Only a small percentage dies in prison by execution or otherwise.

"Thousands must be released every year, even though the parole system be abolished.

"It is not the theory of parole, but the administration of parole, that is causing the trouble."

WOMAN AND FARMHAND GET LIFE FOR KILLING HUSBAND

George Relyea and Mrs. Eleanor Cook Admit Bigamous Marriage at Lake City, Mich.

By the Associated Press.

LAKE CITY, Mich., Sept. 14.—Circuit Judge Fred S. Lamb sentenced George Relyea, 26 years old, and Mrs. Eleanor Cook today to life imprisonment for the murder of her husband, William Cook, Sept. 4.

They had pleaded guilty after confessing that Relyea, who was employed on the Cook farm, shot Cook to death with a shotgun and that Mrs. Cook assisted him in attempting to dispose of the body.

Relyea and Mrs. Cook were married bigamously a month ago, they admitted in court.

C. I. O. ISSUE PLACED BEFORE ILLINOIS LABOR CONVENTION

Miners Seek Indorsement of Lewis; Others Try to Soft-Pedal Dispute.

By the Associated Press.

QUINCY, Ill Sept. 14.—The split between John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers' president, and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, over Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, was an issue as the fifty-fourth annual convention of the State Federation of Labor opened here today.

Ray Edmundson, Illinois U. M. W. A. president, has a resolution endorsing Lewis. R. G. Soderstrom, Federation president, did not touch on the issue in a speech at the opening session.

The Federation executive board, in its annual report, said the issue was outside the jurisdiction of the convention.

Soderstrom opened the convention with a declaration that "another depression could bring to our shores the Red Communism of Russia" and "the extreme Socialism of France." He declared "the Chief Executive of the United States and the President of our country has done his part by advocating legislation designed to strengthen the American labor movement."

FORMER SESSER, ILL., MAN FOUND DEAD IN ARIZONA

Body of Joseph Klym, 25, on Mountain; Went to Los Angeles Two Years Ago.

Joseph Klym, 25 years old, who left East St. Louis two years ago to live in Los Angeles, was found dead yesterday on Mount Elden, east of Flagstaff, Ariz., according to an Associated Press dispatch.

The sheriff there said Klym left the home of a brother, Raymond Klym, in Los Angeles Sept. 5 and arrived at Flagstaff the next afternoon. The body was found on the mountain by a walking party. An autopsy will be held.

A card found in Klym's pocket asked that his sister Mrs. Frank Santel Jr., 3116 Converse avenue, East St. Louis, be notified in case of accident or death. A cousin, Dr. Nicholas Klym, 5037 North Kingshighway, said that Klym attended the St. Louis College of Pharmacy from 1931 to 1933, and later taught chemistry and physics in the high school at Sesser, Ill., his home. About two years ago he lived for a short time at his sister's home in East St. Louis.

MICHAEL W. BOWE ESTATE INVENTORIED AT $113,000

To Be Divided Among Widow and Six Children, as He Left No Will.

An inventory of the estate of Michael W. Bowe, secretary-treasurer of the Bowe-Perry Pie Co., and director of the Cass Bank & Trust Co., who died July 7, was filed in Probate Court today, listing property valued at $113,409. He left no will.

The inventory showed personal property of $10,[illegible], including bonds, notes, corporation stock, cash and chattels. His residence at 2942 North Euclid avenue was valued at $6000. The estate will be divided among his widow, Mrs. Mathilda Bowe; three daughters, Mrs. Julia Schwarz, Mrs. Jeannette Russell and Miss Helen Bowe, and three sons, Harold W., William J. and James W. Bowe.

PART OF ROOF COLLAPSES

Cause of Damage to Flat Not Determined.

The east half of a gable roof on a two-story brick flat at 5114 Northland avenue collapsed yesterday, causing damage estimated by firemen at $2500. No one was injured. Mrs. George Zatlin, wife of the owner, residing downstairs, was sitting on the front porch at the time.

The building was condemned by city building inspectors following the collapse, cause of which was not determined.

Maine Vote Today First Test of G. O. P. Strength

who had come to Portland to hear him for the first time came wistful expressions of regret that their candidate is not an orator. Or, rather, they wish not so much that Landon was an orator but merely that he should be able to express himself with force sufficient to make his convictions carry wit a crowd.

Brann Accomplished Speaker.

In striking contrast was Maine's Democratic Governor, Louis J. Brann, who immediately followed Landon on the air. Brann has a ripe, mellifluous voice and a facility for tossing off apt phrases. He has a genial self-assurance which enables him to mingle with all ranks, effortlessly. All of which may explain, in part, what is meant here by references to Brann's "personal popularity."

Chief interest in the election tomorrow, apart from its national repercussions, centers in Brann. Serving his second term as Governor, he was persuaded by the Administration in Washington to make the race for the United States Senate against his friend, Senator Wallace H. White, an old-fashioned down-East Republican.

The Republicans concede that Brann will run ahead of the other candidates on his ticket, but they are confident that he will be defeated. They base their optimism on a poll of sentiment conducted for the State Republican Committee by the National Research Council some weeks ago. Of 280,000 straw ballots sent out, approximately 60,000 were returned. These showed that the state would go 2 to 1 for Landon in the national election and 3 to 2 for White in today's election. Victory for Brann would be a serious upset to Republican hopes.

Democratic Predictions.

Democratic observers insist, even privately, that Brann has a good chance. And officially they predict his election by a plurality of 9000. He won by 22,000 in 1932 and 25,000 in 1934. In the course of his radio talk Saturday night Brann charged Landon with crippling the Kansas school system and Landon's advisers gave such weight to it that late yesterday a statement was hurriedly prepared and released under the name of Senator Hale, denying Brann's charges and declaring that the average salary of teachers in Kansas has been 7 per cent higher than in Maine during the Brann administration.

But the statement, far from attacking Brann, suggested that he "has perhaps unintentionally fallen victim to New Deal campaign deceptions." That has been true of all national campaign speakers. They have shown a healthy respect for Brann's "personal popularity."

Democrats also believe that their candidate for Governor, F. Harold Dubord, has an outside chance, although much more remote than that of Brann. They base this hope on the fact of Dubord's French-Canadian, Catholic background, which, it is claimed, will have an appeal in the industrial areas. Privately the Democrats say that in all probability the Republicans will win all seats in the House. Simon M. Hamlin, Democrat, at present representing the First District, is almost certain to be defeated. The other Democratic member of the House from Maine, Edward C. Moran, who has an excellent record, would not run for re-election because, it is reported, of his disgust with the political meddling of National Democratic Chairman James A. Farley. The Democrat who is seeking Moran's seat, Wallace Mabee, carries no weight.

Vigorous G. O. P. Campaign.

The Republicans have for more than two months waged a vigorous campaign in Maine, receiving considerable aid from the National Committee. For the most part the campaign has taken the form of a broadside attack on the New Deal and most of its works. Almost nothing has been said, however, by either side about the Passamaquoddy tidal power project, defended by President Roosevelt and damned by the Republicans nationally. Besides Landon's visit, Col. Frank Knox, vice-presidential candidate, spent two days in the state and made several speeches. More than $50,000 was contributed to the State Committee by wealthy Republicans outside the state, the du Ponts, Morgan, the Rockefellers and others.

In contrast, the Democratic National Committee has sought to give the appearance of leaving Maine to its own devices. Gov. Earle of Pennsylvania made one or two political speeches and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins talked about social security, but no major Democrats have come in from the outside. Nevertheless, the Democrats have kept close watch on the course of political events here. They have been constantly prodding Gov. Brann, who has not been sympathetic to the National Administration, to a more ardent defense of the New Deal. And they sent Norman Baxter, one of their most capable publicity experts, to direct the Portland Evening News, an evening paper in which a half dozen Democrats have an interest. In the columns of the News, Baxter has laid down an unceasing barrage of New Deal propaganda which has been reprinted and distributed free as campaign literature.

Relief is not an important factor in the election as the relief rolls have dwindled markedly. Maine is prosperous. One of the most successful tourist seasons in the history of the state has just ended and potatoes are bringing a high price. Nor is Townsendism much of a factor. The Republicans have made the New Deal the issue and, for the effect it will have nationally, they have staked a great deal on the belief that it wil be snowed under in this first trial of political strength.

Clear, crisp weather stimulated voting today. Reports from officials and election clerks told of a heavy turnout.

LEMKE'S RUNNING MATE AT 'FATHER DIVINE' MEETING

Thomas C. O'Brien Praises Negro Leader Before Shouting Throng in New York.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Before a shouting, chanting throng, Thomas C. O'Brien of Boston, Union party vice-presidential candidate, appeared yesterday on a platform with "Father Divine," at a mass meeting.

O'Brien, running mate of William Lemke, did not directly accept the "platform" of followers of the Negro leader, but said he was fully cognizant of it and praised Father Divine. The platform is, "Truth, righteousness and justice."

O'Brien, as he started his address, turned toward Father Divine and addressed him with the salutation familiar to the latter's followers: "Peace, my friend."

"Ain't it wonderful," came the response from the crowd.

ICE CAP IN ALASKA RECEDING, EXPOSING FOSSIL GLACIER

By the Associated Press.

JUNEAU, Alaska, Sept. 14.—The Taku ice cap near Juneau, one of the southernmost formations of its kind, is receding and exposing a fossil glacier of the last ice age.

The Rev. Bernard Hubbard of Santa Clara, Cal., viewing the immense ice field for the first time in 10 years, reported yesterday he found definite indications of the impending end of the ice cap.

"The ice mass in shrinking," he said. "The earth still is in a recessional ice age. On the Taku ice cap, many new mountains, called nuntakas, as well as long, rocky ridges have appeared where I saw only crevassed ice 10 years ago.

"Nearby the Taku Glacier is over half aground and soon will cease breaking off icebergs. The lobes of Twin Glacier have retreated almost a mile in 10 years and now are aground. For several years, the Mendenhall Glacier has been melting back and exposing a fossil glacier underneath the present one.

MARLBOROUGH HOUSE CHAPEL TO AGAIN BE ROYAL CHURCH

Queen Mary Will Worship There as Did Alexandra 10 Years Ago.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—When Queen Mary takes up residence at Marlborough House this fall, the little chapel adjoining will be restored to its historic use as a place of worship for English Queens.

Although the chapel really belongs to St. James's Palace, it adjoins Marlborough House, with which it is connected by a private door. Built for Queen Henrietta Maria, French wife of King Charles the First, so she could hear Catholic mass, it was also the favorite worshiping place of Charles the Second's wife, Queen Katharine of Braganza.

In later years it became a Church of England chapel and was used by King William the Fourth's Queen, Adelaide. More recently, Queen Alexandra, Danish-born mother of King George, and grandmother of the present King Edward worshiped here.

Since Alexandra's death 10 years ago, the chapel has not been used by royalty, but Sunday afternoon services are held there for the Danish colony in London. It has been the scene of several Danish weddings, but the last big event in the chapel's history was the christening of Lance, son of Count and Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow (the former Barbara Hutton), June 11.

After being known for many years to Londoners as the Danish chapel or the German chapel, it will now be called by its original name, Queen's chapel.

NEW EDWARDSVILLE PASTOR

Assistant at St. Mary's Church Is Promoted.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 14.—Bishop James A. Griffin has announced the appointment of the Rev. Charles A. Meagher as pastor of St. Mary's Church, Edwardsville, to succeed the Rev. C. A. O'Reilly who died last week.

Father Meagher was born in Livermore, Ia., in 1893 and was educated for the priesthood in Manitoba University, Winnipeg, Canada, and at Kenrick Seminary, Webster Grove, Mo. In 1919 he was ordained to the priesthood. In 1919 he was assigned to St. Patrick Church, Decatur, Ill., as assistant, and in 1925 was transferred to be assistant at St. Mary's Church, Edwardsville. Shortly after taking up his position at Edwardsville, it was decided that a mission church should be built at Glen Carbon, and the work was entrusted to Father Meagher.

SOUTHEAST MISSOURI'S FIRST HORSE SHOW AT POPLAR BLUFF

Event To Be Part of District Fair, Which Will Open Tuesday.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Sept. 14.—The first horse show ever held in Southeast Missouri will be a part of the 1936 Southeast Missouri District Fair which will open here Tuesday.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the show, and, according to Dewey Sigler, the organization plans to develop interest in raising better livestock, particularly horses and mules, in this part of the State.

Numerous prizes will be awarded for various events in the three-day program. Several prizes will be awarded to boys and girls under 15 years of age, who enter their horses in the show.

LAID OFF FROM WORK BY CONSTIPATION

"For four years I suffered from constipation. I had gotten so weak I had to lay off from work. My doctor told me to use Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Since then, my grocery list has never been complete without it."—Mr. A. W. Murphy, 1010 16th St., Tuscaloosa, Alabama.

This delicious cereal will give you the same, sure relief. Laboratory tests prove it's safe. Within the body, its "bulk" absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, gently cleanses the intestines. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B which tones the intestines, and iron for the blood.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. Serve as a cereal or cook into appetizing recipes. Isn't this natural food better than pills and drugs?

When you're at the grocery store today, get a package of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Try it a week, and see if you don't feel worlds better. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

RECEIPTS AT FUR AUCTION $610,000

Prices 13 Per Cent Higher at Sale of Pelts for Government.

The semiannual auction of Government furs was held today at the Fouke Fur Co., Fourth and Market streets. The auctioneer disposed of 20,526 sealskins, 509 blue fox pelts and 15 white fox hides for $610,000 to bidders who paid from 13 per cent more than for furs of like quality last spring.

About 45 dealers attended the sale, some of them having come to St. Louis from various cities in the country twice each year since 1913 when the Fouke company conducted the first Government auction. The pelts represent the entire seasonal catch of hunters in Alaskan island seal preserves. The receipts of the sales go 70 per cent to the United States Government and 15 per cent each to Canada and Japan.

One of the features of each auction is the sale of sea otter skins confiscated from hunters who have violated the law against killing the animals. This year three of the pelts, for which there is littler commercial use, were sold, one for $125, another for $85 and a puppy hide for $6.50.

Sealskins were bid in at an average price of $30 each; the fox skins brought about $24.50 apiece.

BOY, 4, SCALDED ON BODY

Edward Lee Bumped by Pan Carried by His Mother.

Edward, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lee, 2615 Cass avenue, was scalded on the body today when he bumped against his mother while she was carrying a pan of boiling water from a stove in the kitchen to a laundry tub.

ELECTION BOARD CALLS FOR HOTEL GUEST LISTS

Directs 500 to Make Sworn Statements Preceding Registration.

Notices have been sent by the Board of Election Commissioners to about 500 hotels and lodging houses, demanding sworn statements of the number of guests and length of residence of each in accordance with the election laws, Chief Clerk Alfred L. Rottman said today in response to an inquiry by the Post-Dispatch.

Before the registration of June 18, the Election Board sent notices to 257 hotels and lodging houses, 89 of which failed to make returns. Two of those failing to file statements were the Laclede and La Salle hotels, operated by Alderman Harry L. Israel of the Fifth Ward who was indicted Aug. 5 for that omission.

The new notices were sent out, the last of them Saturday, in accordance with information in a card index compiled by the Election Board within the last month from records of the Building Commissioner. Rottman said each card indicated the number of rooms in the hotel or lodging house.

Under Section 10,583 of the Missouri statutes, the landlord or other person in charge of each hotel and lodging house must, on demand of any Election Commissioner, file not less than three nor more than five days before an election or registration, a sworn statement of the number of guests in his place.

Failure to give the information is a misdemeanor punishable by a jail term of not more than six months and a fine of not more than $1000. Willful giving of false information is a felony, punishable by imprisonment for from two to five years.

TWO YOUTHS KIDNAP THREE PERSONS, STEAL TWO AUTOS

By the Associated Press.

SEDALIA, Mo., Sept. 14.—State highway patrolmen and county officers today sought two youths accused of crimes from Central Missouri to Arkansas that included three kidnapings and two automobile thefts. The three hostages were released unharmed after one of them had been robbed of $20.

The two were seen last at Denton, Mo., where they released Johnnie Spence, Unionville, and Kermit Hickman, Cross Timbers farmer and drove away in Hickman's car. Sunday morning at Windsor, Mo. they kidnaped Denzel Moulder, 15, and drove away in the Moulder car which the youth and his sister Desda, were washing. Moulder told officers the youths, about 15 or 16 years old, drove to Harrison, Ark., where they robbed a filling station and replaced the Missouri tags on the car with stolen Arkansas plates.

Returning to Missouri, Moulder related, the youths sideswiped Spence's truck on highway 65 near Cross Timbers about 1 a. m. The Moulder car was wrecked and Moulder told officers he fled through a corn field in the confusion.

The robbers forced Spence to accompany them to Hickman's home and the three drove to a filling station with Hickman ostensibly to get gasoline for Spence's truck. As Hickman turned from the station one of the youths produced a pistol and directed the farmer to "keep on driving." Before releasing Hickman and Spence, the youths asked Spence if he had any money. Informed he had $64, one of them said, "Well, $20 will do us," took the money and drove away, Spence reported to officers.

ASSOCIATED PRESS ATTACKS LABOR ACT IN SUPREME COURT

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Constitutionality of the Wagner Labor Relations Act was challenged in the Supreme Court today by the Associated Press in appealing from an order by the National Labor Relations Board directing it to reinstate Morris Watson, a discharged employe of its New York office.

The press association contended that Watson was discharged for cause. Watson said it was on account of his activities in behalf of the American Newspaper Guild.

In a petition filed by John W. Davis and William C. Cannon, New York attorneys, the Associated Press contended the act was "arbitrary, unreasonable and capricious" and constituted "an attempt utterly to destroy the freedom of individual employers and employes to bargain with each other equally and individually in regard to their own private relations and private occupations. Such a wholesale restraint on freedom of contract is without legal precedent and not permissible under the due process clause of the fifth amendment."

DIES AT WHEEL OF TRUCK

Edmond Horack, 41, Found Dead by Passerby.

Edmond Horack, 41 years old, 2571 West Hebert street, collapsed and died early today in the 3900 block of Ashland avenue, while seated in a dairy truck which he was driving for his brother, Joseph. A passerby, attracted by the sound of the racing moter, found Horack's body slumped over the steering wheel. His foot was pressed on the accelerator, but the car was in neutral gear. Death apparently was due to natural causes.

CLOTHING STORE REMODELED

Werner & Hilton to Have Formal Opening Tomorrow.

The formal opening of the remodeled and enlarged quarters of Werner & Hilton, men's wear store, Eighth street and Washington avenue, will be held tomorrow. The store, which now occupies the entire block from Washington avenue to St. Charles street, has an exterior of black structural glass. Display windows of modern type have been installed along the entire frontage. A new type arcade entrance has been built. The store is completely air conditioned.

SECRET BRITISH NOTE FOR PACIFIC PACT DISCLOSED

Country Sought 3-Power Meeting Called as Prelude to Washington Arms Conference in 1921.

PROPOSAL WAS REJECTED BY U. S.

Secretary Hughes Feared It Would Be 'Discourtesy' to Other Nations — Several Notes Exchanged

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14. — A secret British proposal for a three-Power conference designed to agree on a common policy in the Pacific and Far East as a prelude to the Washington disarmament conference was disclosed yesterday hitherto confidential diplomatic correspondence made public by the State Department.

Great Britain's proposal, which was flatly rejected by Charles Evans Hughes, then Secretary of State, was for President Harding to invite high British and Japanese officials to meet with American representatives at Bar Harbor, Me., in August, 1921.

The President a few days before had issued the call for the conference on limitation of armaments to be held Nov. 11 and the Bar Harbor meeting was projected as a preliminary session to consider agenda and "if possible arrive at a common understanding on wider principles which should underlie future Pacific policies of the three Powers."

The documents disclosed that Ambassador Harvey, forwarding the latest note advocating the meeting, reported that "if you accept" Prime Minister Lloyd George, Earl Curzon, Foreign Secretary, and the Prime Ministers of Canada, New Zealand and Australia were prepared to call on a fast warship direct from London to Bar Harbor.

"Discourtesy" to Other Countries.

Secretary Hughes immediately sent a long note flatly rejecting the proposal on the ground that any preliminary session would imperil the success of the disarmament conference, and be a discourtesy to France, Italy and China, already invited to the disarmament discussions.

"If at such a preliminary meeting," Hughes said, "the agenda was framed or any controlling action taken, it would be felt that the conference had in fact been forestalled. If there was a failure to reach an agreement because of divisions of opinion, the success of the main conference might easily be jeopardized."

The British finally accepted the American Government's view and the conference was held as planned, with the consequent signing of the nine and four-Power treaties and a settlement of existing Far Eastern and naval questions.

The confidential documents released by the State Department after a lapse of 15 years give the following chronological history of the British proposal:

On July 11, 1921—three days after the United States had sent out overtures for the disarmament conference—Earl Curzon had requested Harvey to ask Washington "whether it might not seem desirable to seek an early conference with respect to settlement of Pacific and Far Eastern problems as an essential preliminary to the second conference to limit armaments."

Statement Made by Hughes.

The proposal suggested London as the scene of the meeting since the dominion premiers were already there attending an empire conference.

Secretary Hughes presented a diplomatic cold shoulder to the proposal, asserting that "there would undoubtedly be unpleasant reaction of American opinion and considerable feeling that limitation of armament had been sidetracked if it were now announced that conference on limitation of armament was to be postponed until disposition of Far Eastern questions by a preliminary conference."

Since Great Britain and Japan were then maneuvering over the Anglo-Japanese alliance, Hughes rejected any suggestion that London would be an acceptable meeting place.

Only July 15 Earl Curzon hinted strongly that there would be so many subjects on the agenda unless a preliminary conference was held that he and Lloyd George would be unable to spare the time to attend and, as reported by Ambassador Harvey, it might be "impracticable if not indeed impossible for the British Government to take part in the conference."

Secretary Hughes refused to give any ground in the diplomatic exchanges through Ambassador Harvey and on July 27 Earl Curzon sent a formal note through the British Ambassador here proposing the Bar Harbor meeting.

One clew to the persistent British maneuvers was included in the correspondence made public. The American Charge d'Affaires in China reported that W. W. Yen, Minister of Foreign Affairs, was anxious to have Great Britain make a statement on its attitude toward the Anglo-Japanese alliance before the disarmament conference was held.

CATHOLIC BISHOP PREFERS ROOSEVELT TO LEMKE

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Sept. 14.—Bishop Michael J. Gallagher, asserting that "the money plank in the Lemke platform is dangerous," said in an address last night to Catholic study clubs that he believed "President Roosevelt has a much better background to work out these monetary problems than this man from the Dakotas."

"I am sure Father Coughlin thinks that if Lemke gets in he can control Lemke," he said. "Well, he couldn't control Roosevelt."

The Bishop said he favored the theories of Father Coughlin, but declared that the Union party's monetary plank was not in accord with Coughlin's own teachings. Representative William Lemke (Rep.), North Dakota, is the party's presidential candidate.

"The money plank is dangerous because it nationalizes credit and thus would give the Government too much control," he said. "I have wanted to say this because the Catholic church might be blamed for that money clause."

Connecticut Socialists Split.

OBJECTS TO RELIEF CUT TO GET COTTON PICKERS

Head of Rural Social Planning Committee Says It Is Move to Reduce Wages.

By the Associated Press.

COTUIT, Mass., Sept. 14.—Gardner Jackson, chairman of the National Committee on Rural Social Planning, protested yesterday against efforts to force cotton pickers into the fields by curtailing relief projects, and referred to earlier "domination of relief offices" in Colorado by sugar interests "with the resultant depression of beet workers' wages."

In a telegram to WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, Jackson said reports from the South indicated WPA administrators "in certain sections are responding to the appeal of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce and similar bodies that WPA rolls be drastically cut so that relief workers can be forced into fields to pick cotton."

"Acting Administrator Corrington Gill's public promise that such action would not be taken in any manner so as to depress cotton picking wages is not being realized," said Jackson's telegram.

"The claim of labor shortage is palpably false. Action cannot fail to be interpreted other than as a Government-aided drive against Southern Tenant Farmers' Union and other organizations of sharecroppers, tenants and other agricultural workers which through two years of struggle, including legally-conducted strikes have succeeded in slightly increasing the disgracefully low wages of cotton field workers.

"Please remember the confidential report of one of your investigators concerning the domination of relief offices in my native State of Colorado by the Great Western Sugar Corporation and its subservient beet growers' associations with the resultant depression of beet workers' wages. . . . Action in South precisely same only more brazen."

Jackson at one time was in the Consumers' Counsel Division of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, but resigned more than two years ago.

British Naval Writer Dies.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 14. — Commander Charles Napier Robinson, editor, writer and naval officer, died today. He was 87 years old. Robinson, son of a naval officer, entered the Royal Navy in 1861, after being educated privately. From 1885 to 1920 he was European naval correspondent for the New York Herald.

DEPARTMENT STORE SALES FOR AUGUST SLIGHTLY OFF

4.3 Per Cent Less Than for Month Last Year, But 10.1 Per Cent Over Those of July.

Although department store sales in St. Louis were 4.3 per cent less for the month of August than for August, 1935, they showed an increase of 10.1 per cent over July, according to a report today by the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis for the Eighth Federal Reserve District.

The report also shows that for the first eight months of 1936 the department store sales in the city have shown an increase of 6.8 per cent as compared with the first eight months of 1935.

Of eight large cities in the district, six showed an increase over July and six showed an increase as compared with August of the previous year. All but one showed an increase for the first eight months of the year as compared with the first eight months of 1935. The one which did not show an increase had a decrease of only 0.6 per cent.

R. T. WOOD URGES UNIONS TO RE-ELECT ROOSEVELT

Tells Central Trades Choice Is Between Interests of Common People and the Wealthy.

R. T. Wood of Springfield, president of the Missouri Federation of Labor and Democratic Congressman from the Sixth Missouri District, urged the re-election of President Roosevelt in an address yesterday before the Central Trades and Labor Union.

The choice, hesaid, lies between the common people's interests and the large, wealthy interests. The race will determine whether workers in industry and agriculture are to retain and improve the living standards attained under the Roosevelt administration.

A letter from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, asking that no action be taken against unions suspended because their leaders are in the Committee for Industrial Organization, was read at the meeting.

ARGUMENTS ON WILL OF COL. GREEN TODAY

Widow and Sister Contend for Control of $80,000,000 Estate.

By the Associated Press.

ELIZABETHTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Two women contended here today in a legal contest for control of the $80,000,000 fortune left by Col. Edward H. R. Green, son of Hetty Green, the eccentric railroad queen. Preliminary arguments were ordered before Surrogate Harry Owen. A will, filed at Port Henry last month, left the entire estate to Col. Green's sister, Mrs. Matthew Astor Wilks, of New York City.

As the hearing opened, Spencer Eddy of Saratoga Springs, counsel for the widow, declared that he had received "an alleged copy of an alleged will" supposed to have been made in 1932.

He said he was not offering this will because he was not sure of its authenticity, but he told Judge Owen it left $1,000,000 or $1,500,000 in various bequests and left the remainder to the widow."

A further hint of the existence of a later will was contained in a petition filed by counsel for Mrs. Green, who lives at South Dartmouth, Mass.

In this, Mrs. Green sought authority to open safe deposit boxes in three New York City banks to discover whether there were other wills. The same petition asked for authority to search the apartment formerly occupied by Col. Green in the Sherry-Netherlands Hotel, New York City.

Col. Green died in Lake Placid last June 8. Mrs. Green was named permanent administratrix of the estate in Texas.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Wilks filed the document drawn in March, 1908, nine years before Green was married. It named his mother sole beneficiary and in the event of her death, the entire estate was to pass to his sister, Mrs. Wilks.

Hetty Green died in 1916. She left her $100,000,000 estate in equal shares to Col. Green and Mrs. Wilks, but stipulated that neither her son's wife, nor her daughter's husband could inherit it.

A year later Col. Green married Mabel Harlow. His wedding gift to her was $500,000 in cash and $125,000 in bonds.

Legal Question Involved.

The question that interested lawyers was whether the will offered for probate in this State would be acceptable in view of the fact that it made no provision for the widow.

Under Texas law, Mrs. Green is entitled to all personal property accrued by her husband subsequent to their marriage. Some lawyers in Texas said the will would be valid, except that the widow is entitled to share in property acquired after marriage.

Likewise, a belief was expressed in the Attorney-General's office at Albany that as the pair had no children, the document would be upheld.

Col. Green had extensive holdings in Texas, Florida and New York. He maintained a large estate, Round Hill, at South Dartmouth, Mass.

New York, Texas and Massachusetts have announced an intention to obtain a share of the Green fortune in inheritance taxes.

A pre-nuptial agreement in which the widow was represented as having renounced all claim to this estate was introduced by attorneys for the Colonel's sister, who claims the inheritance.

A 76-year-old Dallas banker, Alvin V. Lane, testified that he witnessed the 1908 will. Lane said he was vice-president of the First National Bank in Dallas of Dallas.

"I am the only living witness," he said. "I only remember that Col. Green came into the bank on March 8, 1908. He wanted me and two other men to witness his will and we did."

Surrogate Owen received the agreement in evidence. When Col. Green married, in 1917, his wedding gift to his bride was $500,000 in cash and $125,000 in bonds.

It was not learned in the courtroom whether the agreement introduced by Mrs. Wilks' counsel referred to this gift in particular. It was dated June 26, 1917, and it said: " . . . said Mabel E. Harlow . . . hereby accepts the provisions herein made for her as fair and adequate and agrees to waive, relinquish and release . . . any and all dower and other right sand interests in the property and estate, real and personal, of said Edward H. R. Green . . . " Bore the signatures of Col. Green and his fiance. The hearing was later recessed.

MRS. SUHRE LOSES BREWERY STOCK SUIT

Circuit Judge O'Malley Decides Against Plea to Buy Back Shares.

The suit of Mrs. Lily Anheuser Suhre, 2915 Geyer avenue, against the estate of August A. Busch, late head of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., in which she sought to be allowed to buy back 625 shares of Anheuser-Busch stock, now valued at more than $90,000, for $45,985, was decided against her today by Circuit Judge Frank C. O'Malley, who had had the case under advisement since June, 1935.

Mrs. Suhre, a cousin of Busch, pledged the stock with Mark C. Steinberg, broker, in 1929, to cover margins on trading accounts. Steinberg closed the account, took over the stock, and sold it to W. Fred Anheuser, another cousin of Mrs. Suhre, and a director of Anheuser-Busch, for $46,500. Anheuser then sold it to August A. Busch, in January, 1930.

In her suit Mrs. Suhre charged that Anheuser, in buying the stock from Steinberg, led him to believe that he was taking over the stock for Mrs. Suhre, to give her an opportunity to repurchase it.

Steinberg was the chief witness for Mrs. Suhre. He quoted Anheuser as saying that "it was a crime Lily had done this speculating," and he "wanted to see Lily get that stock back," and would hold it for her until she could get money to repurchase it. Anheuser denied he made such statements, or that he acted as agent for Busch.

In dismissing the suit, Judge O'Malley pointed out that Mrs. Suhre had not brought the suit until after Busch's death in February, 1934, four years after the sale to Busch, and said:

"The plaintiff may not speculate at the defendant's expense. She stood by for four years and made no effort to exercise an option. Neither Anheuser nor Busch would be obliged to hold the stocks indefinitely attendant upon the plaintiff's speculation or the rise and fall of the market or the repeal of prohibition. The plaintiff may not sleep or her right, nor may she speculate so that all chance of profit be hers and all chance of loss be the Busch estate. It is the Court's belief that in the absence of repeal of prohibition and the subsequent market rise, there would be no suit."

He pointed out that it was not contended Mrs. Suhre had an interest in the stock at the time it was sold to Anheuser, and that neither a price nor a time for repurchase by her was specified, nor was there any obligation upon her to repurchase the stock.

Furthermore, he said, a court of equity "does not look with favor upon suits brought after the death of one party when the fraud, if any, was known before and the suit might have been brought before."

Mrs. Suhre won another suit against the Busch estate, which was finally settled last June, when Circuit Judge O'Neill Ryan ruled she might buy back for $56,187 the Anheuser-Busch stock she sold to Busch in prohibition days for $46,500, and which has a present value of about $90,000. In that suit she charged she had an agreement with Busch which permitted her to buy back the stock.

WABASH TO PAY MEN WHO LOSE JOBS IN ANY MERGER

U. S. District Judge Davis Gives Authorization for Temporary Compensation.

Receivers for the Wabash Railway obtained authorization today from United States District Judge Charles B. Davis to pay temporary compensation to its employes who may be dismissed through the merger or co-ordination agreement of the Wabash with other railroads.

Similar agreements have been made by principal railroads of the country as a result of a conference between the lines and representatives of railway employes' unions and groups, which was held last May in Washington. There are no employes of the Wabash now eligible for the compensation, as the railroad has made no co-ordination or service merger agreements with other lines.

Under terms of the agreement, dismissed employes who have worked for the railroad more than a year, but less than two, will receive 60 per cent of their average monthly salary for six months. Other employes, who have worked for the railroad more than two years, also receive 60 per cent of their average monthly salary over a period of months, determined by the number of years the employe has worked for the railroad, with a maximum of 60 months compensation for employes of 15 years or more. Those who worked less than a year for the railroad will receive a lump payment equal to 60 days pay.

HONDURAN REBELS ARRESTED

Three Generals Seized by Salvadorean Authorities.

By the Associated Press.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Sept. 14.—It was reported officially today that Salvadorean authorities had arrested the Honduran rebel generals, Luis Alonzo Lopez, Moses Gomez and Salvador Sanabria while they were preparing to reach Honduran territory "with the object of revolutionizing."

The office of the President reported Government troops attacked a group of rebels Sunday near Potosi, near the Nicaraguan border, killing four. Dr. Angel Zuniga Huesta, defeated for President in 1932 and now an accused rebel, was said to have been arrested in Managua, Nicaragua, yesterday.

INQUIRY INTO BOMBING OF POWER LINE TOWER

Steel Structure Wrecked at Orchard Farm, St. Charles County—Fuse Found.

Investigators for the Union Electric Light & Power Co. are attempting to determine the motive behind the dynamiting early yesterday of a steel tower supporting high-voltage wires, near Orchard Farm, Mo., St. Charles County. Another such tower was dynamited three months ago at Festus, and the identities of the bombers or reasons for the acts have not been established.

Parts of the concrete and steel tower blown up yesterday were thrown nearly 200 feet by the explosion. A private investigator for the company reported he found lengths of partly burned fuse which indicated that it may have smouldered for more than half an hour before setting off the charge.

As in the explosion at Festus, the dynamite had been placed at a turn in the line where the wiring is more concentrated, but in both cases only a few wires were damaged and power automatically was carried over those which remained. Service was uninterrupted. The St. Charles line carries power from Keokuk Dam to St. Louis. Damage was estimated at more than $5000.

G. K. Miltenberger, Union Electric vice-president in charge of operations, said that no reasonable conclusion could be drawn as to why the damage had been done.

"Without inferring that it might have happened because the company was engaged in a labor dispute with employes or others," he said, "we have had no labor unrest. Neither have we had any differences or conflicts with individuals in or near the area in which the bombings occurred. We are entirely at a loss as to the motive."

SOUNDING BALLOONS REACH ALTITUDE OF 92,000 FEET

Dr. Robert A. Millikan Announces Result of Scientific Tests Made in July.

By the Associated Press.

FORT SAM HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 14.—Dr. Robert A. Millikan announced today that sounding balloons sent into the stratosphere from Fort Sam Houston in July had reached an altitude of 92,000 feet—more than 17 miles.

This figure was determined through a recomputation of instrument recordings on the second of five flights of sounding balloons, the California Institute of Technology scientist advised Major-General Frank Parker, commander of the Eighth Corps Area.

Dr. Millikan had announced last month that the second balloon flight reached an altitude of 85,000 feet to set a world's record for sounding balloons carrying full-sized instruments for measuring cosmic rays.

He said his studies showed that cosmic rays increased in intensity until an elevation of about 60,000 feet was reached, after which intensity decreased.

THREE CHILDREN AND MAN DROWNED NEAR SHREVEPORT

Lives of Seven Saved When Motorboat Capsizes 300 Yards From Shore.

By the Associated Press.

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 14.—Three children and a man were drowned yesterday at a family reunion on Cross Lake, two miles west of here.

Members of the Shreveport Boat Club and other persons saved the lives of six other children and a man as a small motorboat bearing 11 passengers capsized 300 yards from shore.

The dead: Marion Fox, 35 years old, machinist, Shreveport; Albert Fox, his 5-year-old son; Baby Carole Hays, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hays, Shreveport; Billie Sue Cannon, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Cannon, Atlanta, Tex.

C. H. Hays, father of one of the children drowned, was rescued while he fought frantically to save the lives of the children.

SIX KILLED WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO NEAR DETROIT SUBURB

Investigators Say Driver Apparently Moved Barricade That Closed Grade Crossing.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Sept. 14.—Six persons were killed in a grade crossing accident near Inkster, a Detroit suburb, yesterday.

The dead: John Palenchar, 39 years old, Ecorse; his wife, Irene, 38; his mother, Anna, 59; a daughter, Dorothy, 12; a sister, Mrs. Mary Yontosik, 33, and her son, Joseph, 5.

Palenchar's automobile was struck by an eastbound Wabash passenger train on a highway detour. Investigators said he apparently had removed a barrier protecting a grade separation project in searching for a short cut.

There will be exhibits of farm products, floriculture, poultry and household science.

GERTRUDE MUCKERMAN THROWN BY HORSE

Young Woman's Spine Injured in Accident at Bridlespur Hunt Club.

Miss Gertrude Muckerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher H. Muckerman, was thrown from her horse while riding on the Bridlespur Hunt Club bridle path yesterday morning and suffered severe injuries to her spine.

She was taken to her home at Geyer and Clayton roads, St. Louis County, but was unable to be moved to a hospital immediately. X-rays to determine the extent of her injuries will be taken tomorrow.

Miss Muckerman, who is 22 years old and an experienced horsewoman, was riding with her sisters, Miss Mary Jane Muckerman and Mrs. Edna Winkler, and Claude la Rue, a trainer. She was mounted on "Clara Bow," her own five-gaited mare which she was training for entry in the St. Louis National Horse Show to be held at the Arena this month.

She was riding ahead of the others at a trot when the horse shied at something in the path and reared. Miss Muckerman's foot slipped out of one stirrup and while she tried to regain her balance the horse reared again and she was thrown off to the left.

Mr. and Mrs. Muckerman were out riding in their four-wheel rig when they saw the horse going back alone. They drove up and took their daughter back to the house.

Miss Muckerman was graduated from Fontbonne College in 1932 and has ridden in horse shows for the last three years. Her father is a director of the City Ice & Fuel Co.

GOV. HORNER AT DEDICATION OF NEW ILLINOIS HIGHWAY

Four-Lane Traffic Route From East St. Louis to Point North of Collinsville.

A four-lane concrete highway between East St. Louis and Troy Road Station, north of Collinsville, was dedicated yesterday at ceremonies at Monk's Mound in which Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois took part.

The highway, widened from 18 to 40 feet for a distance of 13 miles, cost $500,000. It is a part of U. S. Highway 40 and was built by the Illinois Highway Department. About 1000 persons attended the ceremonies.

Besides Gov. Horner, other speakers were: Maj. S. F. Wilson, State division engineer for the East St. Louis district; Dr. M. W. Harrison, Mayor of Collinsville; John T. Connors, acting Mayor of East St. Louis; H. A. McCormack, president of the Collinsville Chamber of Commerce; Duncan Smith, vice-president of the East St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, and State Senator James Monroe of Collinsville.

MAN HELD IN SHOOTING OF RAILROAD DETECTIVE

Prisoner Said to Have Admitted He Killed Agent Near Cairo, Ill.

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Ill., Sept. 14.—Railroad special agents said late Saturday that Percy Jones, 30-year-old St. Louis Negro, had told them he killed Special Agent Urban Sprous of the Illinois Central Railroad that morning at Cairo Junction, north of here.

Jones was quoted as saying he shot Sprous with Sprous' own pistol after the special agent had taken him off a southbound passenger train on which he was stealing a ride and beat him with a blackjack.

Jones was arrested several hours later at a nearby farm. Deputy Sheriffs said he was washing blood from his shirt when found.

Sprous lived at Mound City, Ill.

CAMPAIGN FOR UNIFORM CITY AND STATE AVIATION LAWS

The United States Junior Chamber of Commerce today announced from its headquarters here a campaign for uniform state an dmunicipal aeronautic legislation and a campaign to stimulate air marking of cities and highways.

Walter Holman, president, said efforts would be made to draft model aviation laws for introduction in the legislatures of those states which meet this winter, and in various municipal assemblies.

TO FACE THREAT CHARGES

Woman Wrote to Officials at Akron, O., Prosecutor Says.

By the Associated Press.

AKRON, O., Sept. 14.—Prosecutor Herman E. Werner announced today J. F. Barnhart, handwriting expert, reported Mrs. Madelyn Messner, 25 years old, was the writer of threatening letters addressed to her and to city and county officials. Werner said he would have the woman, wife of a 74-year-old evangelist, charged with suspicion.

Mrs. Messner, her face seared with acid, told police a woman threw the fluid into her face Friday night when she answered a door bell ring. Physicians who examined her said Mrs. Messner faced the possible loss of the sight of her right eye from the acid burns. Werner said the woman has not varied her original story concerning the alleged attack.

STOCK LIST HEAVY ON A LIGHT TRADE IN LEADERS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Stock market stalwarts bumped into quiet but persistent profit realizing today and, despite a modest rally in the final hour, losses of fractions to a point or more were widely distributed at the close.

A few aircrafts and specialties managed to buck the trend and finish at higher levels. Transfers were around 1,000,000 shares.

The sharp snap-back in steel production—this week's rate was officially placed at 72.5 per cent of capacity, an upturn of 4.3 points from the Labor day week—helped to prop market leaders.

The steels, leading the early decline, were among the first to reduce losses. Other sections of the list fell into line and in late dealings moderate recoveries were general.

The morning's downturn was attributed partly to inclinations of some traders to lighten commitments pending results in the Maine election. Economic news was still comforting to bullish investors.

Wright Up 6 Points.

Wright Aeronautical got up more than 6 points. Other resistant spots included Boeing, Curtiss-Wright "A," Douglas Aircraft, Cerro de Pasco, Kennecott, Goodyear, Socony-Vacuum, New Haven preferred, Pittsburgh Screw & Bolt, Zenith Radio, Paramount and Warner Bros.

Tilting downward throughout the greater part of the day were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Schenley, J. I. Case, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, North American, Anaconda, American Smelting, U. S. Smelting, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Can, Westinghouse, du Pont, General Electric, Allied Chemical, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Railway, Loew's, Montgomery Ward and Coca-Cola.

Bonds were a bit uneven, as were commodities. Wheat at Chicago was ⅝ of a cent a bushel off to up ⅛, and corn was down ¼ to 1¼. Foreign gold currencies did virtually nothing although sterling improved.

Austin-Nichols "A" shares pushed up more than 3, and Owens-Illinois and Consolidated Oil were a shade ahead. In the backward column were U. S. Rubber, Union Carbide Columbia Gas, Phillips Petroleum Republic Steel, American Commercial Alcohol and General Foods.

At mid-afternoon sterling was up ⅝ of a cent at $5.06¼ and the French franc was unchanged at 6.58⅜ cents.

News of the Day.

Brighter prospects for both the transport and manufacturing divisions of the aviation companies served to bolster these stocks. Large military and naval orders were looked for in view of the heavy expansion of armaments abroad and the consequent home defense requirements.

A few of the oils were in the moderately favored class on reports third quarter earnings of producers and refiners may be even better than in the second.

Amusement issues remained on fairly solid ground most of the time in view of expectations the moving picture houses, despite some boosting of admission charges, will have the best fall and winter season since he depression.

While demand for copper apparently continues to improve, commission houses seemed a bit shy of red metal equities, because of the belief in some quarters a price raise in America is not likely for sometime.

Speculative and investment sentiment, one quarter said, seemed lukewarm partly because in the past week or so the principal motors, chemicals, utilities and farm equipments have refused to move ahead with other departments.

Over Week-End Developments.

A sustaining influence for the steel shares was the survey of the magazine "Steel," which predicted large metal orders, already placed or pending, would keep the mills humming over the next several weeks.

Helpful also were forecasts of building observers, indicating a substantial increase in industrial construction during the remainder of the year. Contracts for new factories during the first seven months were placed at some 75 above the comparable 1935 period.

At the same time analysts pointed out the probability margins of gains in business activity over last year's levels may narrow considerably in coming weeks because operations in most industries forged ahead briskly in the 1935 fall and winter.

FINANCIAL BAROMETER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The end of the long down trend in Treasury funds held at Federal Reserve Banks is seen in the next few weeks, when income tax payments and cash subscriptions to the recent bond issue are expected to swell Government deposits. Evidence that Treasury cash has reached what officials feel is a practical minimum, bankers say, is shown by the recent "call" on depositaries for $33,000,000 to ride the exchequer over until Sept. 15.

Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve Banks in the latest Reserve Board statement, compared as follows: Week ended Sept. 9— $2,420,000,000
Previous week 2,482,000,000
Same week last year 2,629,000,000

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

LONDON, Sept. 14.—The uncertain European outlook had a depressing influence in today's stock market and an easier tone prevailed, although some support came into the market at the lower levels. Motor, Armament and some copper shares sold at higher prices, while Kaffirs and West Wit issues suffered setbacks. Trans-Atlantic and gilt-edged securities also sagged, and the European bond section remained dull.

PARIS, Sept. 14.—Trading was irregular in the Bourse, bank shares, industrials and rentes declining, the latter closing 35 to 40 centimes lower. International securities held steady, while Bank of France shares were quoted at 5720 francs, compared with Friday's finish at 5885.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 14. — Wheat futures closed about a penny higher, dry weather in Argentine and Australia, strength in the Winnipeg market and a good demand for all foreign wheats being influencing factors for the advance.

Cotton held about steady, hedging and Bombay selling being absorbed by trade and speculative buying on reports of a good demand for cotton cloth in the New York primary market.

TODAY'S NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

SPECIAL ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Total sales today on the New York Stock Exchange amounted to 1,000,860 shares, compared with 494,700 Saturday; holiday a week ago and 1,492,650 a year ago. STEEL PRODUCTION REBOUNDS 4.3 POINTS

Trade Circles Attribute Rise to Snap Back From Labor-Day-Week Drop.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Operations in the steel industry for the current week advanced 4.3 points to 72.5 per cent of capacity, compared with 68.2 last week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

A month ago operations averaged 72.2 per cent of capacity, while a year ago the rate was 48.3 per cent.

Trade circles attributed the rise in operations to a snap-back from curtailed production during the Labor day week-end. While the steel industry does not officially observe the Labor day holiday, trade spokesmen pointed to the abrupt decline in operations last week.

In the period ended Aug. 31, which included the Saturday before the holiday, the industry's production was at 71.5 per cent of capacity, while in the preceding week the rate was 72.5 per cent, the same as the latest.

The recently announced price increases on certain items for the fourth quarter was thought to have attracted little advance buying.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 14.—"Far from experiencing a summer lull the steel industry shows statistically a forward movement from July to August. More steel is being produced and more finished steel shipped. Steel ingot production in August was 7 per cent higher than in July, a gain of 272,399 tons to the highest level since March, 1930. In eight months of this year total production of ingots is only 4,000,000 tons less than in all of 1935," says Steel.

"Shipment of finished steel by the United States Steel Corp. in August was at the rate of 35,527 tons a day, up in July 35,216 tons, indicating acceleration of output and needs of consumers. With one less time week August showed a slight decline in total shipments.

"Because of the Labor Day holiday in some producing centers and incidence of considerable repair work on furnaces at Youngstown the national steel operating rate for the week is down two points to 69½ per cent. A rebound next week is indicated which may carry the rate higher than during August.

"Operations in the Buffalo district were up 6 points to 81 per cent; and in the Pittsburgh district, 72 points to 72 per cent. Cleveland was down 2½ to 79½ per cent; Eastern Pennsylvania 1 to 47½; Youngstown 12 to 67; New England 10 to 70 and Cincinnati 4 to 76. Others were unchanged.

"Following announcement of fourth-quarter prices a week ago by the leading interest on a number of items independent producers are sending out announcements to the same effect. Additionally, cold-rolled strip, alloy steel and fern-romanganese prices have been reaffirmed. Cold-drawn bars and reinforcing bars remain to be announced for fourth quarter, Seamless tube prices on automotive jobs increased $2 per ton by the bar advance, as these are sold on the bar card. Considerable opinion exists to the effect that reinforcing bars will be advanced, following carbon bars.

"Adjustment of prices on wire products has been made by a cut of $4 per ton on basis and several other items. Nothing has been done without announcement and is for September only, with limit of delivery Oct. 15. No price for fourth quarter has been announced.

"Award of structural shapes last week at over 19,000 tons, was nearly double the 11,128 tons reported the preceding week. In reinforcing bars lettings were almost the same total, 3827 tons for last week and 3935 for the preceding period.

"Several unusual lettings of steel have been placed in the past week or are pending, offering substantial support to production. Contract has been let for the assembly plant of General Motors at Linden, N. J., 6500 tons, and for a subway section, 5040 tons is pending. Chicago fabricators estimate close 90,000 tons of structural work is being figured in that area. Bids have been taken again on the United States liner for which 15,000 tons of built steel will be required. Several builders submitted bids this time. Taking of bids on a Government dry dock for Honolulu, T. H., 40,000 tons of steel, has been deferred from Sept. 30 to Nov. 22.

"Railroad buying is restricted, with promise of large orders later. Seaboard Air Line has placed 10,000 tons of rails and a large tonnage of accessories with Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co. Ten locomotives have been awarded and one road will rebuild 300 box cars in its own shops, requiring a fair tonnage of steel. An inquiry is out for 150 all-steel automobile cars. Steel specifications from carbuilders to mills are heavy for cars already under contract.

"Automotive assemblies declined 4878 for the week, to 26,750.

"On an advance of 50 cents per ton on heavy melting steel at Chicago Steel's scrap composite has advanced 8 cents to $15.87, the eleventh consecutive week of advance. The finished steel composite dropped 40 cents to $53, on the September reduction of $4 per ton on wire rails. The iron and steel composite remains unchanged at $34.10."

MANY CORPORATE BONDS ARE LOWER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—A considerable part of the corporate bond list was affected by selling today, and final prices were lower.

Scattered exceptions included loans of McKesson Robbins, Frisco Railway, Union Pacific and New Haven, which finished slightly higher. U. S. Governments were irregular, 2-32nds of a point higher to 4-32nds lower.

Expert Steel Issue Offer Soon.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—It was learned in usually well informed Wall street quarters today that Bethlehem Steel Corp.'s $50,000,000 issue of 3¾ per cent bonds will be offered to the public very soon, possibly tomorrow.

A registration statement covering the issue was filed more than two weeks ago with the SEC at Washington.

Of the total amount of the issue, $15,000,000 is expected to be used for refunding currently outstanding obligations; $20,000,000 for financing additions to plants, and the remainder for general corporate purposes.

COPPER FOR EXPORT REACHES 9.90C BASIS

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—A new wave of foreign copper buying swept the export price to 9.90 cents a pound today, the highest level since April 30, 1931, when the metal sold at 10.05 cents.

Sales from Jan. 1 to date were $2,416,412,000, compared with $2,347,708,000 a year ago and $2,809,894,000 two years ago.

SHAW CONDEMNS 'CATHOLIC ACTION'

Objects to Censorship of Film Based on His Play.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—George Bernard Shaw told the editor of the New York Times in a letter today that the Catholic Action had censored a film scenario of his play, "St. Joan," and he protested against the Action as "meddling by amateur busybodies."

"I find myself presented with certain specific requisitions from the Action," the dramatist wrote, "to be complied with on pain of having all Roman Catholics forbidden to witness an exhibition of my 'St. Joan' film."

His 3000-word letter referred to the Catholic Action as "a body pretending to represent the Vatican without as much knowledge of catholicism as a village gravedigger."

He cannot accept this "pretension," the letter said, because the Action "has neither the knowledge nor the manners to sustain such a part. It is as obnoxious to the United States Constitution as any of the features of the New Deal forbidden by the Supreme Court. It has no legal authority to enforce its vetoes.

"Yet it has brought all the Hollywood financiers and corporations to their knees by the threat that if they dare to produce a film banned by it not one of the 20,000,000 Catholics in the United States will be allowed to cross the threshold of any picture house exhibiting it."

Elisabeth Bergner, who appeared on Broadway in "Escape Me Never," is playing the title role in the movie, which went into production Aug. 31 in England.

"Religious Encouragement."

Shaw, who wrote the play in 1923, described the production as having had "such general approval and especially such religious encouragement that the possibility of a conflict with the censorships which now control the films never occurred to me.

"I have certainly nothing to fear from Catholics who understand the conditions imposed on history by stage representation and are experts in Catholic history and teaching."

Shaw discussed the historical background of the scenes to which he said the Action objected, and wrote that "I find that in the copy of my scenario that fell into the hands of the Catholic Action the word 'paradise,' and an illusion to a halo, are struck out because they are classed as religious. The word 'damned' is cut out apparently because it is profane. The word God is cut out, St. Denis is cut out, sentences containing the words religion, Archbishop, deadly sin, Holy, infernal, sacred office and the like are cut out . . . even the word babes is forbidden, presumably as immodest.

"I make all this public because I believe very few inhabitants of the United States, Catholic or Protestant, lay or secular, have the least suspicion that an irresponsible Catholic Society has assumed public control of their artistic recreations.

Strikes at Hays Organization.

"I am of course aware that there has been in the United States a genuine revolt . . . by good Catholics who want t o enjoy a beautiful art without being disgusted and insulted by exhibitions of silly blackguardism financed by film speculators foolish enough to think that such trash pays.

"A body called the Hays Organization has taken the matter in hand so vigorously that it now has Hollywood completely terrorized. Without its sanctions nothing can be done there in the film business. The section of the screen industry which cares for nothing but making money on the assumption that the public is completely depraved, has had a thorough scare, which was badly needed."

Censorship, he maintained, "is the wrong method" of achieving control because it "always comes in practice to postulating the desirability of an official with the attributes of a God and then offering the salary of a minor railway station master plus a fee for play to some erring mortal to deputize for omniscience."

He suggested 'only one (method) which has proved sensible and practical:

"Have your picture houses and theaters licensed from year to year by the local municipal corporation, with power to the corporation to discontinue the license on evidence that the house is ill conducted or for other 'judicial reasons.'"

City Detectives Wound Farm Boy.
By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 14.—Woodrow Gabriel, 21 years old, of Glensted, in Morgan County, Mo., who told police he came here to look for a job, was shot in the left foot Friday night by a detective who said the farm youth fled when he attempted to question him. Lester Kircher and Clarence Ratcliff, city detectives, said they saw Gabriel stop between two apartment building and went over to question him. Kircher said the youth broke away and ran and that he fired at his feet. He was treated at a hospital and released at headquarters after being questioned.

Mostly About Babies.
Too Few in France.
Too Many in Italy.
120,000,000 in California.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1936.)

THE French worry more than ever about their falling birth rate. Every year deaths are more numerous than births by 500,000. Newspapers print statistics to show that unless something is done, there soon will be no Frenchmen left.

Nations, like individuals, grow old and die. Nations are replenished by immigration bringing new, fresh blood, new thought, new methods. Italy has retained her vitality and fertility through the centuries, thanks to fresh blood from everywhere, coming in from Greece at the southern end, and later all kinds of bearded powerful "barbarians" pouring in from the north over the Alps.

The French for a long time have discouraged immigration, as the United States does now, and considerations of economy, laws compelling division of fortune among the children, discourage the high birth rate that once prevailed in France.

There are exceptions. The President of the French Republic recently accepted an invitation to act as god-father to the sixteenth child in a French family. The father of that family was honored with a fine speech and the Legion of Honor; no Legion of Honor for the mother, which suggests rewarding Mr. Chanticleer, the rooster crowing on the fence, and forgetting the hen that laid the egg.

French women demand the vote in vain. They manage 80 per cent of the retail business in France, but men will not trust them with the vote. It is suggested that to permit female suffrage might increase the French birth rate. It might, on the other hand, make the already busy French woman too busy to have babies.

Female suffrage has certainly not increased the birth rate among American mothers. It has, however, compelled politicians to ask themselves, "What do the women want?" and that is the main thing.

Dictators of Europe do everything to encourage a higher birth rate. Hitler exhorts German women to do their "Aryan duty." Mussolini, under whose rule the population has grown immensely, in spite of war, demands 60,000,000 Italians, in a country possessing only one-half the fertile area of California. If he ruled California, he would tell the noble mothers of that State, "Please increase the population to 120,000,000." Imagine that, and the unemployment complications that would ensue.

No wonder Mussolini felt that he must have more land; room for surplus Italian babies in Ethiopia.

Old-style Americans, of the Cabot, Lowell, Jones and Smith kind, are dying out rapidly. A country that, intelligently cultivated and governed, could easily support a billion population settles down to 120,000,000—and Texas alone, intensively cultivated, could feed all the earth's 1,800,000,000 population.

This should be remembered. When nations lose the vitality that increases population, others come to occupy lands not used; every page of history proves it.

Neglecting to encourage vigorous immigration—by which this nation has been created—we specialize and rejoice, foolishly, in multiple births, reported in many directions.

The Dionne quintuplets have had for rivals quadruplets in New Jersey, and six babies were born to one mother in Nicaragua, only one, unfortunately, surviving.

Mothers who fail to produce children in squadrons and platoons need not feel humiliated. To have one good baby and take good care of it is the way to a better civilization. One child can absorb all the affection and care that any father and mother can give. Some fish have 40,000 children at a time, and pay no attention to any of them.

THE Experts Lose Caste

By Ely Culbertson

UNLESS average contract players are a great deal less human than I think they are they probably feel sadistic satisfaction on hearing about the "falls of the mighty." Certainly they have to listen to or read a plethora of tales in which the experts are glorified. So now I rush to the rescue with a hand on which 18 of the nation's leading lights bit the dust, and that, in a recent tournament of first importance. Only two declarers, in the common contract of four hearts, played correctly and were successful.

Ely Culbertson

	♠AQ1064 ♥K84 ♦Q64 ♣84
♠85 ♥J109 ♦AKJ972 ♣95	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠KJ732 ♥7 ♦8 ♣QJ107 32
	♠9 ♥AQ6532 ♦1053 ♣AK6

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	3 hearts	Pass
4 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the diamond king and, when his partner played the eight, followed with the ace and another diamond, which East ruffed. The club queen was returned and declarer won. Now it was quite obvious that the only danger of losing the contract lay in finding all the trumps in one hand, otherwise two leads of trumps would account for the outstanding ones, and then the hand could be laid down, since declarer would have an easy ruff of his only losing club.

In national tournaments it hardly is likely that any of the declarers would have failed to figure out "this only danger," but, nevertheless, as I said before, only two of them found the proper line of play to guard against it.

At every table the ace of hearts was laid down to investigate the trump situation. This, of course, was correct since a follow by both East and West would have allowed declarer to spread his cards. But when it was found that West held the outstanding three trumps only two declarers embarked on the proper line of play. They continued to lead out trumps until, with one remaining, all hands were reduced to four cards. Declarer's were one spade, one trump, and the king and another club; dummy's were a club and three spades; West's were inconsequential, but East found himself on thin ice with the jack-ten of clubs and king-jack of spades. South led the last heart, and, discarding a spade from the dummy, squeezed East into discarding the stopper of one of the black suits. Whichever he chose, South took the rest of the tricks.

At the other tables, after finding the bad trump break, the king of clubs was laid down and a club led for a ruff. But this was duck soup for West, who, on the third club, had only to discard one of his two spades to be assured of defeating the contract. The club ruff landed the play in the dummy, and now there was no way for the declarer to return to his hand in order to draw trumps without conceding a trump trick to West. The attempt to ruff the second round of spades could not avail, since West would overruff a low trump or preserve his jack for the winning trick if declarer ruffed high.

On pure analysis these declarers should have seen that their play could not work! West already had disclosed a holding of six diamonds and three hearts. The four cards remaining, divided any way that the declarer could have chosen, would not permit the ruffing of a third round of clubs. If West had one club and three spades he would ruff the second club lead; if two and two, what actually happened would take place, and three clubs and one spade would have given precisely the same result. Moreover, and this is important, since West had not overcalled the one heart bid, which he would have been certain to do had he held the king of spades in addition to the good diamond suit he had shown, East should have been marked with that important king. That being so, a squeeze would be certain to operate against East unless West were able to stop the club suit, and in that event nothing whatsoever could have been done about it at this stage.

Today's Question.

Various Items For Correct Table Service

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

MAY a well-and-tree meat platter be used for any kind of meat, or is it just suitable to serve steak? Will you please explain this style of platter, which I have never seen?

Emily Post

Answer: It is usually a large-sized platter intended for roasts, with a bowl which is useful in catching and holding the juice. I have never seen this type of platter used for steak but I think it would be most practical if the size is suitable.

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please explain where olives, as well as celery, radishes, etc., are placed when passed around the table, and also where one is supposed to put the olive pits?

Answer: Olives, radishes and celery are put on the bread and butter plate if there is one, otherwise on the edge of the plate from which one is eating.

Dear Mrs. Post: How much of a cob of corn may be buttered at one time, and may the salt be shaken from an individual salt pot as needed, or must it first be put on the plate and then spread with the knife?

Answer: Butter is spread across half the length, or possibly the whole length, of two rows at a time with an individual butter knife. The more butter you take the shorter the length should be. Salt is taken directly on the cob from an individual shaker. If there are general shakers, then you would, of course, take the salt you need on your plate. This is also true when the salt "won't shake." Or there is no objection to perhaps the most convenient method of all, that of mixing salt and pepper with the butter, then spreading it all at one time.

Dear Mrs. Post: (1) When only one wine is served through dinner, are wine glasses supposed to be removed before dessert? (2) At a formal dinner, when several wines are served, is any one left for dessert?

Answer: (1) No. (2) Correctly speaking, champagne is the only wine to be served with dessert. The sherry glass is removed at the end of the soup course and white wine removed with the fish course, and the champagne continued through to the end of dinner. (Port, of course, when served, comes last of all.)

Honey Meringue Pie

One-half cup strained honey.
Two egg yolks.
One tablespoon butter.
Baked pie shell.

Blend cornstarch with one-fourth cup cold milk and add salt and honey. Scald remaining milk and add to the cornstarch mixture. Cook in double boiler, stirring constantly until thick. Pour slowly over slightly beaten egg yolks and then return to double boiler and heat until egg is cooked, stirring continually. Add butter last and when cool pour into a baked pie shell. Cover with a meringue made from the whites of two eggs and two tablespoons sugar.

Tomato Preserves

Five pounds ripe tomatoes, four pounds sugar, two lemons, sliced thin, one-fourth teaspoon salt. Scald tomatoes and peel. Place in a crock, add sugar and let stand over night. Drain off juice and boil rapidly until it spins a thread. Now add tomatoes, lemons and salt, and cook until thick and clear. Seal in hot sterilized jars.

Easy Hot Cakes

Two cups sour milk, one teaspoon baking soda, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon melted butter, one egg, flour to thicken. Pour by tablespoons onto a hot, greased griddle. When bubbles form on one side, turn and brown the other. Serve at once.

FRISBY SAYS NATION'S NUMBER ONE PROBLEM IS MARTIAL RELATIONS —HOW TO ADJUST THEM

By PROF. H. W. FRISBY,
The One-Man Brain Trust.

WASHINGTON MONUMENT—Someone in Nebraska, who is not man enough to sign his name, has sent me an insulting postcard, on which he has scribbled a base insinuation that Horace Walpole Frisby offers no ordered plan for America's future — no sane and simple solution of the complicated problems that beset rich and poor alike.

Friends, it made me so mad, when I read this canard, that my hand trembled and I had half a notion to go right out there to Nebraska, tear the postcard into a thousand bits and fling it in his face.

In fact, I had packed by grip, and nothing would have stopped me from forcing this cowardly character assassin to eat his words had he not failed to give his name and address.

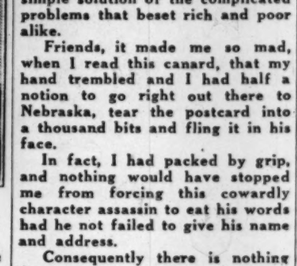

Consequently there is nothing for me to do but force the issue out in the open and use plain, ordinary horse sense to blast this cowardly adversary into political oblivion.

Frisby offers no ordered plan? How about the Frisby Marriage Adjustment Act — a measure that would appropriate millions for a survey of marital relations throughout the Union, and set up a Marital Relations Board that would straighten out the difficulties between every man and woman in the land?

What good are old age pensions, crop curtailment, drought relief, increased taxes and potato control if people are not satisfied with their husbands and wives? We've got to find out what's the matter in the home. We've got to let the government step in to find the cause and cure for domestic strife.

America is crying for a leader who will march straight to the heart of the trouble—a Master Chiropractor who can and will take off his coat and readjust the national backbone, and relieve the nerve pressure that is costing the country more than a billion dollars a year in alimony, lawyers' fees and bus fare to Reno.

The Cold Bath As Treatment For Complexion

While of No Value for Cleanliness, It Stimulates Spirits and Skin.

By Helen Jameson

SHIVER a bit for beauty's sake. There's a slogan for you. That women don't like cold water is demonstrated by the howls one occasionally hears in beauty shops. They are protests against the icy rub. You'd think the cash customers were being murdered.

Men are strong for the cold shower. Perhaps it is because they like to talk about it, appear brave and strong. Women, as a rule, prefer the hot bath. Now and then one finds a lovely goddess who has learned something along the lines of physical education who bets her beauty money on cold water. She is a rare bird. But she is on the right track. She has vitality, good coloring, the brisk step and the bright eye.

Here is what a hot bath does: It produces dilation of the blood vessels of the skin; the respiratory glands become exceedingly active and wash out the pores; the sebaceous glands become highly energized.

If the hot bath is prolonged, one should drink plenty of cold water, because loss of perspiratory fluids has a depressing effect. This condition is offset by taking water internally before and after the bath.

* * *

AS a cleansing agent the cold bath does nothing, the water rolling from the surface that is oiled by sebaceous glands. Hot soapy water, with plenty of friction, helps the skin to rid itself of dead cells and, by the removal of cutaneous debris, the cutaneous fabric is able to function normally.

The ideal bath is the warm, soapy scouring followed by a quick cold shower. If the shower is too much of a shock and there does not follow a quick reaction of the blood streams, cool the water in the tub, slap it over the body with a wash cloth. Or use a spray, cooling the water gradually. The hot tubbing with no chilly rinse afterwards is too relaxing, too enervating. It doesn't put one on one's toes by any means. It makes one feel like doing a flop, getting 40 winks, chucking the big date.

* * *

HOT applications to the face are recommended only when blackheads and pustules are present. Certainly they should never be a part of the beautifying treatment if the skin has started to wrinkle or the tissues to sag. Use warm water then and cold water afterward unless a cream is to be applied. While the cream is on, after a five-minute friction, use an ice cube.

Before the hot bath the face should get a film of cream. Anyone taking a survey of complexions of middle-aged women will discover that those who have stood up under the bombardment of many birthdays are the ones whose faces have been both soaped and lubricated.

SAVE on food

DON'T let the high cost of feeding your family discourage you. There's still one delicious food that hasn't gone up in price. Kellogg's Corn Flakes — nourishing and rich in energy — are one of the biggest values you can buy. Ask your grocer for Kellogg's, and serve them often.

Nothing takes the place of Kellogg's CORN FLAKES

Fall Skirts Vary Greatly in Length

NOTHING seems so uncertain this fall as the length of the skirt. It's like the girl with three beaux, who is having a bit of a problem dating them all. We have, first, the shorter street costume. Then we have the dinner dress in street length, and again, the dinner dress that touches the floor. Or we may have a cocktail suit of ankle length which is good, also, for informal dining. Our evening dresses sweep the floor, but there are persistent rumors of shorter formal clothes.

Oh well! Maybe the designers are not serious about any of these skirt lengths—and we can go about with all of them indefinitely, taking our pick and pleasing our fancy as the mood dictates. It promises to put variety into the winter picture, anyway. But usually such uncertainty about hemlines presages a definite change—just as, inevitably, the girl with three or four eligibles on her list has to make a decision sometime!

Visitors

Don't permit visitors to come in at bed time and play hard with baby, getting him laughing and excited. You will pay up for it later when baby spends a restless, fretful night.

Anecdotes of New Yorkers And New York

By George Tucker

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.

JIMMY JOHNSTON, the Madison Square Garden boxing impresario, seldom forgets a name or a face, but there was one occasion when he was completely stumped.

Aware of Johnston's reputation, a flashily dressed gabbo stepped up and began to wring his hand vigorously. "Fancy seing you here?" he bellowed, slapping the incredulous Jimmy on the shoulder. "How's the family? You're looking great. It's been 10 years, hasn't it?"

Johnston searched his mind frantically, but could recall no such pug-ugly as this. But he didn't let on. He pumped the other guy's hand just as enthusiastically, made bright but crafty observations, and declared himself delighted on encountering an old friend in this unexpected fashion.

Later, when the loud one had gone, Johnston stepped up to the bar.

"Who was that fellow?" he asked.

"Why, don't yno know, Jimmy? That was 'Two-Finger Joe.' The police are looking for him everywhere."

ONE of the British correspondents who came over at the time of the Democratic convention was idling in his hotel when a giant political rally got underway. A parade was snaking through the streets and the band blared forth with "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

"I say," Britished the Britisher, "that IS sporting of you fellows—playing 'God Save the King.'" He rushed to the window and stood at attention until the last strains of the anthem were lost in the shouting.

There was a foggy cruise down the bay the other morning to meet the Conte de Savoia, and the customs cutter, as usual, was crammed to her belfry with reporters and officials.

Suddenly a ferry cut across the cutter's bow and the captain indignantly yanked the siren cord. Instantly there came an ear-splitting blast.

"Ah," observed one of the line officials gravely, "that reminds me, I must write to my wife."

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a girl 16 years old. I have a girl friend with whom I have been going for four years. We are of different religions but are great friends and discuss things with each other which we would never discuss with our parents.

Now that I am old enough to go with boys my parents will not permit me to go with her. I know that we will keep on seeing each other secretly if we can't go together in the open. We have two weeks in which to break up. Without one another we will be lost. Please tell me what to do. M.

I had to print a part of your letter in order to make the answer intelligent. However, I think you would do well to talk over the matter very seriously with your mother, for undoubtedly she has some very definite reason for not wanting you to be so very chummy with the other girl. There are sometimes family traditions which are followed in such cases, and also, she may feel that as time goes on your associations will be changing, and you will be making new friends. It perhaps seems very tragic now, but people do make new friends, and no doubt you will be seeing your friend occasionally just through mutual contacts. Perhaps you can persuade your mother to let you continue to be friends, but not so much to the exclusion of all others. That may be the reason she wants to end it.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Carr:

THERE was a letter in your column recently signed "Teresa," from a girl who said she belonged to a club for boys and girls. I would like to join such a club if the dues are not too high, but don't know of any. I would appreciate if you would help me locate one in my neighborhood, in North St. Louis. DICK.

You gave no address so that I could communicate with you in case I learned of any club, nor did you indicate just what sort of organization you wanted to join. So you see, it is pretty difficult for me to do anything about it. North St. Louis is, after all, a pretty large territory.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

WILL you kindly advise me how to obtain information regarding commercial modeling? I have an attractive daughter of 16 who I am confident could earn a living modeling. MRS. L. G.

I suggest that you apply at the various department and women's apparel stores that use models. And perhaps some of the commercial advertising firms that handle accounts for clothing manufacturers and retailers would be able to give you information.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WILL you please tell me if it is correct to stand when the national anthem is played. I attended a band concert the other night with friends, and when it was played we stood but no one else did. AMERICAN CITIZEN.

It has always been considered correct to arise when the national anthem is played, or if standing, for men to remove their hats. I think you were right, although occasionally there are times when it would inconvenience oneself and well as others too greatly to stand.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I RECENTLY came to live for a while in my son's house. The other evening some of his friends called and he called me into the living room to meet them. When I entered he remained seated as did the other men. My son introduced me and never said another word.

What should I have done except to ask to be excused and retire to my room? WONDERING.

Your son certainly was guilty of great impoliteness and disrespect as were any other men in the room. A Gentleman always rises when introduced to a woman, and also should rise when she enters the room, remaining standing until she is seated—except, of course, where the hostess for instance is in and out of the room constantly, or some of the women remain standing for purposes of conversation. Under the circumstances, there was little you could do except to be seated—or did they not even offer you a seat?—and attend the conversation as well as possible, perhaps, if it was one in which you could join, and later leaving.

* * *

Dear Martha Carr:

I HAVE a number of things I have outgrown, and thought perhaps some of your readers might like to exchange a quilt for them. I am unable to use them any longer. R. D.

I suggest that you try to make the exchange through the exchange column of the paper, but should I hear of anyone in need of such articles, and wanting to exchange, I shall let you know.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

The People That Make Impressions

Some Receive Notice Without Trying, Others Fail Entirely to Do So.

By Elsie Robinson

(Copyright, 1936.)

QUEER thing about people—Some of them are so intensely alive . . . so compelling in their aliveness. They need not be noisy, assertive people. To the contrary, they are often quiet people with a natural, simple manner. But there is some quality about them which leaves its impress. If they merely enter a room you notice them, find yourself wondering about them . . . often confiding in them after the slightest acquaintance.

Elsie Robinson

Then there are other people, equally intelligent . . . quite as good-looking . . . who leave no impression. Try as they may—and often they make desperate efforts to obtain attention—they remain vague, insignificant.

Those good-looking, well-groomed, amiable, sufficiently smart young men who, somehow, never manage to get or hold decent jobs.

WHY? What's the matter with such people?

They're actually not alive, even to themselves!

They too feel that vagueness which baffles you—flounder miserably in it—fight it despairingly.

This thing Life . . . to be alive so that others feel your life, follow it . . . what is it? How's it done? Not just by being born. Pigs and puppies—they too are born, but they do not radiate life. Not just by eating, sleeping, playing, working—a brute or an idiot can do these things yet remain as meaningless as any clod or carrot.

Nor even by saying the right words, wearing the right clothes, using the right gestures—an ape can do as much, and get no further with it. Nor even by wishing frantically for life—reading about it—clipping bits of poetry.

You can only COME ALIVE in one way and that is—BY LIVING.

Real living. Not aping somebody else's modes and mannerisms . . . copying somebody else's "line" . . . quoting someone else's thoughts . . . following somebody else's record. These are the popular things to do today, for this is the synthetic age.

Study any class of high school youngsters. Nine out of ten of them are imitating someone—some movie actor or actress, some popular hero. Look at any file of office workers. Nine out of ten of them are following some prescribed ritual for success.

How often do you find a person who dares to be himself, think his own thoughts, follow his own impulses, use his own gestures, build his own assets? Copycat stuff—it's interesting and artful, but it doesn't work. It doesn't—it can't—give life meaning, because it's not real.

Your life has meaning only to the extent that it is real. You live only to the extent that you are real. You impress others only to the extent that you are real.

Why do some people stand out—others remain vague? That's why. The distinctive people mean something in themselves because they are themselves. They aren't just an echo—they are originals. You may like or dislike them, but you are never in doubt of them. They are real.

The others? They move in a dream—have the vague unreality of a dream—because they have never dared to come alive . . . never dared be themselves.

If you want to live and make others feel and follow your life, snap out of your dreams, cut out your act and—be real. What kind of real? Your kind of real. One honest turnip is worth a ton of synthetic orchids.

Cucumber Rings

Eight large cucumbers, one ounce stick cinnamon, one ounce whole cloves, one ounce whole allspice, one ounce celery seed, three pounds brown sugar, three pints cider vinegar, one teaspoon powdered alum. Make a strong brine and let cucumbers stand in the brine for three days, covering crock with a plate. Drain and let stand in clear water over night. Drain. Add alum to equal parts of vinegar and water and let cucumbers simmer in this for two hours. Remove cucumbers and cut into rings and pack in a deep crock. Combine vinegar, sugar and spices and bring to boiling point. Pour boiling hot over the rings and let stand over night. Drain off vinegar in the morning, reheat and pour back over cucumbers. Next morning pack rings in sterilized jars, reheat vinegar and pour over rings. Seal and store in a cool, dark place.

When cake baking, don't think a larger lump of butter will make the cake better. Too much butter will absolutely spoil a cake and many of the best cakes you have eaten have no butter in them at all.

A TEACHER LEARNS FROM THE CHINESE

Maurice Votaw, Journalism Instructor in Shanghai, Thinks China Has Many Points of Superiority.

By MARGUERITE MARTYN

MAURICE VOTAW, a native of St. Louis County, born on a farm near Eureka which was part of a land grant to his ancestors in 1790, later a resident of Columbia and a graduate of Missouri University School of Journalism, and who has been teaching journalism in China the past 14 years, returns to visit his mother, Mrs. Rebecca Votaw of Columbia, just now a patient at St. Luke's Hospital. He has taught the Chinese much they needed to know about journalism, so much that he can say—although, being a very modest young man, he doesn't say it—that he has had a part in raising the profession of journalism from a veritable racket, existing chiefly by blackmail as it did in China a few years ago, to an honorable profession in which high caste Chinese now encourage their sons and daughters to engage. Boys are taking to it enthusiastically and in large numbers, Votaw reports, although he knows of only one Chinest woman journalist, a society editor in Shanghai.

But while he has been teaching them, the Chinese have taught Maurice Votaw a thing or two, also, which make him critical of some conditions here at home, brought strikingly to his attention after his long absence. For one thing, we appear to him, by contrast, an unhappy, discontented people.

"People here accept the blessings of so many modern mechanical contrivances and conveniences as a matter of course," he observes, "In China they belong only to people who can afford them. People here seem to think they are entitled to everything, that the world owes them a living. They appear miserable and make everybody else miserable when they don't get it. Whereas, in China, if a man is existing on only one meal a day, he will be pleasant and give you a smile. A coolie who never has owned a pair of shoes in his life, nor more than a pair of short pants and a loose cotton coat, which he dons when he is resting, will pull you in a jin-ricksha two miles over cobblestone streets for 6 cents, give you a smile when you pay him and clamor for the privilege of pulling you next time he sees you. Here a taxi driver, otherwise well paid, rolling along on a cushioned seat and pneumatic tires over smooth pavement, will sneer at a 6-cent tip."

Then our children—they are shockingly bad mannered. "American and English born children being reared in China are much better behaved," he declared. "They absorb politeness from their amah, their Chinese nurse, whose controling principle is khwe-tsu. How shall I Romanize that word?" he pondered. "There is no English equivalent. It means something more than courtesy, consideration, politeness. Something more sincere. Khwe-tsu is ingrained in the Chinese and a caretaker of children would 'lose face' if she failed to instill it in her charges. She would feel herself responsible for their delinquencies."

* * *

THEN the rush and hurry and impoliteness on our highways impress him as much as resultant accidents. "In Shanghai," he said, "where the streets are narrow and crooked, where four million people live in an area much smaller than St. Louis, and traffic is a scramble of motor cars, jin-rickshas, bullock carts, wheelbarrows, push carts, street cars, every mode of locomotion, and where there are no traffic signals for pedestrians, you rarely hear of a traffic accident. That's because people are not in such a big hurry. The law, too, regulates things in favor of the pedestrian and slow moving vehicle. On most streets in Shanghai drivers are not allowed to pass other vehicles. You must keep your place in line and move patiently with the slowest."

Chinese people are as honest as they are courteous, too, he maintains. The "squeeze" we read about, the rake-off exacted with each purchase, is a legitimate commission as established by custom.

"You trust your servant to do your purchasing since you cannot bargain in Chinese," he explained. "He buys your supplies and charges you a reasonable price. He may make a profit as a middleman does in this country. Most often the profit comes from the tradesman who allows him a certain commission for bringing him your custom and it is the tradesman who really loses by the transaction. Of course, if you are all the time accusing your servant of stealing, you are going to put ideas of dishonesty into his head. When a cook is paid 25 Shanghai dollars a month, about $7.50 in our money, it is hardly reasonable to accuse him of dishonesty. And out of that 'squeeze,' your native cook must feed himself since he cannot eat Western food. He eats meat seldom, subsists chiefly on steamed rice and green vegetables."

Maurice Votaw is one of the numerous students of the late Walter Williams, first dean of the Missouri University School of Journalism and before his death president of the state university, who have found a ready welcome in journalistic positions in the Orient. Dean Williams, so well beloved by all of his profession in this country, became, on many vacation trips to the Orient, a sort of journalistic missionary to China and Japan. So much so that powerful interests in the East endeavored to induce him to abandon his work here and apply his journalistic ideals there. Failing that, China and Japan continuously have drawn upon Missouri School of Journalism graduates for leadership in newspaper enterprises. Right now in Shanghai alone 11 graduates of our school of journalism, five Americans and six Chinese educated here, occupy key positions in the newspaper field, as managers of papers and of press associations, as correspondents for important English and American papers, as editors and teachers of journalism. Others have found places on newspapers elsewhere in the East. Votaw had his choice between starting a department of journalism in Pieping University and heading one in St. John's Episcopal University at Shanghai. Being an Episcopalian, he chose the latter. He reports flourishing conditions in the newspaper field in that city. With a foreign population of 45,000, Shanghai supports three morning dailies and one afternoon paper printed in English, one French, one German and one Russian paper.

"We do all our teaching in the English language," he said "although my teaching staff are natives, Western educated. Students take their entrance examinations in English and must have six years of English to enter the school. This seems hardly fair to the Chinese, since no American newspaper men I know read or speak Chinese. They gather their news through interpreters. But it is necessary and practical because of the many dialects in China. Each province has its own dialect not understood. It may not be similar in a single sound to the dialect of a province 50 miles away. But all educated Chinese are bi-lingual. If they can afford it, they are almost invariably Western educated. There is a movement to standardize the language, but since there is no free education, it is slow going.

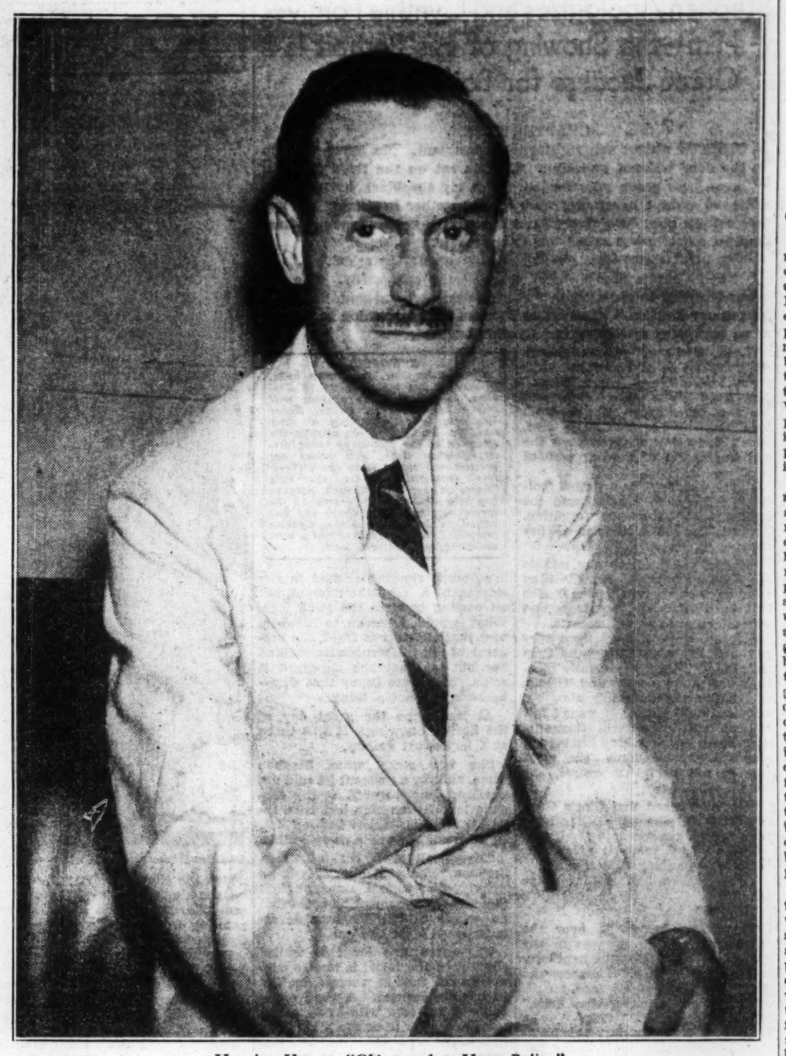

"It is almost impossible to have an American style journal printed in Chinese characters, since all Chinese printing must be done by hand-set type," said he. "With between 2000 and 5000 characters or ideographs, no linotype could produce them. There can be no headlines as we know them, since the ideographs read from up to down and from right to left. What we do is try to modernize their own journalism and aim at teaching them our journalistic methods and standards."

* * *

CHINA he describes as being in the throes of industrial development with ambitious programs of road building—both rail and motor highways—bus, airplane and other communications systems. "They are anxious to extend airplane service between this continent and Asia, but Japan, for reasons of its own, will not allow this. The 'China Clipper' is a misnomer since that airship is obliged to halt its flight at Manila." And the present Government, he says, is busy defending itself from military aggression from Japan and Communistic inroads, that they haven't got around to State education systems yet. The National Government, violently anti-Communistic, is chiefly concerned with combatting that political propaganda now. This works against the establishment of a free press. An important factotem in every newspaper office is the censor, on the alert to blue pencil everything not favorable to the Government now in power, and if not alert enough, subject to interference by secret Government intelligence agents.

With Government in control of telegraph and mail facilities, no information unfavorable to the party in power leaves or enters or is disseminated in China. Which, Votaw laments, is somewhat of a handicap to teaching American journalistic methods and principles.

However, some American institutions have their handicaps, too, he reflects critically. Reverberations of our political spoils system are felt in China. When, for instance four appointments were due in the United States extra-territorial district of Shanghai, four newly arrived Democrats came to take the positions which might better have been filled by Americans already resident there and familiar with the environment and the work to be done.

Maurice Votaw. "Chinese Are More Polite."

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By ALICE HUGHES

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.

MY business, as well as my consistent interest in The Improvement of the Breed, occasionally takes me to the bevy of race tracks which surround this roaring boomtown, and there is one pretty girl I invariably look up on my visits to the gallopers.

Her name is Mary Hirsch, and while she is the traditional Womanly Woman of song and story, the great interest and passion of her life (up to now) is the cluster of sleek and beautiful thoroughbreds for whose care and feeding she is responsible. For Mary Hirsch is the only woman trainer of race-steeds in the country. Her famous father, Max, has saddled more winners than any of his colleagues in the past year or two, and Mary is her Pop's daughter!

Ever since she was a very young schoolgirl, a decade ago, she has been devoted to horses, and after a long apprenticeship she received her own trainer's license two years ago. This summer her cup of joy overflowed all over the paddock when a two-year-old named No Sir carried her yellow and red silks to victory in the Diana Handicap, beating a mighty colt called Pompoon.

Mary's a college graduate, and a charming though rather reticent girl. I never see her—her dark eyes shining, as one of her horses comes thundering down the stretch in front—but what I realize that it is going to take a Dream Man of tremendous voltage to woo and win Mary Hirsch from her beloved bangtails!

THAT mob of starry-eyed young men I saw pushing and shoving on a Hudson River pier the other day was not waiting for a glimpse of a movie cutie, but was a welcoming committee from the Park avenue stagline greeting 16-year-old Gloria Baker, one of the most attractive of local junior glamor-girls, back from a summer overseas. Young Alfred G. Vanderbilt is her half-brother. Gloria, for all her extreme youth, has one of the biggest collections of beaux in town . . . Another of the younger set, Medora of the colossal Clan Roosevelt, has set a December date for her marriage to Herbert A. Whiting of Boston. Medora is known to her pals around and about as "Dody," and her nuptials will remove a very popular lass from circulation . . .

Columnist Farnsworth, of here, says he knows a young lady who spends so much time in our justly-popular Stork Club, night spot which is haunted both by Broadway and the Avenue, that she now stands at the bar on one foot! . . .

New services of all sorts are forever cropping up—and they are always the product of some imaginitive and ingenious gal. Now it is Mildred Johnson, former flier, who pops up with Air Shopping. She has arranged with an express agency to deliver practically anything anywhere by plane. One of her prime aims, Mildred tells me, is to buy clothes and things here for ladies in other parts of the country—and deliver them the next day. . . .

The papers are always filled clear to the want-ad section with stories and pictures of our Mrs. Harrison Williams, long on the "Best-Dressed Woman" throne, but who knows Mr. Harrison Williams? Many, for he is not really a "forgotten man," but a handsome, courtly and successful financier—and how he has to finance that wardrobe! I just saw him stepping off a boat after a visit with the Mrs. in Capri. She bought a villa there about a year ago.

Local storekeepers, who last season devoted much of their time to promoting ski-toggery, are off on another tangent this fall. While they will still peddle and promote ski-pants and things in a very large way, they are now looking to feminine skaters for trade, believing that more girls skate than ski, though the bumps and lumps, I fancy, are bout equal in both sports. At any rate, the alert merchants are already plotting elaborate skating-fashion shows at local rinks. I hope the clothes include a comfortable pillow for attachment to the derriere!

Polish Meat Loaf

One pound lean beef, two pounds veal, one pound pork, put through the grinder twice. Add to this two tablespoons minced onion, one-half cup breadcrumbs, one-half cup milk, two beaten eggs, salt, pepper. Mix all together and shape into a loaf. Place in a buttered pan and bake in a hot oven from 35 to 45 minutes. Baste with melted butter and water frequently. Serve surrounded with watercress and slices of fresh tomatoes.

How Dresden China Was Discovered

By Elizabeth Boykin

IF YOUR pride and joy is in your collection of beautiful china, you share your hobby with royalty and wealth. China has interested discriminating people not only because of its beauty but because of its interesting career.

Augustus the Strong of Saxony was the patron of the chemist who discovered how to make Dresden china. It seems that an apothecary's boy, by the name of Bottiger, composed a formula that was reported to be transformable into gold. He was locked in his laboratory and commanded to make gold . . . the poor fellow nearly lost his reason at this assignment—who wouldn't?

He was given partial liberty in Dresden while pursuing his experiments and developed the porcelain known as Meissen or Dresden ware.

Goodness knows what might have happened to the poor chemist if Augustus the Strong, his patron, hadn't been a collector and ardent admirer of beautiful china. But since he was, he welcomed the exquisite new china ware delightedly and was almost as pleased as if Bottiger had actually discovered a way to make gold. A corps of workers were brought from Delft, Holland, to start the Meissen factory, and it has been going strong ever since.

The charm of Dresden china is not only in the delicacy and fineness of the china, but also in the perfectly lovely patterns that decorate it. The garlands and bouquets have always had decided individuality, and have in fact been the source for a whole army of copies in clothes, embroidery, ribbons and many other things. And that in itself is a compliment supreme. It is a shame in a way that some of the very cheap Japanese ware has appropriated the Dresden designs though because they're not as nice as the originals yet tend to make them common.

Combination Pickle

Two quarts green tomatoes, one quart ripe tomatoes, three stalks celery chopped into cubes, four large cucumbers, three onions, three green peppers, three red peppers, one head cabbage, one-half cup salt, one quart vinegar, three cups brown sugar, one tablespoon ground mustard, one teaspoon pepper. Prepare vegetables and chop all a uniform size. Place in a large crock with salt sprinkled through layers. Drain over night. In the morning put vegetables into a preserving kettle, add vinegar and seasonings and bring to a boil. Simmer for 20 minutes and then pour into sterilized jars. Seal while hot.

Popularity in Life Depends Upon "Rarity"

By Angelo Patri

"DOUG is going away to college next week and he wants my picture to put in his room. Not just a snap, but a copy of the official photograph, the big one that stands on father's desk. I can have a copy made and pay for it out of my allowance, but mother thinks it is out of the question. What is there improper about giving a nice boy my picture to hang in his room?"

Angelo Patri

Maybe your mother has seen some of the rooms in boys' colleges? Perhaps this girl has not had that privilege, probably not. If she had she would have some glimmer of understanding about the mother's attitude. Some boys collect photographs as others collect cigar bands. They plaster the walls of their rooms with signed photographs, the bigger the better. Girls of all descriptions, in all sorts of costumes, have bestowed their pictures upon the gallant youths, signing them, "Fondly Mabel," "As ever, Morella," "To Darling Dickie from his Duckie." They are all there to be seen and criticised by the bright young men who gather in each other's rooms. A mother of a lovely girl is not exactly delighted to think of her daughter's picture in such a collection.

There is an old, old principle of feminine behavior, one that the wisest of charmers upheld with serpent-like guile. "Make yourself rare." Look about you at the professional women whose success depends upon their popularity with the public and you will find that the ones most sought after, followed, applauded when found, are those who make themselves a bit unapproachable. They have learned the art of making themselves rare.

Nobody cares much about picking field daisies. Children gather them for the fun of it and soon drop them. The daisy has made herself too common, too easy. Beautiful as she is she does not command lasting interest because she has become common property of the countryside. Trailing arbutus is searched for with untiring energy. To find a bunch of the Puritan flower requires eager, sharp-eyed search among the hills. The first intimation of its presence is a faint perfume, cool, sweet, like nothing else on earth, it comes stealing to your delighted nose on a whiff of snow-cooled air. Down on your knees you go to search among the moss. There under the lea of the rocks, almost hidden among brown leaves and broken snow, the shy, Puritan flower lies waiting. To discover it is a triumph.

Something of this rarity becomes a girl who wants to be a successful and winning sweetheart. There is a time when a college boy is entitled to a girl's picture, and nobody need supply a map of that time. The boy and the girl know every inch of the road, for they have traveled it together in affectionate understanding and trust. Until that time comes, save your picture. Make yourself rare and you will be sought after by the rare ones who appreciate beauty and worth.

Girls of today scarcely know whether to step forward or go back. As I see it, it is better to go forward with eyes wide open, stepping carefully, and cultivate rarity in all your ways.

A DOCTOR TALKS OF HEALTH

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Dr. Clendening

TWO most important facts are still unknown about the vitamins. We know that we need these substances in our food for perfect health—for growth, to throw off infections, for comfort, peace of mind, etc. — but we do not know the exact amount we need.

It would be valuable to have information in the first place on the exact amount of each which is required daily by the body for maintenance, and it would also be a good thing to know whether taking too much of any one would do any harm. The fashion of reenforcing our meals with vitamins that have been artificially prepared which is taking such a hold on the country, takes no account of either of these questions.

We do not know about some of them. In the case of the antiscurvy Vitamin C, which is generally identified as ascorbic acid, the estimate is that 27 milligrams per day is maintenance. (Twenty-seven milligrams, by the way, is a very small amount—less than half a grain apothecaries weight. Those who are worried about getting their proper amount of Vitamin C and are stuffing themselves with concentrates should have their druggist weight out half a grain of common salt and see how much they need.) Such small amounts leave one rather staggered by the idea lately brought to my attention —Vitamin D—containing face cream.

* * *

IT has been suggested that too much of certain vitamins do harm, but this is probably unsound. What we know about the body's habits in other functions would lead us to believe that it throws off the excess of substances which it is accustomed to utilize.

The vitamin nutritional disorders are not due to any upset in the body, but result simply from lack of the vitamin in the food. They are unique in medicine because they are due to the absence of something in the body.

A common remark goes: "Our ancestors didn't know anything about vitamins and they got along all right, didn't they? Why should I bother to learn to include them in my food?"

It must be admitted there is a great deal of sense in that attitude. But we must make some reservations. It is easier today to have a balanced meal including vitamins, without giving any thought to the matter or deliberately planning to incorporate the vitamins, than it was 50 years ago, because the eating habits of our generation have changed so. We have more green vegetables and fruits than our grandfathers. Owing to refrigeration and other methods of food preservation and efficient rapid transportation we have far more fresh foods. And we have them the year 'round. Our grandfathers led a life which consisted of nutritional ups and downs the ups coming in the summer the downs following a long winter of eating salt foods, bread and potatoes. The change has been so gradual that we are not aware of our mercies.

ARTLESS MODEL

A Short Serial

BY LOUISE HOLMES

Stephen Apologizes and Cynthia Forgives Him—the Showing of His Portrait Is a Great Success for Both of Them.

CHAPTER SEVEN.

STEPHEN almost ran to Martie's apartment. He burst through the door without knocking. Cynthia sat on the floor beside a great jade green pillow upon which lay the black kitten. She had been crying; her lashes were stuck together in points; her lips drooped pitifully. She stroked the kitten with gentle fingers. When Stephen burst in she raised her eyes gravely.

He knelt beside her. "Will you forgive me?" he asked.

Then Cynthia smiled. "Of course," she said softly. She addressed herself to the kitten. "Steppy, darling," she said, "we misjudged our Stephen." The kitten bounced off the cushion in pursuit of an imaginary something and Cynthia laughed.

SYNOPSIS

Cynthia Lambert, small-town belle, is visiting her artist cousin in Chicago, hoping that her absence will induce her lukewarm fiance, Roger Dishman, to set the date of their wedding. In Chicago she attracts the attention of the prominent young artist, Stephen Gear, who paints her portrait and enters it in the art gallery competition under the title "Come Hither." Although Stephen has been disillusioned in love by the movie actress, Gloria Gray, and has vowed to let women alone, Cynthia fascinates him. They have had a misunderstanding and a quarrel.

"Look, Stephen," she commanded. "Isn't she cute? Watch her walk —she looks like a ghost kitten." And truly there was something weird about Steppy. She was all black except for her little feet, which were white. She gave the odd impression of moving without feet.

Stephen said, "She's pussy footing!" They both laughed and the unhappy afternoon was forgotten. At last Cynthia scrambled to her feet.

"Martie will be here any minute and I haven't started dinner. Stay with us, won't you, Stephen?" She tied an apron over her dress and was all at once very domestic.

Stephen stayed. They were very gay over his table setting and Cynthia found it easy to casually mention the news concerning Gloria. She had dreaded telling him, but felt he should know. It wasn't fair to keep him in the dark. Just suppose he knew something interesting about Roger—wouldn't she want him to tell her? Of course, she would.

"Had you heard that Gloria Gray is divorced?" she asked, her head in the small cupboard.

There was a moment of silence, then, "Did you say—divorced?"

"Uh—hmm—where is that grape jelly?"

"When?"

"Yesterday—heard it over the radio last night—it was in the morning paper." Cynthia kept busy in the little kitchen. Somehow she didn't want to see his face.

"Didn't see a paper—too busy," Stephen muttered. "Hm—!" he seemed to be thinking. "I knew that fellow would never make her happy," he said at last. "What was it—cruelty?"

"I—I don't remember." Cynthia had told all she intended to. Let him learn the details for himself.

Stephen was no longer gay. He was troubled and uneasy. Martie came in and they sent Stephen to round up Clement. It said much for Cynthia's stay in the bizarre studio that dinner had become a pleasant orderly time, of fresh linen, candlelight and well cooked food.

The talk at dinner was of the coming exhibition, the merits of the different artists and Stephen's chances to win the grand prize. Clement too was entering a small painting over which he was extremely modest. Only four days to wait until the great event.

But Stephen was not himself. He brooded, and Cynthia too was given to long abstracted silences. At 10 o'clock he went home and Cynthia excused herself, complaining of a headache. She undressed slowly and went to bed, but long after the apartment was quiet she lay awake, her mind running around in circles, each a separate thought, but all coming back to the main idea. What would it mean to Stephen, now that Gloria was free? His proposal of the afternoon tormented her, but at last she shrugged it aside. Men were funny that way—he hadn't meant a thing.

At last came the great day of the Spring Showing. It was to be at 4 in the art gallery.

She was ready when Stephen came, and for a moment he said not a word, simply stared at the dazzling loveliness which had been little Cynthia Lambert of Cedar Point. In all truth she was a new Cynthia.

"They call it a cocktail dress, Stephen," she told him. "Is it all right?" She turned slowly before him and for a moment he could find no words to tell her how devastatingly all right she was.

The dress was long; it trailed slightly on the floor; it was so cunningly cut that it seemed molded to her slenderness. A wide metal collar shimmered with every movement and gave back every glancing light a hundred fold. Her hair had been cut and a mass of shining curls took the place of the modest roll on her neck. It was drawn back from her vivid face and a mist of bangs curled on her white forehead. Long earrings hung from her uncovered ears, giving a contradictory air of sophistication to her childishly wide open eyes.

"Whew!" was all Stephen could say, but Cynthia was satisfied.

She would never forget the hours that followed. As she and Stephen entered the crowded gallery there was a little hush, necks craned, then a murmur arose. "Stephen Gear—and that must be his model—yes, it is—Stephen Gear and the model for 'Come Hither'—even lovelier than her picture."

They were instantly surrounded. Introductions, praise for the portrait and its inspiration, congratulations, flattery, until Cynthia's head was in a whirl. Obviously the tall blond man and the dark-haired little girl were the axis around which the showing revolved.

Once Stephen put his hand on her arm possessively and said, "If my painting is anything of a triumph, Cynthia must share the credit."

Her heart beat with pride and something more; her eyes sparkled; she was on the crest of a buoyant wave. Everyone talked to her and she found herself being charming, being gay, saying the right things.

Stephen took her to the picture and she stood before it, her lovely head on one side, her expression a little critical. "Do you like it?" she asked of a hovering gentleman.

"Like it!" he boomed. "It so far surpasses anything that he has previously shown that I'll give my opinion right now." Evidently his opinion was worth listening to for Stephen turned to him breathlessly, other people drew near and there was sudden quiet. "It is the finest piece of work ever shown in this gallery," he said emphatically, "and it puts Stephen on top the heap."

* * *

THERE was a thrilled silence, then little "Ohs" and "Ahs." Everyone shook Stephen's hand again and Cynthia saw the glitter of tears in his eyes. She thought she saw tears of pride in the loyal Clement's eyes and she felt the sting of them behind her own.

The elderly gentleman boomed on. "Now that I've seen the model I am not surprised. Where did he find you, my dear?" He bent his broadly smiling face on Cynthia.

They drank tea and ate little cakes and then it was over. As Stephen and Cynthia left the gallery they walked through an aisle of clicking cameras. Newspaper reporters stopped them and Stephen embarrassedly answered their questions. At last they were out on the boulevard.

"Let's go some place, lamb," Stephen said and hailed a cab. She knew he was tremendously pleased with her and she thought her heart would burst. "Any suggestions?" he asked as the driver waited. She named a prominent hotel, and the cab started.

"Well, we did it." He took one of Cynthia's hands and pressed it between both of his.

"You did it! I'm so glad, Stephen—it was glorious."

"You noticed I changed the name?"

"Yes, I wondered"—

He laughed down at her. "Your fatal charm," he said and she blushed.

The dinner was perfect; the orchestra a dream of rhythm. They danced, and if Stephen had learned in New York while Cynthia danced to the radio in Cedar Point, it was as if they had been born to dance together.

The music trailed off into silence and Stephen held Cynthia close for a breathless motionless instant, then the announcer spoke into his microphone.

"We have distinguished guests tonight," he told the diners and the unseen public. "Stephen Gear, famed for his portraits, is leaving the dance floor. "We have been told that Mr. Gear's new painting, 'Come Hither,' has taken the city by storm. The charming girl with whom he has been dancing is none other than Cynthia Lambert who inspired his prize painting."

* * *

CYNTHIA was unable to believe her ears. How did announcers know so much? Stephen, blushing furiously, hurried her to the table by the window. Guests stood up to stare at them. Mercifully the lights dimmed for the entrance of a singer. Not waiting for the next number, taking advantage of the comforting gloom, Stephen piloted her from the dining room. In the taxi he put his arm around her and she leaned her head against his shoulder.

Clement stepped from the shadows when they reached the old brown stone front. "Been waiting for you," he said. "Couldn't sleep till I saw Steve again. I'm so proud —so delighted—" Clement was incoherent in his enthusiasm. His own little picture was forgotten. This was Stephen's night.

"Thanks, Clem. You'll be the next one. Let's have a party," he went on. "Get Martie and we'll go over to my studio and celebrate this occasion."

"Well, then—we three. Come on!"

"Perhaps I'd better leave you two to your celebrating." Cynthia edged toward the steps. Stephen and Clement had studied together—they were old friends.

"Nothing doing," Stephen protested. "We've got to have at least one lady to make it a party." Laughing, they all climbed in the taxi.

They were still laughing at some of Cynthia's nonsense as they left the elevator, but stopped short as the butler opened the apartment door. His oriental face was perturbed; he looked distinctly ruffled.

"Leddy want see you, Mist' Boss," he said.

On the heels of this announcement a soft drawling voice made them wheel in the direction of the studio. Gloria Gray stood framed in the doorway.

She was beautiful. Pale ash-blonde hair, smoothn lovely skin, skin that had been given so much attention that to Cynthia's critical eyes it looked a trifle overworked. She was extremely slender, her head like a golden flower on a frail stem. She held out both hands to Stephen, who was staring at her with a queer, almost frightened expression.

"Stephen," she said, and her voice was low and soft and perfectly intoned. "Don't look so startled. You knew I would come as soon as I could, didn't you?" She registered wistfulness and wounded love.

Stephen took her hands. He introduced Cynthia and Clement and called the butler to mix a drink. "And a lemonade for Miss Cynthia," he added.

Gloria sank gracefully into a becoming chair and Cynthia curled herself into a corner of the big couch. She was amazed at her feeling of resentment and antagonism. This woman had come to make trouble for Stephen. She had a proprietary manner which Cynthia instantly noted and loathed. Cynthia was acutely conscious of Stephen, every movement he made, seemed even to know what he was thinking. He was uneasy, his eyes were puzzled. He spoke jerkily.

"Had no idea you were in town," he said, standing in front of the fire, his glass in his hand.

"I arrived at 9 o'clock," Gloria told him, her eager eyes on his face belying the languor of her attitude. "I—I wanted to see you. I've been looking forward to it, Stephen." It was as if they two were alone.

"Mighty glad you came," cheerfully. "May I fill your glass?" He turned to Cynthia. "How's the lemonade?" he asked and smiled.

"Yang Foo knows how I like them. It's lovely—as usual." She took a spiteful pleasure in the quick jealous glance which darted from Gloria's eyes.

Odd Notions That Mankind Believes True

By the Rev. J. F. Newton

IT is odd how many quaint, curious, absurd notions sensible people hold. Either they do not think, or their minds slip a cog.

Here is a little list of some of the silly notions which even normal folk believe in. No doubt my readers can add to it.

That the bumps on your head correspond with your brain. That red-haired people are bad-tempered. That a birthmark is caused by the mother having seen something horrible before the child was born.

That lightning never strikes twice in the same place. That a drowning person comes up three times. That night air is bad for us. That unpleasant things come not single-file but in threes.

That the future history of the world was revealed in the great Pyramids. That what people don't know does not hurt them. That opportunity never knocks at any man's door but once. That love is blind.

That "a minister's son and a deacon's daughter usually do what they hadn't orter." That nothing is sure but death and taxes. That you can't make something out of nothing. That like father, like son.

That a person with eyes too close together is not trustworthy. That a man who doesn't look at you when talking isn't straight. That money is the root of all evil. That there is nothing new under the sun.

That it makes no difference what a man believes if he is honest. That what is everybody's business is nobody's business. That charity covers a multitude of sins. That he laughs best who laughs last.

There may be a grain of truth in some of these ideas, but most of them have no basis at all. Yet sane, educated people believe firmly some of them and many believe all of them, and more too.

In the matter of believing silly things all of us live in a glass house, so we must not throw stones at others. It may even do us good to have someone point out our pet foolish notion.

Quince Honey

Pare and core quinces. Put through food chopper. To three cups quinces add one cup water and cook until fruit is tender. Slowly stir in four cups granulated sugar and cook 15 minutes longer. Pour into sterilized glasses and cover with paraffin. Delicious over hot cakes or waffles.

Wire Screening

It is well to have a small roll of wire screening on hand to mend immediately any breaks in the window or door screens. Small pieces may be wired on the broken places to last out the remainder of the season and thus avoid removing screens when the summer is at its height.

Luncheon Dish

Find some way of using the left-over fish the next day. It should never be kept longer than that even if it looks all right, as the decay starts close to the bone and no sign may be visible.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Plum and Peach Conserve

Four pounds of plums, four pounds peaches, one pound seedless raisins, five pounds sugar, two cups water. Scald fruit and remove skins. Remove stones and cook in the water until tender. Rub through a colander. Put all ingredients into a preserving kettle and cook until thick, stirring to prevent burning. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal.

Should the gravy separate before serving, add a few spoonfuls of boiling water and stir vigorously. It will usually bring back the former smoothness.

Galumps Plan To Steal Jar Belonging to Willy

By Mary Graham Bonner

GRANDPA and Grandma Grouchy Galump were moving far, far away from the neighborhood of Puddle Muddle. Willy Nilly had bought their house and land but they were taking all their furniture away with them. The little gnome-like man felt that his animal friends would be better off without any near neighbors and with lots of space around them.

Then, too, he had all sorts of plans for the winter time. Not only would there be plenty of room for all his own family of animals but they could take in some other creatures who might need shelter. In the summer time he could let out rooms in exchange for work from animals who might want a change of air and scene.

But now he was spending a little while with the bears in their cave, and the Galumps had a wicked idea.

"It seems to me," said Grandma Grouchy Galump, "that we have let our house and land go to Willy Nilly for very little."

"We can't do anything about that now," said Grandpa, "and we were lucky to make a sale so quickly."

"That is so," agreed Grandma, "but I have always wished I could own that little brown jar in which Willy Nilly keeps cookies. If we asked him for it he might refuse because he would say his animals like it. It is very old and may be of value to us—but he wouldn't appreciate its value."

So the Galumps had talked and when they had heard that Willy Nilly would be away from his house, and his animal friends away, too, they made their wicked plan. The jar would be found missing after they had left.

"Of course we're not sure whether Rip, the dog, might be around," said Grandma, growing a little nervous.

"We can't do anything about that now," said Grandpa, "and we were lucky to make a sale so quickly."

"That is so," agreed Grandma, "but I have always wished I could own that little brown jar in which Willy Nilly keeps cookies. If we asked him for it he might refuse because he would say his animals like it. It is very old and may be of value to us—but he wouldn't appreciate its value."

So the Galumps had talked, and when they had heard that Willy Nilly would be away from his house, and his animal friends away, too, they made their wicked plan. The jar would be found missing after they had left.

"Of course we're not sure whether Rip, the dog, might be around," said Grandma, growing a little nervous.

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

1.—The other day I had a letter from a phrenologist offering to debate with me "on any platform, either national or international." If you know of an "international platform" anywhere that isn't working, please let me know and I shall be glad to meet this belligerent gentleman. Unfortunately most bumps outside the skull have a bump which makes a depression on the inside! So what phrenologists think is a love bump, is really a love depression—a weak spot! Looks bad for my opponent, but maybe he has some good come-back to that. If he can bump the right bumps together in marriage I'm for him.

2.—The above statement is that of Dr. Franz Boas, famous student of men. (Printed in Time.) The question is my own. Dr. Boas has studied the gestures of different nationalities and races and finds they are quite distinctive. But he thinks they all come from imitation and not by heredity. It seems evident that this boy did not inherit his gestures from his English parents, but copied those of the people about him. Evidently his children will do much the same thing and copy the gestures of the people about them.

3.—I know that Sir Arthur generally holds this view, but most authorities believe war takes the flower of our young manhood. In the fine new book on human heredity, by Prof. S. J. Holmes, "Genetics and Its Social Imports," he shows that during the United States Civil War the leading men—especially the college men—enlisted first, and from 20 to 40 per cent were killed. In the draft the unfit are left at home to rear children, while the strong and able are sent to the front. Modern war takes a terrible toll of our best heredity.

Sacrifice Play

By Edward A. Lawrence

"GUNNING for him? Why, my dear lady, she's practically got him in the bag."

"But what will happen to Sue? Poor girl . . . "

Sue Billings remained in the telephone booth until the two women had left the soda fountain. She took out her compact and glanced at her face. It was quite pale; her distended pupils made her eyes black; her lips looked parched.

She powdered her nose.

Looking straight before her, she walked swiftly out of the drug store, down Main street, up Third—all the way home. She bolted the door of her upstairs room and went over to the side window. She sat there quietly, looking out.

She wondered why she couldn't cry.

A charred pile of leaves at a corner of the garden emitted wisps of blue smoke; the trees were almost bare. It was the middle of autumn. The wedding had been set for a day in the early winter.

And so Lisa Sheldon had him in the bag.

Her thin brows drew together and her small, pale face—so like a doll's beneath her short, flaxen curls—tightened for an instant; but the strained, empty expression crept back. If she could only cry, she thought. But she couldn't cry; could only think—and feel.

It hurt her to think that Lonny could be taken in by such an obvious person. There had certainly been nothing between them before Lisa had gone away to school. But New York had ground her smooth —and glossy. It had given her a pseudo-sophistication and a slinky sort of glamour that had just been too much for Lonny, the poor, blighted infant.

Lisa wasn't of the stripe that would make love to him before her eyes. Even in her blindness, she would have noticed that. Even in her blindness. . . .

The porch vines had lost their leaves, and, through their skeletal filigree, Sue watched the quiet street gloom moment by moment. The old trees stood still and stark in the windless air. A patch of colorless sky revealed one dim star.

Wearing a pink, knitted jacket, for the night was quite cool, she rocked in the willow chair like some little old woman. He would be returning from town any moment now, she was thinking.

In the rear of the house, she could hear her mother and father placidly discussing politics, while Minnie Loo banged her pots and pans in the kitchen.

And then she heard him coming. His footsteps rang hollow along the empty street. She looked down dumbly at her folded hands, and never looked up until she heard him run his hands across the pickets of the low white fence.

He paused at the gate and squinted toward the porch. She began rocking again. He opened the gate and came up the short brick walk.

"Lo, baby," he said casually. He seemed restless, she thought, and a trifle embarrassed.

"Hello," she replied in a voice she scarcely recognized as her own.

* * *

HE CAME up beside her and took her hands in his. He was a tall, loosely built young man, with melancholy eyes and a dimple in his chin.

"What's the matter with you?" he said nonchalantly. "Your hands are as cold as ice."

"Why, nothing," she quavered; "nothing at all." She laughed, in order to verify the fact; but her laughter sounded as queerly as did her speaking voice.

He frowned. "You sound funny," he said.

She got up and leaned against the porch railing. She looked down at the withered shrubbery, and said:

"Lonny, I've been thinking. I don't know if I've come to the right conclusion, but I think I have. I—I think we'd just better call the whole thing off."

He was silent for so long that she began to wonder if he could hear the beating of her heart. She stole a glance at his face. He looked like he did after the first time he had kissed her, six years before, and she had slapped him.

"Do you feel okay?" he asked soberly.

She said nothing.

He grabbed her by her shoulders.

"Who is he?" he cried hoarsely.

"He? . . . Why, no one Lonny. You know better than that. I—I've been thinking. We've grown to be so different, it seems, lately. I've really thought about it a lot. I think it would be best . . . Lonny, you're hurting me!"

He released her shoulders and stepped back. His lean, boyish face stood out in the gloom like some old portrait.

"That's the ring, Lonny."

He looked at it blankly.

"Sue," he blurted, "you can't do this! You can't do this to me! You've got to give me a chance. We've got to talk this over, honey. I can't imagine what's come over you. I'll be back tonight, same time. We'll talk this over. . .. Keep this ring; it gives me the jitters."

He fumbled with her hand; and she allowed him to slip the ring back on.

"Sue—please"

She pushed his arms back. "No, Lonny, we must approach this in a rational way." She added, thoughtfully: "You come back and we'll talk it over. It's really a very serious decision——"

She could hear his frantic footsteps far down the street, long after he had passed from her sight.

And now, knowing he would come back, she discovered she could cry.

EXPLANATION OF SATURDAY'S CARTOON

THE WONDER WORKER—The American Houdini took his name from the French magician, Houdin, whose true name was Robert (1805-1871.) Robert-Houdin is the originator of most of the magic tricks used today, like the inexhaustible bottle and box, the horn of plenty, air suspension, handkerchief magic, etc. In 1856, when the Algerian tribes threatened to rebel against the French domination, the Paris Government sent Houdin to Algeria to demonstrate the superior magic of the white men to the chieftains of the rebellious tribes. The Frenchman met and easily defeated all Oriental magicians and, as a result, the revolt was nipped in the bud and the tribes surrendered. This is the only example of magic used as a modern political factor.

A Lull in the Barnstorms

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

THE outdoor theatrical season is over, without regrets and without encores. The cattle face a long winter of indigestion from nibbling at a haystack saturated with billposter's paste. Juliet no longer chins herself on the ridge pole and Romeo plays no banjo under the wrong balcony.

* * *

Actors go to the suburbs in the summer because they like fresh air and the great outdoors. The same reason why audiences stay away from the theater in winter. Actors could take a tip from the musicians in Radio City and go to work on an elevator. Even if nobody was in the theater they would at least enjoy the ride.

* * *

We pointed out several years ago what was wrong with the speaking stage. All the good artists had gone to Hollywood to crash the movies. The others had gone to the cow barns and the mule stalls, the henneries and the stys, and the speaking stage had evolved into a series of moos, clucks, grunts and cackles.

* * *

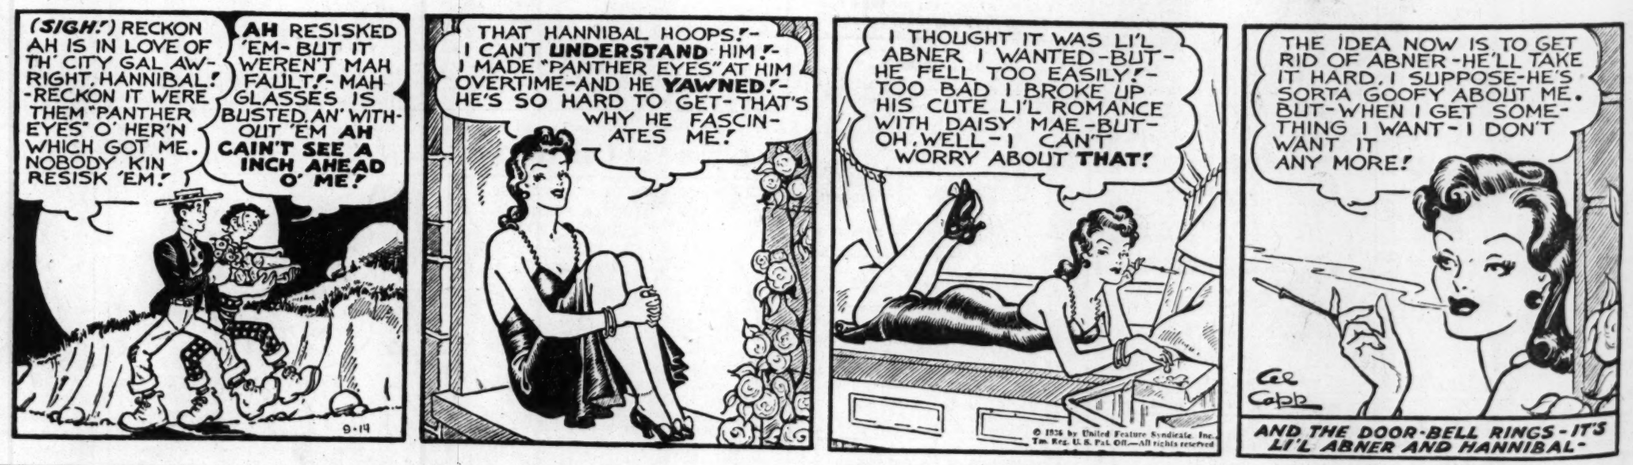

Art is long and time is fleeting, but technique is not feathered nor furred and talent ain't web-footed. The place to display your ability is not in the hay loft. A silo will never take the place of La Scala.

* * *

Soon the frost will be on the pumpkin and the hay will be in the shock. A little later the frost will be on the frappe and the shock will be in the rye. Then we can look back to happy days with the barn players in the wide open spaces where men are leading men and even grandma is an ingenue.
